OFF ITS TRACK

The engineer of this damaged Southern Pacific Railroad diesel engine and flatcar was arrested by Chino police Tuesday night. The engine in the background shoved the flatcar up over an embankment off Chino Avenue, tearing its wheels off. The engine continued down the spur track and plowed into the embankment, spilling nearly 100 gallons of diesel fuel.

Chino police arrested a Southern Pacific Railroad train engineer after a diesel engine ran into the rear of a flatcar and plowed into an embankment at the end of a spur track off Chino Avenue.

James Dale Ellis, 46, La Mirada, was booked in the West End sheriff's jail on suspicion of public intoxication and wrongful destruction of public property. His bail was set at $125. The incident occurred about 10 p.m.

Police said the train engine was switched off the main track onto a spur track south of Chino Avenue between Ninth and 10th streets, with Ellis at the controls.

The engine pushed the flatcar down the spur track towards the embankment. Instead of stopping, the engineer continued to push the flatcar into the embankment, officers said.

The flatcar skidded over the embankment where it lost its front wheels. The train's engine plowed into the dirt, coming to a halt.

Chino firemen were called to the scene when diesel fuel from the engine began to spill onto the ground.

Police said that Ellis was arrested after being questioned by officers. Officer Ed Acosta said the suspect was slightly staggering and slurred his speech.

Southern Pacific train crews and heavy equipment were at the scene today attempting to back the engine away from the embankment and lift it back onto the track. The engine was slightly damaged in the mishap.

Captive children plead for lives

Chant from windows as threats renewed

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) — Captive children chanted "We want to stay alive!" today as South Moluccan extremists holding more than 160 hostages again threatened to kill them if the Dutch government did not meet their demands. A deadline for death passed without apparent incident however.

Two hours before the deadline at 2 p.m. local time (5 a.m., PDT), several children were brought to the windows of the village school in nearby Bovensmilde where they have been held for two days. They cried out in unison, "We want to stay alive, Van Agt."

Andries van Agt is the Dutch justice minister and the top government strategist in dealing with the gunmen.

Six gunmen were holding 105 children and six teachers in the school. Seven other terrorists, one believed to be a woman, were holding at least 55 hostages on a hijacked train stopped in the middle of open pastureland 10 miles north of here.

Earlier today the Asian militants spoke with senior Dutch officials by telephone for an hour, rejected a government appeal for release of the children and repeated their threat to shoot hostages.

The gunmen, members of an immigrant community from the former Dutch colony of the South Moluccan Islands, now part of Indonesia, were demanding release of 21 jailed countrymen and a jumbo jet flight, with hostages, from Amsterdam to an undisclosed destination.

Some South Moluccans are serving terms in Dutch jails for using political violence in the past in fruitless attempts to force the Dutch government to help them win independence from Indonesia for their homeland.

"If you dare not to meet our demands ... we will not hesitate or bluff to shoot down a number of hostages for your pleasure," the terrorists said in a letter to Dutch authorities that was released Tuesday.

The government refused to discuss any deals unless the schoolchildren were released first.

But, said Justice Ministry spokeswoman Toos Faber, "The terrorists see the children as their ace in the hole, their safeguard." She described the negotiations, conducted by telephone, as courteous and "businesslike."

The tension eased noticeably in Bovensmilde as the deadline passed with no sign of violence in the school building. Police who had been jumpy earlier simply sat down in the shade with their carbines and made no effort to stop reporters or other passers-by.

The gunmen, who seized the school and train in twin attacks Monday, also threatened killings if mediation was attempted, if authorities did not meet the deadline or if there were reprisals against other South Moluccans living in Holland.

A leader of the Moluccan community in the Netherlands, Dr. Theo Kuhuwael, a 63-yearold educator and civil servant, began a voluntary mediation effort Tuesday night. Officials said he had "orientation" meetings with local Moluccans but no immediate contact with the gunmen.

Cites buildup

Gen. Singlaub defends his convictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The general whom President Carter reassigned for criticizing administration policy on Korea testified today that North Korea is building upon its might and he is convinced Arter's plan to withdraw U.S. ground forces would lead to war.

Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, whom Carter fired as chief of staff of U.S. forces in Korea for criticizing the withdrawal plan, told a House Armed Services subcommittee his fear of war is based on new intelligence of the North Korean buildup.

U.S. intelligence discovered this year that the North Koreans have increased their number of tanks from 500 to 2,000 over the past four or five years, the general testified.

The general, who is awaiting reassignment by the Army, said that is in addition to the North Korean increase in combat ships and jet fighters that has already been publicly reported. Contradicting a Congressional Budget Office study, Singlaub testified that North Korea's military power is superior to South Korea's now, even with the U.S. forces there.

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., chairman of the subcommittee before which Singlaub testified, asked if he was saying U.S. and Korean military officers overwhelmingly agree the U.S. withdrawal will ultimately lead to war.

"That is absolutely correct," the general replied.

Later he was asked if he was saying it might lead to war or it will lead to war.

Singlaub replied that Korean military officers "state flat out, unequivicaly that when U.S. forces are withdrawn (North Korean President) Kim Il-sung will attack and I said that from a military point of view I agree with that."

Singlaub said senior U.S. officers, including Gen. John Vessey, commander of U.S. forces in Korea, were so concerned about the danger that they asked the Joint Chiefs of Staff for the rationale of withdrawing U.S. forces.

He said the Joint Chiefs never answered that question.

Agnew case key topic

Last Nixon interview tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, who fought his own accusers to the brink of impeachment, says he never had much hope that his vice president could survive the charges that finally pushed him from office in disgrace.

In the fourth of his interviews by television personality David Frost, to be aired tonight, Nixon says that when he learned of the Justice Department's case in 1973 against Spiro T. Agnew, "There wasn't any question ... that he was frankly going to get it."

In tonight's segment Nixon also says he decided against pardoning former aides John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman for their involvement in the Watergate scandal because "If my last act (as president) was to pardon everybody ... that would inflame the situation and also would obviously look like the ultimate cover-up."

The interview is the fourth and last of the current series, which is expected to pay Nixon more than $1 million. Frost taped 29 hours with Nixon and the $600,000 plus share-of-profits contracts allow one more hour-long show, but it won't be aired until fall.

The show's producers were hoping tonight's topics, also including Nixon's thoughts about his own pardon from President Ford and matters relating to his final days in office, would wind up the series with a rebound in the audience ratings.

According to new figures from nationwide Nielsen surveys, the first interview, based on Watergate, drew an audience of 17.3 million homes, or 41 per cent of all viewers during that period on May 4. The second show, on world affairs, dropped to 8.5 million homes or 25 per cent.

A Frost spokesman says the third show, a week ago, probably drew under 20 per cent of the audience. Industry standards say it takes a 30 per cent audience for a show to be considered a ratings success.

In tonight's interview, Nixon says his handling of the Agnew case was "pragmatic" without putting himself in the position of a judge.

The former president, who at the time had plenty of his own problems because of Watergate, says he asked Agnew point-blank on Sept. 25, 1973, whether he was innocent and the vice president replied that he was.

But, Nixon said, Henry E. Petersen, head of the Justice Department's criminal division, told him the case against Agnew was strong. The department had put together a 40-page statement detailing kickback payments from engineering firms to the vice president. Agnew later was allowed to plead no contest to a single charge of tax evasion and was placed on three years probation.

At Agnew's business office in Crofton, Md., an associate said Agnew will be out of town for two weeks and will have no comment on Nixon's statements.

Eight die as sauna bath fire spreads

NEW YORK (AP) — A fire swept through a sauna bath and rooming house in midtown Manhattan today, killing at least eight persons and injuring more than a dozen others, the fire commissioner said.

Three of those injured were reported in critical condition at Bellevue Hospital.

Several towel-clad guests at the bathhouse, which an employe said catered to homosexuals, fled to the street as 200 firemen battled the four-alarm blaze.

The commissioner said a sprinkler system in the crowded building was not operating. A fire marshal said there was a delay in reporting the blaze, which was roaring through two floors when fire fighters arrived.

The owner of the baths, Irving Fine, 62, said there were between 80 and 100 persons in the building when the fire broke out.

Fire Commissioner John T. O'Hagan said he didn't know whether more persons were trapped inside the Everard Baths at 28th Street near Broadway in the wholesale flower market district.

Naturally, no pockets

EL SOBRANTE, Calif. (AP) — As policeman Michael DeOrian recalled it, it was a pretty boring patrol until the naked couple on a motorcycle drove by at 4 a.m.

"What gives here?" he asked, after pulling the pair over to the side of the road on Monday.

"It's our sixth wedding anniversary," was the response.

DeOrian said that since neither appeared drunk and since it was unlikely anyone would be around at that hour to be shocked by their appearance, he decided not to ruin the celebration.

The policeman thus escorted the couple to their San Pablo home — after ticketing the man for failure to have a driver's license in his possession.

Catalina businessmen moan about rationing of water

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Catalina Island storekeepers are moaning about the effect of 50 per cent water rationing on tourism this summer. And Orange County officials are looking at voluntary water conservation before more stringent cutbacks are necessary.

The mandatory Catalina rationing program went into effect Tuesday, to the dismay of local businessesmen who thrive on the summer tourist trade to the island 26 miles from Los Angeles Harbor.

"We have only one industry here and that's tourism," said Gregor W. Milne, president of the Catalina Island Businessmen's Association. "I am one of 150 small businessmen here who cannot make it a full year unless we have tourism."

The mandatory program is necessary, explain officials of the Southern California Edison Co., because the island's fresh water reservoir dropped below 190 acre-feet, less than a fifth of its capacity.

Meantime, the Orange County Board of Supervisors appointed a Water Emergency Task Force consisting of farmers, builders, industrialists, college professors and water agency managers. The committee was asked to decide within three weeks on a voluntary water rationing program to cut usage by 10 per cent.

A second committee, composed of builders and union officals, was named to recommend changes in county building codes to allow water saving devices in plumbing fixtures.

"No one agency could assume absolute authority and mandate specific water conservation or water rationing action," said Orange County Administrative Officer Robert Thomas. "If this (voluntary) reduction is not realized by August of this year, mandatory water rationing in excess of the 10 per cent reduction can be expected."

The Los Angeles Metropolitan Water District announced Tuesday it is reactivating a small pumping plant in the San Fernando Valley to deliver Colorado River water to the valley, western Los Angeles County and southern Ventura County.

Sevareid gives farewell talk

LOS ANGLELES (AP) — Eric Sevareid, CBS News' granite-faced pundit-in-residence, will soon hang up his thinking cap and reach for his fishing rod.

Never one who would be mistaken for a standup comedian, Sevareid nevertheless revealed a wryly humorous side Tuesday in a farewell talk before a meeting of owners and officials of CBS-TV affiliates.

Looking about the huge circus tent CBS had erected for a luncheon, he said, "As we walked in here my good friend (CBS News executive) Bill Small said 'I always knew you'd end up a clown.'"

Sevareid will deliver the last of his pithy commentaries on the CBS Evening News on Nov. 30 when he reaches mandatory retirement age of 65. Sevareid was born in Velva, N.D., on Nov. 26, 1912.

"Someone asked me what I'd do after 45 years of daily deadlines," he said. "I have two contrasting temptations. One is to sit in a rocking chair for two weeks, after which I will slowly begin rocking.

"The other is to go fishing. Charlie Brown may say that happiness is a warm puppy, but I can tell you that happiness is a cold trout."

Sevareid said that when he joined CBS News in London in 1939 Edward R. Murrow asked him how old he was. "I said I was 26, but Murrow said that sounded too young and would put me down as 29. He said he would fix it on the records. It's a good thing he never did or I would have been retired three years ago."

He said he has spent the past few years trying to puncture some of the myths about television and broadcast journalism.

"They say television is turning our minds to mush," he said. "If this is true, I don't know how you explain the increase in people fishing and hunting and playing tennis. If television is destroying the written word, how to you explain the increase in book reading since the advent of television? Some people never heard good English until radio came along."

State briefs

UC investments defended

BERKELEY (AP) — Fighting a battle against more than 1,000 booing, hissing and name-calling students, University of California regents defended investments in companies doing business in apartheid South Africa.

At a Tuesday meeting called after confrontations at last week's regularly scheduled regents' sessions, chairman William Coblentz said "that money doesn't belong to us and it doesn't belong to you. It belongs to the employes of the university as retirement funds. We are only the trustees and we have a moral obligation to handle that money wisely."

Regents scheduled Tuesday's meeting after an estimated 300 angry students broke up last week's meetings, claiming part of the university's $1.7 billion investment portfolio was going to companies doing business in racially segregated South Africa.

Doctors threaten strike

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Doctors at the three major county hospitals will strike in three weeks unless the county promises to improve inadequate patient care, an officer of the county Interns and Residents Association warns.

Meantime, county medical workers continued their rotating "sick-outs" Tuesday for the third day. Laboratory technicians and psychiatric social workers stayed home for the day to protest what they say are "stalling tactics" by the county in contract negotiations.

Dr. Greg Anderson of Harbor General Hospital in Torrance said nearly three-fourths of the 1,200 interns and residents in the county voted to strike in three weeks. They want a patient-care fund continued and the county's pledge to maintain decent condition levels, he said.

State lottery still alive

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A 583-mile telephone call has saved the life of a state assemblyman's proposal to ask the voters whether California should have a state lottery.

The reason for the call Tuesday was to get a vote from an absent member of a committee that was about to kill the proposal.

Voting by telephone isn't authorized, but here's what happened:

The author of the proposal, Assemblyman Robert Cline, R-Northrige, needed one more vote in the Governmental Organization Committee. But a sympathetic member, Assemblyman Ken Maddy, R-Fresno, was in El Centro making a speech.

Cline telephoned Maddy, who said he'd have voted for the measure if present.

Maddy's statement led an opponent, Assemblyman Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, to cast a "courtesy vote" that sent the measure to the Assembly floor on a count of 5-3.

The proposal, if approved by both houses, would go on next June's state ballot. Voter approval would authorize the legislature to design a state-run lottery.

About a dozen states have lotteries, with mixed results.

FBI's Bates steps down

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Charles W. Bates, whose FBI career was highlighted by Patricia Hearst and Watergate, says his main regret is that he won't be around to help solve a chain of terrorist bombings.

Bates, 57, who gained national prominence as the man who chased and caught Miss Hearst, said Tuesday he will step down June 17 to join a private security firm that once guarded Miss Hearst.

"My career has been filled with many gratifying accomplishments," the wiry sleuth said. "Being in the FBI is not a job, it's a way of life and I am proud of my part in it."

Tougher jail sentencing

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Mentally violent or sexually disordered offenders could be repeatedly committed to four-year prison treatment terms under newly proposed legislation.

Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger and Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, told a news conference Tuesday that the bill would guard society against premature release of hundreds of dangerous convicts who have served their criminal sentences but need continued psychiatric help.

They said a state Supreme Court ruling and California's new sentencing law make it difficult, or illegal, to keep psychopaths under confined treatment until they are "cured."

Don't want 'community park'

Rosemount tract residents protest

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont City Council Tuesday night staved off a storm of protests by residents of the Rosemount Homes tract concerned that the 4.5-acre open space in the middle of their tract might become a sports park.

An estimated 40 persons who attended the meeting were informed by Mayor Bertye Smith that the council would not discuss the matter until the June 16 council meeting.

Mayor Smith reported the council had not received the minutes of the Claremont Parks and Recreation Commission's May 16 meeting when the commission discussed the design of the future park.

Before an overflow audience, the commission had unanimously recommended to the council that an original design concept of a passive park for the Rosemount site be approved.

The commission had received a petition containing 80 signatures. The petition said that in the conceptual stage is a plan to make Rosemount Park a "sports" park with plans for a baseball diamond and a soccer field.

The petition said that if such a plan is carried out it would be dramatically different than the original plans: a park with children play areas and picnic areas.

Major objections to the "new use" designation were listed as the following: That a baseball diamond and soccer field would bring in too many "outsiders" and would restrict use by immediate homeowners. Would create traffic problems. Would create maintenance problems, litter problems and noise problems.

"We should let the City of Claremont know that we want a park that is a neighborhood park that will not attract outsiders and would offer us maximum use and enjoyment," the petition read.

Fred Hawkins, city director of community services, was concerned at the commission meeting with the wording of the petition, and said that the homeowners were being swayed by the term "sports park" in the petition.

He said that elements of the park plan for Rosemount Homes are consistent with any other neighborhood park in the city, including a ball diamond.

Hawkins said that the city cannot limit the use of any park to one group.

Mayor Bertye Smith assured the audience that citizens could speak under oral communications to anything not listed on the agenda, and several Rosemount residents remained, but the majority left.

Nicholas Coulas of 188 Sunflower Place, which ends in a cul-de-sac at the park, told the council that before a decision is reached, "We want a full hearing."

City Manager Norman King categorically denied some wording in a flyer entitled "Lets Keep Rosemount Park Residential . . . Not a Community Park."

King categorically denied that on Tuesday, May 17, "one of our concerned neighbors was informed by King that the Parks and Recreation Commission still intends to recommend to the City Council that Rosemount Park be made into a community park, not residential, with the backing and support of Mr. King."

"You're a liar," Coulas said twice.

"I have not fully reviewed the situation," King said. "The council will act on the recommendations it receives."

Although Nassau Place, Sunflower Place and Fairfield Drive end in cul-de-sacs, providing access on the westerly boundary of the park, about 480 feet of the east side of the park will front on Monticello Road

'Look-alike' murder victim found

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Detectives searched nearly six months, but it was two hikers out for a Sunday stroll who found the last of the three "look-alike" murder victims.

The badly decomposed body of Mary Ann Sarris, 19, of Santa Rosa, found in Drum Canyon near Los Alamos, had been shot once in the head like the other two victims. Jacqueline Rook and Patricia Laney, both 21, were found last January in rugged Refugio Canyon above Santa Barbara.

All three women were known as frequent hitchhikers around the University of California's Santa Barbara campus, and sheriff's detectives believe they met their killer while hitchhiking.

The women all wore their hair long and straight and had about similar builds and taste in clothes. Hence the "lookalike" label.

Investigators have speculated that the killer may have acted out of resentment for the women's independent demeanor.

"The killer probably lives in the rural part of our county," sheriff's Sgt. Mike Kirkman said. Many rural residents own guns and "it's not by chance that you find the bodies in these canyon areas. There are people who have lived here for 20 years that don't even know those roads exist."

The sheriff's department received a speculative profile "from back East that said the killer was a single white male, probably a loner and probably with sexual problems," Kirkman said. Its rationale was that "that's the only kind of person the girls would have accepted a ride from," he said.

The deaths prompted a campaign to eliminate hitchhiking around the UC Santa Barbara campus, provide night buses to the university community of Isla Vista and establish an escort service for girls who needed to go out at night.

Miss Sarris lived and worked in Isla Vista but was not a student. Her badly decomposed body, found Sunday, was identified Tuesday by the Santa Barbara County coroner's office using dental records.

Miss Rook, a coed at UC Santa Barbara, and Miss Laney, a former student, were shot with the same gun that killed Miss Sarris, Kirkman said, although it still wasn't known if the weapon was a pistol or a rifle.

Kirkman said Miss Sarris probably died the day she vanished from her apartment last Dec. 6.

Despite the fact investigators have asked more than 1,200 people about the case since December, there are no leads and no witnesses, he added.

S.D. Bicentennial funds will provide scholarship program

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Correspondent

Surplus San Dimas Bicentennial funds have been invested, with interest annually financing scholarships for high school graduates.

Buck Hooper, San Dimas' Bicentennial chairman, announced the $125 scholarship program during San Dimas City Council meeting Tuesday night.

More than $4,000 was left over from last year's Bicentennial celebration. That has been invested. Any interest over the annual $125 scholarship awarded will be reinvested and a second scholarship established annually when interest reaches that point, Hooper said.

Awardees will be selected from seniors who have demonstrated leadership and maintained good grade averages during high school. They will be for the freshman year only, Hooper said.

Councilmen approved in theory a tract which on 10.79 acres two blocks east of City Hall on Bonita Avenue would include 25 single family homes and three apartment buildings housing a total of 102 two-bedroom units. Konwiser Corp. of Newport Beach is the developer.

In other action, councilmen approved several routine zoning changes, set a June 28 public hearing for a landscape and lighting district and accepted a merchants' report on further development of the downtown San Dimas Frontier Village.

Councilmen are scheduled to meet again tonight to study the $4 million plus 1977-78 city budget.

Threat of lethal injection extorts $1 million

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Extortionists who threatened to kill a bank executive and his wife by injecting them with a lethal drug have escaped with a $1.2 million ransom, the FBI says.

Jack Keith, special agent in charge of the FBI office here, said Tuesday that Reno N. Fruzza and his wife, Polly, were taken hostage early Monday evening in their fashionable home in the suburb of Rancho Circle.

Fruzza is a vice president of the First National Bank of Nevada, the state's largest, and is manager of the bank's downtown Las Vegas office.

At least two men were involved in the scheme, investigators said.

Keith said that the armed intruders forced their way into the Fruzza home Monday night and held the couple hostage for more than 12 hours. The Fruzzas were kept shackled to beds in separate bedrooms during the night, but were not mistreated, he said.

Keith confirmed that the Fruzzas were given injections Tuesday morning of what they were told was a deadly drug. If they followed instructions, they would be given the antidote to the alleged poison, officials said.

The couple obeyed the orders, not knowing they had been given a harmless substance, Keith said.

Fruzza went to his bank more than two hours before regular business hours and filled two satchels with cash from the safe. Before leaving the office, he told employes of his plight and they called the FBI.

Employes said Fruzza acted "very scared and irrational" while at the bank, Keith said.

Fruzza left the bank alone, but FBI agents managed to trail him for a short time and saw him stop at several telephone booths, apparently to get further instructions from the kidnapers, Keith said.

However, the agents lost Fruzza in traffic, and he later switched cars and drove to Pahrump, a small desert community about 45 miles west of here.

Keith said that Fruzza told investigators he was ordered to drive to a lodge in Pahrump, leave the money in the back seat of the car, and go inside the lodge to await a phone call telling him where his wife was held and where to find the antidote.

When the call did not come, Fruzza checked the car and found the money gone. He then called police, officials said.

Keith said the kidnapers apparently took the money from the car and fled in a light plane from an airstrip near the lodge. The plane was later spotted at the North Las Vegas airport.

Mrs. Fruzza was later found handcuffed to a bed at the Showboat Hotel, after the FBI received an anonymous call.

Neither of the Fruzzas were injured during the ordeal, Keith said.

The kidnap-extortion was the second time in three years that Fruzza has been held hostage. In 1974, he was held at gunpoint and taken as hostage by gunman during $741,000 holdup at the bank. However, the gunman was arrested and Fruzza freed a short time later.

County backs freeway extension

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors Tuesday threw its support behind the extension of the Foothill Freeway from La Verne to Redlands, a distance of about 40 miles.

The decision came upon the recommendation of Supervisor Peter Schabarum who said the board's support was needed to carry the project past the Assembly Transportation Committee in Sacramento.

A bill calling for the extension already has been introduced by Assemblyman William Lancaster, R-Covina, and is scheduled to go before the full Assembly later this week.

The Foothill Freeway — Route 30 — now ends at Wheeler Avenue in La Verne and empties eastbound traffic into Foothill Boulevard.

Schabarum said the unexpected growth of the valley now makes it necessary to go through the extension despite earlier plans by the state to shelve it indefinitely.

Lancaster's bill would require the California Highway Commission to proceed with all necessary steps including the completion of environmental studies.

Schabarum's motion followed a visit to Sacramento by representatives of valley communities two weeks ago to lobby for passage of the bill

Big 3 automakers vow to build gas savers by deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's three largest auto manufacturers pledged to Congress today to make every effort to meet fuel-efficiency standards already required by law.

But they said President Carter's proposed tax on gas-guzzlers would be an unnecessary burden on low-and middle-income families.

The No. 4 manufacturer, American Motors Corp., which specializes in smaller cars, endorsed the tax as a necessary reminder to U.S. drivers of the need to conserve energy.

The manufacturers and Douglas Fraser, new president of the United Auto Workers union, testified before the House Ways and Means Committee. That panel is considering Carter's energy-tax proposals, including the gas-guzzler tax, rebates for buyers of fuel-stingy cars and a new standby gasoline tax of up to 50 cents a gallon.

Fred G. Secrest, executive vice president of Ford Motor Co., and Harold K. Sperlich, vice president of Chrysler Corp., said flatly that their firms will produce a fleet of cars that averages 27.5 miles per gallon by 1985, as required by law.

Henry L. Duncombe Jr., vice president of General Motors Corp., said GM "is committed to doing everything possible to achieve the 1985 target." He said the GM line will average 19 miles per gallon in 1978, a 60-per-cent increase over 1974.

Speaking for American Motors, Vice President Frederick A. Stewart endorsed not only the tax-and-rebate scheme for new-car buyers but the higher tax on gasoline as well.

In light of the 1973 embargo on foreign oil, Stewart said, it is unrealistic to think Americans will voluntarily change their habits. "The unpleasant truth is that some new stimulus must be brought to bear, and the taxing policies which can be initiated by this committee can bring influence on our freemarket system so as to sharpen the focus of the American people on the very real need for energy conservation," he said.

General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and the UAW contended the tax-rebate plan would do little good but could result in major harm.

"We do not see any way in which the gas-guzzler tax would improve the operation of the existing fuel-economy standards ..." said Fraser.

It could be doubly harmful, he added, "by placing the sixpassenger car beyond the means of many working families ..."

The idea of rebating up to $500 to buyers of smaller cars "could cause a large increase in sales of foreign cars at the expense of taxes on American cars," Sperlich said.

Ford's Secrest said there is no reason for the federal government to change rules of fuel economy in the middle of the game. "We believe it is clearly premature to conclude before the standards even take effect that they are not attainable without additional 'assistance' from Washington," he said.

The committee heard criticism of the Carter program Tuesday from various segments of the energy industry. Representatives of service stations said the energy taxes would be a hardship on the poor without cutting energy consumption.

$17 million suit filed in crime series

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Investigative Reporters and Editors Inc., several newspapers and 40 reporters and editors were accused in a $17-million lawsuit of defaming Peter Licavoli Jr. in a series of articles on organized crime in Arizona.

The suit, filed Tuesday in Pima County Superior Court by Licavoli and his wife, Lizabeth, quotes from four articles that named Licavoli as the head of a drug smuggling and prostitution ring operating out of Tucson. The articles said the operation has connections in several eastern cities, Alaska and throughout the Southwest.

The 23-part series was the result of the Phoenix Project, a five-month effort by IRE members from two dozen newspapers and television stations after the car-bomb murder of Don Bolles, a reporter for the Arizona Republic.

Defendants named in the suit are IRE; the Star Publishing Co. in Tucson, publishers of the Arizona Daily Star; the Denver Post; the Albuquerque Journal; the Long Island Newsday; Robert Greene, Newsday's Suffolk editor who headed the project, and 39 other individual team members.

In addition, separate suits were filed against at least three other newspapers Tuesday, and Mr. and Mrs. Licavolis' lawyers said they planned to file more suits.

According to the lawsuit filed in Tucson, the series, which identified Peter Licavoli Sr. as a former Mafia leader, said "although the old man is increasingly reluctant to deal in narcotics, his sons aren't. The Drug Enforcement Administration, which identifies Peter Jr. as the successor to his father's organization, says young Pete operated a smuggling ring from Mexico to St. Louis, Youngstown, Ohio, Boston and Anaheim, Calif."

Four injured in Pomona traffic

Four persons were injured in Pomona traffic mishaps Tuesday, police reported.

A motorcyclist was injured shortly before 3:30 p.m. in the collision of his motorcycle and an auto at Park Avenue and Pearl Street. The cyclist, Brian K. George, 19, of Pomona, was treated for foot and ankle injuries at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Police reported that the accident occurred as the motorist, Nellie M. Bates, 58, of Pomona, was leaving a private driveway.

A few minutes later a woman was injured when she was pinned briefly between two cars in her driveway at 1561 Elwood St. The victim, Juana Uzcanga, 32, was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Police reported the mishap occurred when a child attempted to back the victim's auto after she left it, but it moved forward intead, striking her.

Shortly after 5 p.m. a motorist was injured in an accident which involved four autos at the Corona Expressway near Garey Avenue.

The injured driver, Lyn R. Mosney, 32, of Upland, was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. The other motorists involved escaped injury. They were Augustine H. Tapia, 43, of Chino, Catherine A. Harris, 29, of Ontario and Lawrence M. Lewis, 30, of Chino.

A female driver was injured in a two-car accident Tuesday morning at Verne Avenue west of Los Flores Street. The driver, Loretta L. Franklin, 23, was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. The other driver, Russell A. Ary, 17, was unhurt.

Young sees new era of U.S.-Africa ties

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Ambassador Andrew Young left Africa today after a 20,000-mile tour of eight nations during which he vowed there would be a new era in U.S.-African relations.

The black U.S. envoy to the United Nations traveled to London, where he planned to confer with British Foreign Secretary David Owen on the two-week tour. He was to return to Washington Thursday.

Young's personal popularity was evident at almost every stop on his tour. He was received as a "friend" and "brother" in most black African capitals and he was hailed as a "great man" by some white businessmen in South Africa.

At most stops he ignored protocol, pomp and prepared speeches in favor of "down home" diplomacy.

"I say to you that we are not immune to the struggles Africa faces, that we have known these struggles ourselves," he said at one point.

His final stop was in Sudan. President Jaafar el Numairi, who kicked out Soviet military advisers and some embassy personnel last week, told Young on Tuesday his nation, Africa's largest, needs U.S. military equipment.

Young did not promise guns, but he indicated the United States is prepared to assist in developing Sudanese agriculture.

The ambassador left Khartoum today for London where he will confer with Foreign Secretary David Owen before flying to Washington on Thursday.

RTD financial woes expected to cut bus services to valley

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

Bus services to the valley are expected to be trimmed this summer as a result of a tentative budget that shows that the Southern California Rapid Transit District is running out of money.

Jack Gilstrap, general manager, said the countywide "downward adjustments" are caused by a projection that continuation of the present services would put the district $10 million in the hole.

The RTD already has started cutting its services here by eliminating night service on Line 440 which runs along Foothill Boulevard as of June 19.

Gilstrap says reduction in services offered by other lines also may follow.

He said the financial pinch also will affect plans of the district to establish a $6 million terminus in Pomona, tentatively scheduled to be undertaken within the year.

"It's a shame that we have to cut back," the general manager declared, "especially at a time the pressure is on us to expand services to help conserve energy. We are carrying 800,000 passengers a day, the highest number in our history."

Gilstrap said he expects the $10 million deficit next year despite plans to raise fares.

The district's proposed budget calls for a $232,500,000 expenditure. To balance it with current revenues, the RTD would have to cut eight per cent in miles operated, suspend service on six of its 190 lines and reduce night and weekend services on the rest of the routes.

The basic 35-cent fare would have to go up to 40 cents and more money would have to be charged for express buses or those offering limited services. Senior citizen fares would go to 20 cents and student fares to 30 cents.

The deficit would force a 13 per cent reduction in the work force, Gilstrap said.

The RTD already has asked for more support from the county Board of Supervisors and the state, but has had no success. Gilstrap said the district is now asking the Southern California Association of Cities and the Los Angeles County Transportation Commission — both of which handle gas tax funds — for more financial support.

A public hearing on the district's budget is scheduled for June 2 at RTD headquarters, 425 S. Main St., in Los Angeles.

Pair nabbed in thefts from autos

Two men suspected of breaking into a number of cars parked in a parking lot at the Club 66 at Foothill Boulevard and Turner Avenue in Cucamonga were arrested Tuesday night by West End sheriff's deputies.

Booked in the West End Jail for investigation of burglary were: Richard Andrew Frausto, 22, of Fontana and Leo Stephen Martin, 20, of 8235 Morton Ave., Etiwanda.

Deputies said that several patrons of the restaurant discovered that two men had broken into their vehicles, taking a citizen's band radio, stereo sets, tapes and other personal items.

A San Bernardino County sheriff's vice squad unit in the area spotted a vehicle with the two suspects at Haven Avenue and Eighth Street a short time later. The car was stopped and deputies said the officers found items believed stolen on the back seat of the vehicle.

Sixth arrest in holdup-slaying of wealthy widow

ATLANTA (AP) — FBI agents plan today to ask for a warrant to search the mobile home of a woman taken into custody Tuesday, the sixth person arrested in connection with the million dollar robbery and slaying of Indianapolis heiress Marjorie Jackson.

Robertina Harroll, 53, of Ringgold, Ga., was arrested at the Ponderosa Camp Park about 25 miles northwest of here. She was to be arraigned today in U.S. District Court in Atlanta on a charge of receiving stolen currency in excess of $5,000, the FBI said.

Mrs. Harroll's apprehension ended a nationwide police search for her and her 10-year-old son, Timmy. Reports said she could have as much as $1 million in her possession.

The hunt for Mrs. Harroll began in Arizona, where her sister, Marjorie Pollitt, 49, and Howard Willard, 38, both of Indiana, were arrested Friday. Police had been tipped when the pair tried to buy a mobile home for $35,000 in cash.

Four fired policemen deny they used force

Four Pomona policemen fired recently as the result of a fracas in 1975 in which several citizens were injured, vehemently deny the use of excessive force, their attorney, Stephen Silver, said today.

Silver, a partner in a law firm which specializes in handling the problems of police officers, said two of those accused in the incident, both sergeants, were not even at the scene until after officers who were there issued a "code four," meaning no further assistance needed. Yet the sergeants were accused of negligent supervision in the field, Silver said.

One of the sergeants, Carl J. Jackson, was among the four men discharged. The other's status with the department has yet to be decided. He remains suspended at full pay.

The other three officers fired by City Administrator Jerrold Gonce were Peter F. Amato, Glen Neher Jr., and Terry D. Prentice. Several others were disciplined, according to Silver, and he intends to appeal the reprimands or days-off given them.

The incident occurred in south Pomona where police were sent to investigate the complaints of an allegedly noisy party and the tossing of a beer can over a fence. Conflicting versions of what happened after police arrived have been given, but there is a general agreement that a melee followed, both outside and inside the house in question.

Silver said he intends to appeal the firings to an arbitrater and will seek individual hearings for each officer. Under the plan, the city selects three members of the American Arbitration Association, each an attorney, and submits the names to Silver. He then selects one to arbitrate the case.

Silver said the officers fired are under a severe financial burden with all facing the loss of the city's portion of their retirement benefits. For Jackson, a 14-year veteran, and the second sergeant accused, that amounts to thousands of dollars.

The men are represented by Silver as members of the state-wide Police Officers Research Association of California (PORAC), the attorney said.

Teacher salary dispute lingers

Alta Loma school board members and district teachers are still locked in a salary dispute, with no decision announced at this week's meeting.

"We may have an impasse by the end of this week," said Supt. Floyd Stork, explaining that a new contract proposal will be discussed at two negotiation sessions later in the week.

An unfair labor practices suit filed by Alta Loma Educators Association is still pending before the state's Educational Employment Relations Board. Two hearings, including one scheduled Monday, were called off because teachers apparently are not pursuing the charge, said Stork.

The school board offered teachers a new contract on May 9, and since that time they have not pursued the labor practices charge. "We may have to face that again, however, if we don't get this (hassle) resolved," Stork noted.

In other business, a preliminary budget forecasting a $900,000 increase over last year was presented to the board by Stork.

Trustees accepted the $4,013,000 budget without comment. They are not required to act on the plan until next month.

Stork said the increase over last year is due to inflation and "growth" in the district.

He declined to estimate the tax rate for 1977-78, saying it was "too early to tell" because assessed valuation figures are not in yet. The present rate is $2.48 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Shah gives $1 million to Pepperdine

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Shah of Iran has given $1 million to Pepperdine University, with the stipulation that the school create a special professorial chair "in the name of Her Royal Majesty Empress Farah of Iran."

The gift, earmarked for the university's school of education, is the largest donation ever received for an academic program, a Pepperdine spokesman said Monday.

In addition to paying the salary of an education professor "with an international reputation," the $1 million gift will fund scholarships for American and Iranian students.

COMPUTERIZED BAR — Joe Shannon of Kent, Ohio, demonstrates computer bar he designed. In less than three seconds the bar can mix any of 1,200 different drinks.

Kenton in serious condition

READING, Pa. (AP) — Bandleader Stan Kenton was reported in serious condition after undergoing surgery at Reading Hospital to relieve pressure caused by a blood clot in his brain, a hospital spokesman said.

Kenton, 65, has been on the serious list since he fractured his skull in a fall Sunday night. Police said he apparently suffered some type of seizure before the fall.

He remained on the serious list Tuesday night following a post-operative examination, but a hospital spokesman said his condition was much improved.

Kenton was found semiconscious in a parking area at the Abraham Lincoln Motor Inn a short distance from his room. A guest departing from a wedding party notified motel officials.

Doctors originally thought Kenton had suffered a stroke, but tests prior to the operation revealed a fracture at the back of the skull, Jerry Wills, a hospital spokesman, said Tuesday.

Kenton and members of his band were staying at the hotel in preparation for an engagement here.

Computer serves up drinks

CHICAGO (AP) — It won't listen to your troubles or warble Irish ditties. But the computer bar can dispense one of 1,200 different drinks in less than three seconds, and it won't cheat the cash register.

The bar, demonstrated at the National Restaurant Show, splashes, mixes and pours ingredients in the precise amount to fill the glass. The drinks also are priced, taxed and recorded, and a complete customer guest check is printed, all in the same operation.

The turn of a key controls price changes for special entertainment and happy hours. The names of various cocktails, glass size, and all types of liquors are on the drink buttons on the electronic keyboard.

Joe Shannon of Kent, Ohio, thought it up. He went from premedical and prelaw studies at John Carroll University in Cleveland into the juke box business. The jukes were in 17 bars he eventually bought.

"Then I found I was losing 18 per cent of gross receipts," said Shannon, 37. "It wasn't spillage or overpouring that was cutting profits. It was thievery or giveaways by clever bartenders, bar managers and waitresses. So I thought up a computer bar that made all this impossible. Anyone working them has to be honest."

SILVER QUEENS — Mrs. Anna Novak, left, and Mrs. Vera Lapham were crowned "Silver Queens" during the third anniversary celebration of Palomares Center, 250 W. Artesia St., Pomona. The two tied in voting for the annual honor.

Both were presented cash awards and jeweled tiara crowns. The queens were crowned by Susan McPherson, administrator.

Mrs. Novak, a native of Pennsylvania, moved to California in 1956. Three of her four children are still living. She cared for the other daughter, a cripple, for 45 years prior to the daughter's death.

Mrs. Novak paints in both oils and watercolors and is active making lap robes for other patients. She also participated in story telling and Christmas caroling at the center.

Mrs. Lapham was born in Cleveland, Ohio, and has two children. Her daughter, Rosemary Andrasak, lives in Cleveland and a son, Robert Hamilton, lives in Hacienda Heights.

Mrs. Lapham has resided in Pomona 31 years. At 71, she is still a member of the Poppy Club and the Senior Citizens Assistance League.

She spends her time helping other patients at the center and makes beaded necklaces which she sells to meet her expenses.

Mrs. Lapham served as a hostess for the anniversary celebration.

Music for the event was provided by members of the Gemtones combo, Chris Recupero, Curt Recupero and Don Ward.

Claremont Colleges' graduations slated

The Claremont Colleges will confer bachelor degrees on 808 undergraduates and advanced degrees on 185 graduate students in six separate commencement exercises during the weekend of June 4 and 5.

Claremont Graduate School opens the ceremonies at 3 p.m. on June 4 in Garrison Theater by presenting 55 candidates with doctorates, 17 with master of fine arts degrees and 113 with master's degrees. It also will recognize another 173 who were awarded degrees without ceremony in February.

Speaker will be Ralph Tyler, vice president, Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions and director of its Chicago office. His subject is "Can Our Schools and Colleges Meet the Challenges They Face?"

A baccalaureate service at 10:30 a.m. in Garrison Theater on June 5, will precede the five undergraduate colleges' commencements. Speaker at the service is John A. Hutchinson, professor of religion, Claremont Graduate School, on the topic "On Becoming Human."

At 2 p.m. on June 5 in Badgley Garden, Claremont Men's College will confer 193 B. A. degrees. John R. Coleman, president of Haverford College and author of Blue Collar Journal, will speak on "Getting Head and Heart Together."

Scripps College will present B.A. degrees to 115 seniors at 3 p.m. on Elm Tree Lawn, Joan Dempsey Klein, Los Angeles Superior Court judge, will speak on "The American Dream: Is It Still Viable?"

Harvey Mudd College will install its president, D. Kenneth Baker, and confer the bachelor of science degree on 96 candidates at 4 p.m. in the Sprague Library Plaza. Baker will speak on "Between Six Walls."

Also at 4 p.m., Pitzer College will present its graduating class of 104 with bachelor of arts degrees on Pellissier Mall. Speaker will be Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley.

Pomona College will give B.A. degrees to 300 seniors at 4:30 p.m. in Marston Quadrangle. John Haskell Kemble, professor of history and chief faculty marshal, Pomona College, will speak on "The View from Old Baldy."

Earlier, on June 5, 16 cadets will be commissioned by the ROTC at 9:30 a.m. in Bauer Forum, Claremont Men's College.

Fullerton woman rescued

MOAB, Utah (AP) — A California woman missing nearly 44 hours in Canyonlands National Park, was found in good condition by park rangers.

Chief Ranger Glen Alexander said Lisa Lane of Fullerton became separated from a group of 40 geology students on Thursday while hiking in the park's Salt Creek area.

Sea trip for pupils

The Gifted Childrens Association of the Foothills will sponsor a "sea lab" expedition June 11 and is presently looking for students to take part in the program.

The trip will take students in 5th to 9th grades on a trip in an ocean-going laboratory for instruction on sea life and the use of scientific equipment.

The fee for the trip is $18 for members and $20 for non-members. For further information or applications, those interested may contact Sandy Lesky at 623-1828.

'Grizzly Adams' to be chairman of Scout-O-Rama

DAN HAGGERTY

Television actor Dan "Grizzly Adams" Haggerty, a former Pomona resident, will be the 1977 Scout-O-Rama honorary celebrity chairman. He will appear at the San Gabriel Valley Council's annual outdoor festivities themed "The Greatest Show on Earth" at the Santa Anita Race Track June 4.

Arrangements for the appearance of the actor are being made by Sam Jones, public relations director, Southern California Scouting, Los Angeles, and Tom Gough, Verdugo Hills Scout-O-Rama chairman.

Haggerty is no stranger to the role of James "Grizzly" Adams, having starred in the 1974 film, "The Life and Times of Grizzly Adams," which was shown on the NBC Monday Night at the Movies in 1976.

Haggerty was chosen for the film and TV series not only for his acting ability but also because of his love for animals. He started as an independent animal trainer, pawning his furniture to buy his first lion cub. He supervised animals for the Tarzan series and for the film "When the North Wind Blows." His film activities took him to Brazil for a year.

He has appeared in the Tarzan TV series and his film credits include "Snow Tigers," "Where the North Wind Blows," "Grasslands," "Wild Country," "Tender Warrior" and "Easy Rider."

Born in Hollywood, Haggerty was a scout during his youth while residing in Pomona. He now makes his home in the Malibu mountains.

"Nature has been good to me and I learned about it when I was a Boy Scout. It was then that I learned about animals, which have become my closest friends. I love animals. They have put me where I am today. Because of them, I have been able to travel all over the world and pursue work as an animal trainer. It has been so very much fun," he said.

What's going on around here

Nevada trip

The San Dimas Recreation Department has a few openings remaining on its "adults only" excursion to Lake Tahoe, Carson City, Virginia City, and Reno scheduled for June 12-15.

The price is $68.50 per person for double occupancy and $97.50 for single occupancy. The fee covers bus transportation, hotel accommodations and sightseeing trips.

The bus will leave from the City Hall parking lot June 12 at 8 a.m.

June 1 at 10 a.m. is the deadline for reservations. Persons may call the recreation department at 599-6713, ext. 41 for details.

Cat show set

The "Siamese Fanciers" is sponsoring an all Siamese specialty show at Taylor Hall in Claremont July 10.

Siamese cats will be shown and many older Siamese cats who have won in the past will be on display in the "Temple Guard" section.

This show will involve the history of the Siamese cat and the Thai culture. Many of the trophies and rosettes will come from Thailand. Thai dancers will provide entertainment. An oriental meal is also planned.

Factory representative

The Heimann Co., Inc., Minneapolis, has been appointed an authorized factory representative for ITT Pomona.

Carl W. Musarra, general manager of this division of International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., said Heimann, will handle all of Pomona's sales to distributors, and government agencies in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, and western Wisconsin.

Heiman replaces Northern States Sales. ITT Pomona manufactures cable assemblies, molded patch cords, test accessories, banana plugs, binding posts and a number of service accessories for the electronic technician.

Horse show

Ridge Riders will host an all-English "B" rated horse show on June 5 at the Ridge Rider Equestrian Center, one-fourth mile south of the San Bernardino Freeway on Citrus Avenue in West Covina.

Fifteen hunter classes, including jumpers, will go in the morning, with 11 equitation and pleasure classes after a lunch break.

Betty Kennedy will judge the classes. Silver will be awarded to first place winners, and ribbons to those placing through sixth.

Entry fees will be $5 per class and $6 per medal class. Registration will begin at 8 a.m. with the first class scheduled to show at 8:30 a.m.

Exhibitors may contact Mrs. June Waller at (213) 332-4292 prior to show date.

New truck

"The culmination of years of design and research, plus the input of thousands of people who know trucks best — drivers, mechanics, owner-operators and fleet owners — has resulted in the introduction of a new vehicle by International Harvester's Truck Group," according to Bill Blozis, president, Valley International Trucks, Inc., Pomona.

Blozis recently attended the introduction of the new International "S-Series" medium-heavy truck line at the Superdome in New Orleans, La. The new trucks represent a logical "next step" in truck design as they incorporate literally hundreds of common sense changes and improvements for the trucking needs of today as well as for the decade to come.

They feature a clean, efficent design for over-the-road vehicles, as well as high-visibility and maneuverability for severe service vehicles, Blozis said.

Camp volunteers

The West End YMCA is seeking volunteers, 14 years and older, to work in the summer camp program.

They must enjoy working with children, enjoy living and working in nature, and have interest in the camp program.

Volunteers are also needed for the backyard swimming program. They must also be 14 years or older.

For information, persons may contact the West End YMCA, 215 W. C St., Ontario.

Senior citizens trip

La Verne senior citizens are planning a two-day, one-night trip to Laughlin, Nev., and Lake Havasu, Ariz., on June 7 and 8.

The cost is $35 per person. They will leave from La Verne and travel to the Nevada Club in Laughlin, where they will have lunch and dinner. That night, the group will travel to Lake Havasu. The next day, they will take a boat ride on Lake Havasu and view the famous London Bridge and stop at Parker Dam prior to returning home.

The price of the trip includes bus transportation, lunch and dinner at the casino, overnight accommodations and the boat ride at Lake Havasu.

Persons interested in the trip may call Mary Nicoletta, travel chairman, at 596-1391 or 598-8348 for reservations and information.

Summer camps

The West End YMCA summer camping program is off to a fast start. Terri Bivens the YMCA's director of camping services said camps are filling fast. The Golden Coast Caravan, a seven-day trip up the California coast is already full.

West End YMCA camps still open for reservations include the Trailblazer Day Camps for boys and girls from 5 to 11 years. There will be five, 10-day sessions. Each will feature daily bus service which will pick up and return campers to designated stops. There will be an overnight campout with dinner, a parent's night, a free Y camp T-shirt and a beverage at lunch each day. Programmed activities include games, hikes, crafts, nature lore and gymnastics, all under experienced leadership.

Another popular camp is Camp Oakes, a coed residence camp, during the late part of July through the first week of August. The camp is located in the San Bernardino mountains near Big Bear Lake. Activities will include crafts, boating, swimming, archery, cookouts, hikes, riflery, games, songs, campfires and horseback riding.

Another resident camp, Camp Fox, will be featured in two sessions, one for boys and one for girls. For one week the campers will enjoy the beautiful surroundings of Camp Fox located on Catalina Island. Activities will be boating, swimming, songs, campfires and much more.

The YMCA has also planned two High Sierra caravans. Each caravan will travel throughout the Lake Tahoe region. Each day will bring about a new experience under the supervision of trained backpackers.

For more information about camp call the West End YMCA at 986-5847.

BOOK IN BRAILLE — Jack Smith, author and columnist, is presented a Braille copy of his new book, "The Big Orange," by Mrs. Marjorie Hayes of the Pomona Valley Transcribers Guild during the volunteer group's annual meeting. Brailled copy of book fills five volumes.

Author given copy by valley guild

Columnist's book now in Braille

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Jack Smith, author and columnist, isn't able to read the newest translation of his best seller, "The Big Orange."

It's in Braille.

Smith was presented a copy of the book, translated by Mrs. Marjorie Hayes, at the annual meeting of the Pomona Valley Transcribers Guild at the Arbor in Upland.

"This translation will be even more foreign to me than those already done in Italian and French," said Smith, "but I'm pleased that the blind can enjoy the book."

Smith asked guild members if the book was faithfully copied — right down to his purposely misspelled words like "Queen Mary's birth in Long Beach."

"Of course," answered Mrs. Rose Kelber, "These readers have lost their sight, not their sense of humor."

Last year, the guild's small but dedicated membership spent 1,834 hours producing 7,756 pages of Brailled textbook and pleasure reading, according to Mrs. Lucille Brooks, guild president.

In addition, guild members typed 7,140 pages of large print pleasure reading and 1,760 pages of large print textbooks.

A new project of the guild, a Friday program for the blind in Ontario's Colony Park, has been called "highly successful," Mrs. Brooks said.

In this program, blind people from the valley are invited to participate in crafts, cooking, music and games. Guild members serve as hostesses and instructors. A luncheon is prepared each Friday.

Guild members have established a workshop in the Ontario Public Library where books are copied by Thermoform and the pages bound.

The Ontario Public Library is the only library in California with an extensive collection of Braille, large print and talking books to serve those who are blind or partially sighted.

During a slide presentation at the annual meeting, Mrs. Kelber said an increasing number of elderly persons are selecting the large print books.

Under a cooperative system with other libraries in San Bernardino, Riverside, Mono and Inyo counties, these special collections are available to residents of the entire area, Mrs. Kelber reported.

The Ontario library's 1,000 talking books are a part of the Library of Congress collection.

Abortion trial set

SANTA ANA (AP) — Dr. William B. Waddill Jr. has pleaded innocent to charges of strangling a baby girl after she was aborted.

Superior Court Judge William Walsworth accepted Waddill's plea Thursday and set a trial date of Aug. 8.

Waddill maintains the infant, known only as Baby Girl Weaver, was stillborn and that he only put his hands around her neck to check for a pulse.

Another doctor, Ronald Cornelisen, testified in a pretrial hearing that Waddill strangled the baby after she survived an abortion March 2 at Westminster Community Hospital.

Schooling fund is growing

The Oliva Howard Memorial Scholarship Fund at Chaffey College has now reached $558.

The fund was started March 21 when 14 of Mrs. Howard's students set it up with $125 at the farewell session of her evening accounting classes at the college.

A victim of cancer during the last three years of her life, Mrs. Howard taught until just one month before her death on April 21. She taught the last three classes while confined to a wheelchair.

A former high school instructor in Washington and Oregon, Mrs. Howard joined the night staff at Chaffey College in February 1964.

Persons interested in supporting the scholarship may contact Jenny Dannelley in the Student Affairs Office, 987-1737, ext. 290.

GRISWOLD SITE WORK — A brick wall along the west side of Berkeley Avenue was bulldozed and several old trees were cut down on the Griswold property in Claremont recently in preparation for the building of a 97-room hotel on the Foothill Boulevard frontage. The site work over 6.5 acres of Griswold property included improving the parking lot south of the GOSH Pavilion which has been completed, and will include extensive landscaping around the multi-million dollar hotel venture. Colby Circle to the north also will be improved.

ED CONNOLLY, administrative assistant to Assemblyman Bill Lancaster, R-Covina, will speak at a meeting of the Pomona-East San Gabriel Valley Young Republicans Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the faculty dining room at Azusa Pacific College.

Connolly has been on Lancaster's staff since 1972. He is Lancaster's chief representative in the 62nd District and assists Lancaster on legislative matters in Sacramento.

Connolly lives in West Covina. He is a director of West Covina Beautiful, a member of the California State Republican Central Committee and an alternate to the Los Angeles County Republican Central Committee.

He is a former president of the West Covina Republican Club.

ASSEMBLYMAN JOSEPH B. MONTOYA, D-La Puente, has announced that he has been appointed by President Jimmy Carter to the U.S. Circuit Judge Nominating Commission of the Southern Ninth Circuit.

The Commission, according to Montoya, reviews and makes recommendations to the President on candidates to be appointed federal Circuit Court judges in the 11 Western states.

Montoya will be a member of the panel that scrutinizes candidates for appointments in California, Nevada and Arizona.

SEN. WILLIAM CAMPBELL, R-Hacienda Heights, has authored legislation which has been approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee to allow adopted adults and their natural parents to meet.

Campbell's bill, S.B. 535, provides a program whereby persons adopted in California and are 18 years of age or older, could meet with their natural parents.

Under existing law, all records and information regarding adopted children are available only upon Superior Court order.

Under Campbell's bill, which has the approval of the State Bar's board of governors, if both adopted adults and natural parents requested to meet, the Department of Health would be authorized to assist in arranging a meeting.

LOU GENTILE, chairman of the San Bernardino County Democratic Central Committee, will serve as master of ceremonies for the WEST END DEMOCRATIC CLUB'S Stars and Stripes Gala June 3.

This announcement was made by club president Loyal Nixon and gala chairman Beverly Quinn. The event will be held at Griswold's Pavilion in Claremont.

Gentile, chairman of the business education division at Chaffey College in Alta Loma, is retiring this year.

SEN. PETER H. BEHR'S measure to protect the privacy of medical records has passed the Senate Judiciary Committee. Behr, R-San Rafael, in his bill, sharply limits the release of medical information. Exceptions are for job applicants, on applications for insurance and to resolve medical benefit or workmen's compensation claims. The measure now goes to the Senate Finance Committee.

Behr last week introduced legislation to protect consumers who use the new electronic banking transfer cards.

Numbered S.B. 1220, his bill would limit a person's financial liability to $50 in the event he or she loses the card.

TONY J. CUNHA, dean of the Cal Poly school of agriculture, has received the Gamma Sigma Delta (GSD) international award for distinguished service to agriculture. He is the first Californian to receive the award.

He is an expert in animal nutrition and has written more than 1,120 professional and scientific articles. He has also co-authored or contributed to 14 books. He is working on a book, "Horse Feeding and Nutrition."

Cunha received the Morrison Award for distinguished research in nutrition from the American Society of Animal Science in 1968. He was appointed dean of Cal Poly's school of agriculture Sept. 1, 1975.

JOAN MCNAMARA, editor of the Jaycette Gazette, is the recipient of the "Project of the Year" award from the state Jaycees.

During the year she published a monthly edition of the group's activities in addition to handling all the flyers for the Jaycee group.

She is married to Bill McNamara, manager of Pomona Valley Mortuary.

Another award received by the local chapter was "Sparkette of the Year," received by Jeanette Parr. She will represent the California Jay-C-Ettes at the national convention in June at Seattle.

JACK GESLER, Cal Poly professor of animal science, has been named the school of agriculture's outstanding faculty member for 1977.

A member of the faculty since 1957, he was presented the award by the Cal Poly chapter of Gamma Sigma Delta agriculture scholarship society and an award of merit by the society's national office.

After he joined the Cal Poly faculty, Gesler played a critical role in the planning, design and supervision of the university's meats laboratory. He developed the meat courses for his department and is currently developing a program in meat science for graduate students. He resides in Claremont.

DICK WOODY, manager of the Pomona Firestone Store, has been elected to head the Jaycee organization for 1977-78. A member since 1970, he has served as director, vice president, district governor and national director.

Other Jaycee members elected to the 77-78 board are Bill McNamara, first vice president; Gil Smith, second vice president; Dean Hinkle, secretary; and directors John Forbing, Joe Covarrubias, Kirk Brown, Scott Ambrose, Mike Ferguson and Rick Bracken.

Appointed officers are Gerry Benedict, treasurer, and Lee Goldstein, state director.

TOM DREYER, 1976-77 president of the Pomona Jaycees, has been elected state vice president in charge of metropolitan chapters for 1977-78. Metro chapters are those with 100 or more members.

Dreyer has been a Jaycee member for seven years, and will represent the California metro association at the national convention in June at Seattle, Wash.

BRUCE R. MOREHOUSE, agent for the Foothills District of the Prudential Insurance Co. placed more than $3.4 million of financial protection in 1976 with local families and businesses.

This ranks him among Prudential's top agents in the entire company. The company has presented him with the President's Citation, accorded to only the top agents nationwide. This is the third time that Morehouse has placed and serviced over $1 million of protection in one year. Morehouse started with the firm in 1970. He resides in Upland.

TED TRZYNA of Claremont has been appointed chairman of the Sierra Club's International Committee, which deals with global and international environmental issues.

Trzyna, the club's regional vice president for Southern California for two years, is president of the Center for California Public Affairs, an affiliate of the Claremont Colleges. Before coming to Claremont, he was a foreign service officer in Africa and at the State Department in Washington.

JOHN SPAUN, Citrus College psychology instructor and chairman of the behavorial science department, was chosen as "Mr. Glendora" during the Mr. Glendora Pageant, sponsored by the YWCA of the Foothills.

He was one of nine men nominated for the honor. He was sponsored by Citrus College. Contestants were selected for their contributions to the community and nominated by Glendora merchants, service clubs, the Glendora Ministerial Association and the Jaycees.

Spaun, a Citrus College faculty member since 1962, holds B.S. and M.A. degrees from Michigan State University, where he was a member of the football team. In addition to teaching at Citrus, he works with students in elementary schools in Glendora in a tutorial program. He also serves as a consultant for Health and Medical Care Foundation, an organization of hospitals and convalescent hospitals dealing with the problems of all age groups.

CLIFFORD D. BENNETT has joined Inspiron in Upland as project development engineer.

He has several years of experience in manufacturing engineering, having worked for Los Angeles Die Casting, Inc. in Los Angeles. He received his B.S. degree in industrial engineering from Cal Poly.

At Inspiron, he will be involved in the modification and extension of existing lines. Bennett and his wife and two children live in Diamond Bar. Inspiron is a manufacturer of inhalation therapy equipment and disposable medical products.

They've got the manure

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Greatest Show on Earth may have the answer for your limp lettuce and ragged radishes — exotic manure.

The Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus has an inexhaustible supply of super-rich fertilizer which it is making available to interested farmers and gardeners.

The super rich stuff comes from its lions, tigers, llamas, horses, camels, chimpanzees and 18 elephants, which all combined produce about a half ton of manure each day.

Circus officials must pay hundreds of dollars during each engagement to remove the mountains of manure, so they're more than happy to part with the organic fertilizer.

A circus spokesman said the give away began a few years ago in West Virginia "when a few farmers requested some manure."

"When we played that town again the following year, one fellow came back and showed me the biggest tomato I'd ever seen," he said. "Since then we've been giving it away wherever we go."

Bus routes will be cut

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some bus riders in Long Beach, and the San Fernando and San Gabriel valleys will find themselves waiting longer for fewer buses on weekends and nights after June 19.

The cutbacks have been announced by the Southern California Rapid Transit District as necessary to control the district's $17 million deficit.

The latest route changes, along with ones made earlier this month, bring the RTD deficit to $10 million, officials said.

RTD board member Charles Storing said the reductions in service will affect only lines with low patronage. Night and weekend service suffered the sharpest cuts.

Recording for Blind gets high rating

The Pomona Valley Unit of the Recording for the Blind, Inc., was rated third highest in production in the nation last year although it is the smallest recording studio in the association.

The valley unit, located in McAlister Center on the campus of the Claremont Colleges, has three soundproof booths. Others across the country range from five to 13 booths, according to Mrs. Gisela O'Loughlin, studio director.

However, during the past year, some 77 to 90 local volunteers recorded an average of 461 hours per month for a total of 7,998 hours.

Books recorded by the local volunteers include many textbooks for area college and high school students.

Mrs. O'Loughlin, reporting on her experiences at an annual unit director's meeting at the headquarters, said 600 textbooks are duplicated each day for the master library. She added that student requests during the peak season last year, from July to September, run up to 800 a day.

Mrs. O'Loughlin's talk was a highlight of the annual Volunteer Recognition luncheon of the Pomona Valley Unit at the center.

Mrs. A.E. Stoddard Jr., chairman of the unit, honored Werner Marti, retiring professor of history at Cal Poly Pomona, an adviser of the unit for 20 years.

Awards were presented by Carol Letcher, volunteer hours chairman.

Volunteers recognized were Elda Whitelaw, over 1,300 hours; Helen Coonrod, over 1,000 hours; Carol Letcher, Grace Salbury, 800 hours; Dorothy Downs, E.G. Waterhouse, 700 hours; Ruth Foltz, Ruth Pilling, Jean Shumway, 600 hours; Rose Kelber, Josephine Smith, Marjorie Stoddard, 500 hours.

Edith Adams, Carol Bucey, Jo Anne Chalfant, Rebecca Cross, Ople Flora, Bonnie Johnston, Robert D. Johnston, Gloria Price, Barbara Sargent, Dwight C. Smith, Thelma Stubblebine, Gertrude Tuttle, 400 hours.

Montclair P.D. to make public aware of laws

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

The Montclair Police Department has recognized a need to educate residents on a number of city ordinances that could cost them money if not observed.

"It makes our job easier if the public knows what the law is and observes it because of that knowledge," said Sgt. Russell Smith of the Montclair force.

Smith reported recently the City of Montclair has several city ordinances dealing with public safety and welfare, and the police department is charged with the responsibility of enforcing those ordinances.

"The public isn't aware of all the city ordinances regulating traffic, the driving of an automobile and other vehicles, parking and other matters relating to public safety. Not knowing the law sometimes makes a citizen violate the law. It leaves a bad taste in his mouth if he didn't know and gets a ticket," Smith said.

Although ignorance of the law is no excuse, Smith said that an educational program is essential to good public relations between the police and community. With this in mind, he explained the ordinances governing public safety.

The most common is the requirement of licenses for bicycles. Smith explained this has the two-fold purpose of placing controls on recovering stolen bikes in order to get them back to their proper owners and providing a means of identification.

The illegal dumping ordinance is a major problem faced by many municipalities. The law forbids the dumping of garbage, cans, bottles, papers, ashes, refuse, trash, rubbish or combustible waste material upon someone's property.

The ordinance applies to both public and private property, but the major problem stems from people dumping debris on vacant and undeveloped lots. The owner is then forced to cover expenses of removing the debris..

"It's unsightly and costly to the property owner to clean it up," Smith said.

With the popularity of motorcycles, dune buggies and motor bikes, the city encountered a modern problem of individuals riding these vehicles on private property. The city believed that obtaining written permission to ride on private property, usually dirt lots, was not enough to control complaints about noise, dust and pollution. This prompted the adoption of the ordinance that forbids the riding of any vehicle propelled by an internal combustion engine on private property.

It is illegal in Montclair to use the streets for vehicle storage.

"This causes quite a bit of concern. Most cities have a 72-hour ordinance which restricts consecutive parking for three days. Ours is 120 hours or five days. Most of the complaints come from neighbors," Smith said.

He warned that to comply with the law, the vehicle must be removed from the street, not driven above its present location or moved back and forth several feet. The continuously parked vehicle is an "Attractive nuisance" for juveniles and oftentimes prompts malicious mischief, vandalism and stealing.

A policeman can ticket the car or have it towed away at the owner's expense in violation of this ordinance. The exception pertains to emergency circumstances of vacations or home repairs requiring that a vehicle be parked longer than the five days. In these cases, special permits must be obtained from the city to avoid citation.

It's illegal to park a car or vehicle on the streets for the purpose of selling, repairing or washing it. Such uses stimulate problems of interference with traffic flow, disrupting the parking privileges of neighbors, deteriorating the condition and appearance of public streets and creating an unsightly nuisance, Smith said.

This ordinance has proven troublesome because of the sometimes arbitrary enforcement policy and philosophy of each officer. The public's attitude is generally why should one person be cited and another not, Smith said.

"Enforcement becomes a problem because these violations are not excessive. When an officer sees a violation and it's aggravated enough and he issues a citation, then

May be added protection against cancer

Asbestos users required to register

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

New state regulations requiring mandatory registration of employers using asbestos and vinyl chloride are being distributed this week.

The regulations will make California the first state in the nation to require registration of asbestos-using employers. It could provide added protection against cancer to as many as 150,000 workers statewide, health officials believe.

Dr. Fred Ottoboni, chief of the state Health Department's Occupational Cancer Control Unit, described the newly expanded program to prevent job-related cancer at the 24th annual Western Safety Congress in Anaheim this week.

The job-related cancer prevention program is mandated by passage last year of the Occupational Carcinogens Control Act, written by Sen. Arlen Cregorio, D-Menlo Park.

As of July 1, the law provides a $500 penalty on private employers for failing to report use of the regulated substances, a $1,000 fine for a serious violation of safety standards, and a $5,000 fine for repeated violations.

In addition to asbestos and vinyl chloride, the state regulates 14 cancer-causing chemicals, Dr. Ottoboni said.

"Of the approximately 9,900 potential users of the 14 cancer-causing chemicals statewide, we estimate about 6,100 are located in three Southern California counties — Los Angeles, San Diego and Orange," said Dr. Ottoboni.

"This health protection program can prevent cancers 20 years from now. It will be of special interest to workers and employers who earn their livings in the chemical and industrial workplaces so vital to the Southern California economy.

"The U.S. Department of Labor is funding half of the $1.5 million program cost, so the program could well become a model for national action," added the health official.

Bud Worness, owner of Worness Heating and Air Conditioning, 638 W. Holt Ave., Pomona, said today that he has not been notified of the new regulations as yet.

"While I've not seen any recent announcements in the trade journals about the new regulations, employers in the industry have been aware of the dangers from asbestos for many years," Worness said.

He added that while his company used very little asbestos, the product is used extensively in fireproofing of homes and commercial buildings and in ceilings.

"The real danger comes when asbestos is sprayed onto a surface," Worness explained. "It is then vital that these workers wear masks and protective clothing."

Worness said there could be a minimal amount of exposure when an asbestos ceiling is painted. Because the paint is heavier than the asbestos, it has a tendency to flake off, taking some asbestos dust with it.

The new law requires the state to take a leadership role in job-related cancer prevention by identifying additional cancer-causing substances for future regulation.

The law requires the state Health Department to conduct work place inspections to assure that employers are adequately protected against exposure to cancer-causing chemicals and substances.

"The California program," Dr. Ottoboni said, "recognizes that safe, regulated use of dangerous but economically valuable substances is preferable to abolition which could disrupt industry and cause employment shifts.

"Asbestos has been so universally used as a building insulation and fire-retardant material that it is expected to be the most widespread of the currently regulated 16 cancer-causing chemicals and substances in California's economic system."

He said one asbestos industry estimate is that between 100,000 and 135,000 California workers each year are exposed to asbestos fibers at work.

"In view of the fact that asbestos has about 3,000 commercial, industrial and construction uses, we think 150,000 may be nearer the actual figure," added the state representative.

Dr. Ottoboni said the lethal link with vinyl chloride was established by medical experts in 1974 when the deaths of three Kentucky rubber workers after vinyl chloride exposure were traced to a rare liver cancer. Other deaths were subsequently documented by industry researchers.

Asbestos has been identified as a cause of human cancer for a much longer period.

Dr. Abraham J. Selikoff of the Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York documented 427 lung cancer deaths among 2,002 deaths in the 18,000-member Asbestos Workers Union in a 10-year period.

"This lung cancer death rate is far higher than that for non-asbestos working populations," said Dr. Ottoboni.

In San Francisco, Eddie Story, business agent for the Asbestos Workers Union local, has also documented the unusually high number of cancer deaths among union members.

On Jan. 7 of this year, the Asbestos Workers Union, in partnership with the Johns-Manville Corp. and reseachers at the Mount Sinai Medical Center announced the formation of an environmental cancer research center.

The new research center is an outgrowth of a partnership between the participants that goes back to 1968 and represents a milestone in labor-industry-research cooperation to control cancer.

Dr. Ottoboni said employer reporting can be accomplished by sending a letter with information of the cancer-causing substance or chemicals used to the State Division of Industrial Safety, 455 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, 94102.

Police crackdown in Chino results in crime rate drop

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

A 90-day police crackdown on youth vandalism and brutality in Chino resulted in a 29 per cent drop in the crime rate, it was reported Tuesday night.

Chino Police Chief Gerald Doyle told the City Council that a "high profile" approach to law enforcement ordered in February by Mayor Bob McLeod had proven very successful in combating street crime.

"We've had very good results with the high profile program," Doyle said. "During the 90-day period, we were able to decrease crime by 29 per cent."

Homicides were down 67 per cent, according to police statistics. Only one rape occurred during the 90 days, but that was not a decrease from the prior 90-day period.

The number of robberies did not decline.

Assaults were down 7 per cent, however. Burglaries declined 33 per cent, larcenies 35 per cent and car thefts 4 per cent.

"The department's ability to decrease crime by 29 per cent is due to several factors," Doyle explained. "Mainly, the increase in police patrols in the neighborhoods deterred much of the illegal activity."

Other factors included a decrease in crime activity by the local criminal element aware of the "high profile" patrols, gang members committing their crimes outside of the city and the awareness of parents of where their children were and what they were doing.

Chief Doyle said there were a number of other positive spinoffs of the experimental patrols.

Those included arrests of juveniles for curfew violations, which gave parents, police and probation officers a chance to get professional counseling help for problem youths before they had committed more serious offenses, a "safer" feeling among community residents and a decrease in caseloads of police detectives.

One of the problems with the "high profile" program, Doyle explained, was the strain on individual police officers.

Officers have been working numerous overtime hours since the program was initiated and to continue to ask officers to put in extra duty would be unfair, Doyle said.

"The amount of overtime involved, as well as the constant change in scheduling, not only causes fatigue, but also plays havoc with an officer's family life," Doyle continued.

He said morale among police officers had buoyed considerably since the crackdown went into effect.

Doyle was highly complimentary of reserve officers who served during the crackdown. He said they had helped tremendously in relieving fatigue problems among regular officers and in saving the city money.

"The reserves contributed 4,350 hours during the 90-day period. We are indebted to their professional demeanor and assistance," said Doyle.

Interestingly, Doyle's optimistic report led to a minor controversy between the City Council and a private citizen.

Steve Whitman, a Chino parent, lauded the reduction in crime and asked the City Council to go on record in favor of permanently beefing up the police patrols.

Whitman asked Chief Doyle to specify how many new officers he would need to maintain the "high profile" program.

Doyle said he could always use more officers, but that the matter was up to the City Council.

Whitman then appealed directly to Mayor McLeod and other council members to publicly state that they were in favor of more police.

None agreed to do so.

McLeod commented that the "high profile" program had only been a test to see if crime could be reduced and that several factors were involved in the setting of police budgets.

"I think we (on the council) are as much concerned with police protection as any other citizens in Chino," he said.

Whitman said the council had gotten much publicity over the crackdown on crime, but questioned if it would take the matter any further now "if not put on the spot."

Councilwoman Eileen Carter replied, "I don't have to be put on the spot to make a decision." She said she resented some of the implications of Whitman's comments.

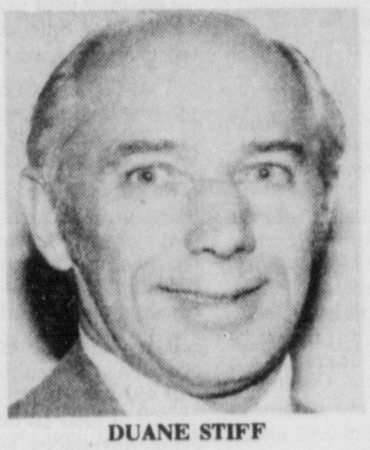
Chino superintendent named



DUANE STIFF

Duane E. Stiff, new superintendent of the Chino school district, said Tuesday there are some "good points and bad points" about the year-round school program.

Stiff, whose appointment to replace Royce Lapp was made official by the school board Tuesday night, declined to be specific about his philosophy or plans regarding Chino's controversial year-round program.

He noted he had "no particular philosophy" on YRS. Stiff indicated he was interested in "whatever works for kids."

Should Stiff prove to have no strong feelings on year-round school, that would be a departure from the philosophy of Lapp, a vocal supporter of YRS.

Asked about a proposed fundamental school program, Stiff said he was "not opposed to that either."

He would not discuss his plans for the Chino district Tuesday, but promised to reveal them at a later date.

School trustees emerged from a brief executive session to confirm the appointment of Stiff, 48, who is now assistant superintendent of the Orange Unified District.

The 48-year-old Stiff will replace Lapp on July 1. Board members said no decision has been made on Lapp's request for reassignment to another certificated position after June 30.

Stiff holds a master's degree from California State University, Sacramento, and is working on a doctorate at United States International University, San Diego.

He previously served as an administrator in the Roseville and El Segundo Unified school districts before coming to the Orange district.

Suit to be filed against auto insurance firms

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors has agreed to file a class action suit against the state's insurance companies to stop "redlining practices."

The board instructed the county counsel to prepare the suit and file it as soon as possible in the Los Angeles Superior Court. Officials expect this to be done within a week.

The motion was unanimous at the request of Supervisor Kenneth Hahn who contends that Los Angeles County "bears the brunt" of the state's insurance charges on automobiles.

He claims some drivers in central Los Angeles pay more than four times as much to insure their cars than those living in other parts of the state.

He charges that many insurance companies "deliberately jack up prices" to Los Angeles motorists, regardless of driving records.

Hahn says that if the county can stop those "redlining practices," Los Angeles could wind up paying 30 per cent less on insurance than it does now.

He wants the insurance companies to set up rates that would be uniform throughout the state.

At present, the county is divided into four insurance districts with central Los Angeles being the highest and Pomona Valley being the lowest. Even so, Hahn claims, motorists in the eastern part of the county pay much less than those who live on the San Bernardino County side.

Despite those claims, the American Insurance Association, spokesman for the insurance industry, contended that the rates are fair.

W. Victor Slevin, vice president of the group, claims rates would go up 48 per cent for some of the state's drivers to offset reductions given to motorists who live in the high risk areas.

Slevin said rates for valley motorists also would be driven up by a uniform state rate.

Books with 'dirty words' creates stir in Chino

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Should school children be reading books with "dirty words" in them?

The issue surfaced at the Chino school board meeting Tuesday night, when a parent of a 10-year-old youngster complained his son made a book report on a paperback he considered "dirty."

James E. Ramalia, whose son attends Marshall Elementary School, handed a copy of the book "Rocky" to board members.

"My kid had to make a book report in school on this," he stated. "The movie made from the book was rated 'R'."

Ramalia indicated his son had chosen the book for the report from paperbacks available at the school. "I don't feel children should have the right to choose these books, especially a 10-year-old. The teacher should screen these books."

Board members asked Ramalia if he had informed the school principal about the book report. Ramalia said he had.

"My youngest child came to his mother and told her about John (the child who read "Rocky") reading a book with dirty words," Ramalia noted. "My wife then brought it to my attention, and I took it to the principal."

Supt. Royce Lapp declared that he was not informed of the problem and doubted if the school principal was. He said books used in the schools are approved by the National Library Association.

Trustee Al McCombs said a number of paperbacks are being purchased, and wondered if the board needed a policy on the books.

Lapp acknowledged paperbacks are purchased on a variety of subjects, but "I can't imagine any administrator in this district defending that kind of language in "Rocky")."

Board chairman P e Vander Poel indicated administrators would investigate a future policy on the books, but the board took no immediate action in the matter.

Taming TV violence

People are getting violent about violence on television.

"It's time for a call to arms," said Michael Rothenberg of the University of Washington Medical School at the recent annual meeting of the American Orthopsychiatric Association. "We need a concerted effort toward major program revisions that are more stimulating and less violent."

The American Medical Association has declared television violence to be "an environmental health risk."

In California, the state medical association has filed a friend-of-the-court brief on behalf of the nine-year-old victim in a rape case. The defendants (all adolescents) are claiming that they were inspired to the act by a similar episode they saw in a television movie.

Television has become "a school of violence and a college for crime," says the association's brief. "It is in the interests of the health of all Americans, especially our children, to hold broadcasters civilly accountable for acts which lead to foreseeable harm."

The National Parent Teachers Association has given the networks notice that it is putting them on six-months' "probation" beginning July 1. If there is no "substantial response" during that time to demands for less TV gore and more diversity and quality in programming, the PTA will consider such alternative courses of action as boycotts of sponsors and local stations, selected test cases to deny license renewals and civil litigation.

While not all researchers are convinced of a direct cause-and-effect relationship between television watching and violent or antisocial behavior, there seems to be general agreement that many children are unable to understand the contexts in which televised acts of violence occur. Nor is there any doubt about the tremendous importance television has come to play in children's lives.

One survey has found that young children watch more than 23 hours of television a week and that teenagers watch nearly 20 — as much time as most of them spend in classrooms and much more time than they spend reading.

"Television is ubiquitous," says the Council for Basic Education. "If kids ever had a frame of reference, they have one now in television, which provides them with the language, the models and the tastes they share with each other. Whether adults like it or not, television is their medium."

Realizing this, some groups are taking a different approach. Rather than attempting to reform either television or children's viewing habits, they are working with what is good about the medium.

For example, "Teachers Guides to Television," which is published twice a year in New York, has launched pilot projects in three cities called Parent Participation TV workshops. Parents come to school to watch a television broadcast with their children. Teachers then serve as moderators of a cross-generation discussion about the program and demonstrate to parents how to use television at home to encourage family communication.

The aim of the workshops is to teach parents to use television not as a babysitter but as a way to open a dialogue with their children, to encourage discussions about values and morals and to stay in touch with their children's feelings.

As the Council for Basic Education points out, the ultimate responsibility for what children watch on television rests with parents. No one is in a better position to provide supervision and guidance.

"Not all commercial television is trash," says the Council, "and even some that is trashy can have positive educational value — if parents will give the interest, the time and the effort sometimes to watch with their children, often to talk with them about whatever they watch."

"Come on, you're not giving me enough brain waves to run the toaster!"

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

Once, all a politician had to do to get elected to public office was to hand out cigars and kiss babies. But today such antiquated methods for winning friends and influencing voters wouldn't even get a candidate elected dog catcher. For in this modern age, voters have finally realized that the ballots they control have tremendous bargaining value. So much value, in fact, that an ambitious California legislator, who will be up for reelection the next time we go to the polls, has introduced a bill which, if it is passed, should guarantee him the vote of millions of workers in this state. — In addition to all the fringe benefits employers now provide their employes, his bill would require those employers to pay for their employes' home and automobile insurance. — And if that bill passes, soon thereafter some enterprising vote seeker will promise to enact legislation requiring employers to pay all the living expenses of their employes from the day they are hired until the day they die — and even then pay for their funerals. That person will undoubtedly be elected president and then be impeached when the employes finally realize he expects them to work in order to secure those benefits.

Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

Tip O'Neill scores high marks

WASHINGTON — Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill, the great grizzly bear of the House, loomed massively behind the marble rostrum. He surveyed the House floor with an imperious eye and rapped his gavel for order. Then he slumped into his throne-like leather chair and, with studied detachment, began leafing through the House calendar.

On the floor below, an Alabama congressman whispered to a colleague, indicating the Speaker: "He's a good ol' boy." It was the ultimate compliment that a Southerner could pay a Boston politician.

During his first four months as Speaker, the bear-hugging, back-slapping O'Neill has won the respect of his colleagues. In the process, he has also emerged as the second most powerful man in Washington.

He is too much of a Boston politician to behave otherwise. His natural environment is a smoke-filled backroom. He enthusiastically contributes to the pollution by blowing out great billows of cigar smoke. His massive bulk always dominates the room, with his lion's mane of white hair the most visible landmark through the smog.

Tip O'Neill is Democrat, Catholic and Irish in that order. He is a tower of affability, full of goodwill and Irish songs. Yet this genial friend of the people has an inner toughness tempered by the rough-and-tumble of Boston politics.

We have talked to two dozen congressional leaders about their new Speaker. To encourage candor, we promised not to identify them. Almost to a man, they praised O'Neill as a strong leader who has taken full charge of the House.

But they had their criticisms, which our reporters, Marc Smolonsky and Jack Mitchell, took up with him during a lengthy interview.

Perhaps the Speaker's greatest weakness, in the opinion of his House colleagues, is that he's too parochial. He is inclined, they say, to put Boston ahead of the nation. "Tip hasn't shown that he can rise above local issues," one colleague put it.

O'Neill shrugged off the criticism. "Every Member of Congress looks out for the economic interests of his home district," he snorted. "But," he insisted, "I'm a national legislator and always have been."

Others complained about O'Neill's political style. "He'll never escape the vestiges of his Boston political background," said one congressman. The Speaker conceded that the characterization was accurate but claimed his Boston political training was his greatest strength.

"I'm a door-opener," he said. "That's my life-style." His backroom manner, his ability to strike a deal, his give-and-take operation — these were the secrets of his success, he said.

Despite O'Neill's long legislative experience going back 41 years to the Massachusetts legislature, several congressmen agreed that he doesn't have a strong grasp of the issues. "He's more of a politician than a tactician," explained a Midwestern congressman.

The Speaker conceded that he isn't a "floor legislator" and that he relies upon colleagues with a better technical command of complex legislation. "But," he said, "I'll take to the floor when I have to."

Other House Members accused O'Neill of not being assertive enough at the White House. They charged that he began pushing the president's energy program even before it reached Congress. "Not true," retorted Tip. He began boosting an energy program, he said, before Carter became president.

There have been contrary reports in the press that the Speaker has been overbearing at the White House, that he doesn't get along with the president. O'Neill confessed he had turned down several invitations to dine with Carter at the White House. The Speaker said that he had intended no offense but that White House aides apparently had been upset. He attributed the press reports to them.

He said he actually had "great affection" for Carter. "We're part of the same team, and I'm a team player." As long as Carter is the "leader of our party," said O'Neill, "He's the man I'm going to work with."

Other Democratic colleagues accused the Speaker of being overly accommodating in order not to offend any political faction. "I'm a listener," he replied affably. "That's one of my virtues." But, he cautioned, "I know how to be firm without vaccillating."

There were several complaints about committee assignments. One congressman griped over the appointment of Rep. Thomas "Lud" Ashley, D.-Ohio, as chairman of the new House Energy Committee. "Ashley knows nothing about energy," the legislator grumped.

O'Neill said he wanted a chairman who wouldn't fight for regional energy interests. "I chose Lud Ashley purposely," the Speaker explained. "Everybody defends his own energy interests. I wanted to get away from parochialism. Ashley has no reputation as a parochial energy fighter."

Other congressmen complained that O'Neill permitted too many legislators to choose their own committee assignments. This practice originally left the Judiciary Committee short of members. There was nothing wrong, O'Neill contended, with letting senior members choose their committee preferences.

Despite the criticism, his House colleagues gave Speaker O'Neill a good report card. Most thought he had developed into an effective Speaker. One put it even stronger. "Tip has the potential," he said, "to become the best Speaker we've ever had."

SLICK MOVE — Guam Oil and Refining has made about $30 million by peddling a mixture that is 48 per cent kerosene and naptha as "virgin crude oil."

To obtain the blessing of the Federal Energy Administration, Guam Oil hired Robert Montgomery, the agency's former general counsel. Montgomery, by a strange coincidence, helped set up the very program under which Guam Oil got the $30 million.

Guam Oil received the money in payments from other refiners under an FEA program to equalize the prices refiners must pay for oil. The refiners, of course, merely pass on the extra cost to their customers. But last fall, FEA investigators discovered that Guam Oil was actually selling the mixture of kerosene, naptha and oil and getting payments from refiners, in violation of FEA standards.

Too many bills on same topic

By EARL G. WATERS

Whether by design or because of exasperation, the Senate Judiciary Committee chairman, Al Song, attempted a blow for professionalism in the legislature the other day. After lengthy hearings during which the authors of three competing bills vied for committee approval, Song banged his gavel and told the senators to get together on one bill and come back the next week.

The instant situation is relatively unimportant. It happened that the bills SB 817, 740 and 428 by Senators Robert Presley, Bob Wilson and Newton Russell, all were aimed at punishing those who are using children in pornography. While one would think existing laws adequately provide for child abuse in any form, apparently the problem is that much of the pornography photographed takes place outside the state's jurisdiction and the laws seek to crack down on the distributors and exhibitors who profit from it within the state.

In any event the authors, while agreed on the need for more laws to cope with the problem, have definite differences as to the provisions necessary to do the job and withstand court tests. At least that seems to be the motivation for each fighting for his version rather than joining forces. Behind it, unfortunately, it also seems there is a slight case of pride of authorship and the desire to win the credit with the public for being "the solon who stamped out child pornography."

One may well wonder why Song didn't take possession of the three bills and advise the authors that the committee would redraft them into a single bill.

That is more along the lines on which Congress operates, with the various bills being taken in hand by the committees which eventually deal with the subject in an overall package, if at all.

But, despite the continuing claims of the membership to being professionals, the legislature has yet to come to that system. Instead, each member is free to propose law changes on any and all subjects and retain control over the individual bill. Amendments offered by others may be rejected by the author.

It is this pride of authorship, inspired in part by the prospects of headlines and other credits which hopefully will aid in re-election, which is responsible for literally dozens of bills all dealing with the same subject not only being introduced but being passed through the entire legislative process.

Sometimes, but not always, a committee chairman will hold all bills on the same subject for a single committee hearing. That doesn't assure the best one emerging or only one emerging.

A good illustration of the problem it creates for the entire legislature is the present battle over property tax relief. There have been at least a dozen major bills dealing with the problem introduced in each house and numerous others which touch upon the issue and others that affect whatever may be done.

For the most part these are each receiving separate treatment by the committees. Some will fail in committee because of disagreement on some of the provisions but not all. Others will be moved along despite having some flaws or provisions not acceptable to the majority. Some of the objectionable provisions may be amended out by the entire Assembly or Senate or in a subsequent conference committee.

Much of the burden for all could be eliminated if the committees would take all bills on a given subject under consideration and draft a measure which extracted the best features, or the most politically acceptable provisions, of the various proposals.

Farm subsidies are a crop

Farming is an up-and down business at best, and city slickers never seem to get the hang of it. Drought and locusts we can understand, but . . . all those subsidies and price supports and "set-aside" plans?

Why, for instance, does the most critical industry in the country always need propping up?

Why do farmers always seem to have the shorts?

And why is "farm problem" always spoken of as one word?

Why, when disaster strikes the crops — forcing up prices for whatever got through the floods, boll weevils, or whatever — do farmers carry on over the "bad" year? (Not all of them, of course. When one farmer is wiped out, it's the one who isn't who makes the money.)

But why do they chortle over a bumper harvest when they know the surplus means drastically lower prices for them?

Sometimes it's too much even for the bankers, who are as important to any farmer as fertilizer. It takes green to grow green, you know.

In their big glass boxes in the city, the money boys puzzle over the farm news and the weather reports and the crop forecasts (which change faster than Mr. Carter's mind). And the only thing they can say for sure is that the world of farm economics is "mad, mad, mad."

It's not the kind of world they can pin down in charts and graphs and neat little boxes. Especially when Farmer Brown refuses to pay attention to what they call the basic laws of economics.

Here he is, complaining that his income is shriveling up faster than corn in blistering summer heat because last year's harvest was so plentiful it drove prices down.

But then what does he do? He turns around and plants even bigger crops this year, which, barring hail or pestilence, will probably make prices even lower. Crazy, right?

Right, say the experts at New York Citibank. Crazy like a fox.

Sure, they admit strange things are happening down on the farm. Although overall prices have been going up for five months now, key commodities like steer, hogs, sugar and corn are on a downward trend. (Not soybeans; soybeans are going wild.)

Not only that, inflations grows in the north forty as fast as anywhere else. Costs of tractors, reapers, seed, labor and fertilzer are the highest they've ever been, and farmers' purchasing power has shrunk 10 per cent in the past four or five years.

With all these troubles, any reasonable businessman would slow down production to create a shortage and push prices back up. Not Farmer Brown. He's in the middle of another planting binge.

To city folks, this might look like pure cussedness. But farmers figure the guvmint is going to slap on crop curbs any season now, and they're going for the biggest acreage allotment they can swing.

Agriculture Secretary Bergland is worried that they might be sowing big trouble along with their seed. He wants them to think more about future demand and new market alternatives than how to beat any possible crop curbs.

His warnings were drowned out in the roar of tractors turning up soil for 16 different crops on 228 million acres. If nature cooperates, that will put this year's harvest over the record-breaker of 1975.

It will also drive prices down. And start farmers complaining.

Enter the great reaper — Uncle Sam. He's the one who (through subsdies, higher target prices and favorable loan rates) makes a "bad" year good.

Already he's helped out with a stand-by set-aside program to pay farmers more for growing less . . . extended the loan program for wheat and rice . . . boosted the support of milk prices 9 per cent . . . and set up a grain reserve plan to absorb surplus wheat and rice.

Under the grain deal, farmers can get cheap loans from the government by using their crops as collateral and storing them for up to three years. And Uncle Sam pays the storage — in advance.

Then, when the price is right, they pay off the loan, sell the grain and keep the earned storage costs. (Now, who's crazy?)

Then there's the president's new "program for all seasons," a four-year bill that gives farmers up to $2 billion a year in income support. It wasn't that high to begin with. Mr. Carter had hoped to squeak by with $935 million.

But farmers screamed that his target price and loan levels were too low and reminded him of his campaign promise to improve their "profitability." He came around.

Like they say in the song: how you gonna keep 'em away from the farm . . . after they've seen the subsidies?

Berry's world

"OK! Who left the TV set on? You wouldn't do that if Jimmy Carter was around here!"

Ann Landers

Ode to the Eppie-Curean

Dear Ann: Oh Yuck! Not only do you defend the practice of asking for a "taste" from the plate of a fellow diner, you make those of us who do not agree sound like anti-social creeps. I wrote this poem for you:

ODE TO THE EPPIE-CUREAN

There's a habit that I hate:
Swiping morsels off the plate
By friendly folks who only want to share
Their streptococci, my eclair.
"Gimme a taste, gimme a lick."
Those gregarious people sure are quick!
I've barely time to thank the Lord —
My lunch becomes their smorgasbord.
If they're so happy, so well adjusted,
The kind of people to be trusted,
How come they always seem to feel
There's something special about my meal? — Take The Whole Thing In Colorado

Dear Take: Your meter is a little off, but the idea is what counts. I confess I received a lot more flak on this subject than I expected. Here's another one:

Dear Ann Landers: So you think it's a sign of affection to ask for a taste of someone's food? You further believe it's a sign of generosity to give a taste. Well, I resent being asked and I know why.

When I was a very young child I had no rights whatsoever. I came from a large family and physical space and personal privacy were not available to me.

Only when I left home did I enjoy having space and objects that were my very own. These privileges mean a great deal to me. This is why I resent it when someone asks for a taste. I feel they are encroaching on my property.

I wouldn't dream of asking for a taste of food from someone else's plate. I am aware that they may have had to fight for their "very own plate," the way I had to fight for mine. — Dilly Dolly Of Dayton

Dear Dolly: Little did I realize that this tasting business was going to end up with poetry and case histories. But I thank you ALL for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I don't know how to say this but I hope you will reword the language and make it fit for the paper.

A friend of mine whose husband owns a health food store told me that sex is good for a person if he or she wants to lose weight. She said every sex act burns up 100 calories. True or false? — Could Lose Ten Pounds

Dear Could: Any physical activity that requires exertion burns up calories. I wouldn't put a number on it, since some people are less energetic than others. But there is some truth in the statement.

CONFIDENTIAL to Must Know if It's Worth $12.50: Yes, the book "You Can Fight Cancer and Win," by Jane Brody, is well worth the money — written in language everyone can understand. It will save many lives.

Maybe yours.

Dr. Miller

To each his own fleas

DEAR DR. MILLER: This is going to be a scratching year. I can tell because my dog, my cat, and now even Whitey, my rat, have fleas. I'm getting rid of their fleas, I think, but I'm just wondering if they each have their own kind of flea or if they all get mixed up. I'm also wondering which ones might bite me. One of them already is, but I don't know which. Itchy, itchy! — I.B.

DEAR I.B.: Cats, dogs and humans all have their own fleas, yet any of these may attack any of the other species. The rat flea, most commonly found on wild rodents, is of particular concern since it's the flea that most commonly carries bubonic plague. This is not a particular hazard in domestic rodents, however. Odds are all your household members are infested by one species of flea.

Your veterinarian could prescribe a safe, effective approach for coping with the culprits, whether they be on fur, floor or elsewhere.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We're considering constructing an indoor/outdoor aviary for our canaries. We would build it right into a window frame. Would the canaries really enjoy such a setup, or would it be worth the trouble? Are they strictly indoor birds? We are aware that if we do this we have to acclimate them gradually to the change of temperature and all that. — P.D.

DEAR P.D.: No birds are strictly indoor birds, and canaries certainly would enjoy an outdoor aviary provided it was suitably protected from excessive moisture, drastic temperature changes and drafts. Your indoor/outdoor arrangement would sound like the best of both worlds, however it will take some astute engineering to avoid both drafts and extreme temperature changes with such a setup.

DEAR DR. MILLER: In the heavily wooded gully behind our house there've been a lot of busy birds raising young, and I'm just curious as to which parents feed those hatchlings first. — T.E.

DEAR T.E.: The female feeds the hatchlings first since she's most often the first to know that hatching has occurred. Once the male discovers the newborn, he wastes no time in gathering grub for them, too. Not infrequently, he'll have gathered food and be back at the nest feeding them within a few minutes.

By Bernice Bede Osol
For Thursday, May 26, 1977
Your Birthday, May 26, 1977

Something extraordinary, but highly beneficial, may occur in your work or career this year. It will happen fast, so keep on your toes!

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Things should go favorably today, but some difficulties will surface. Trying to find shortcuts to make them easier would only create confusion.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Management is definitely not your long suit today. This applies not only to what you have, but to resources of others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't be wishy-washy with those for whom you're responsible today. Being what you feel is extra-firm is preferable to being too lenient.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Letting your intuition and sensitivities dominate your actions today spells trouble. Do everything as logically and rationally as possible.

LEO (July 23-Aug. . 22) Conditions contributing to your material security are mixed today. In some instances you'll gain; in others you'll go down the drain.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's necessary to be an early bird today and take care of things on schedule. The longer you dawdle, the more you minimize your potential.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is definitely not a day to look gift horses in the mouth. Be grateful, not greedy, with persons who put themselves out for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's important to dispense your favors fairly today. If you reward the undeserving, someone's going to be very offended.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You show initial alacrity in going after that which is important to you. Sadly, you're a poor stretch runner. Good things don't come easily.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Joint ventures are good at present, but not quite as spectacular as you may think. Anticipating too much may cause disappointment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It may seem more convenient to let others handle matters for you today, but they can only touch lightly what you could actively accomplish yourself.

To find out more about yourself, send for your copy of Bernice Osol's Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

A racket about tennis courts

By my own personal count, there are 10,000 tennis courts in Claremont. By my own personal experience, every one of them is occupied on a given Saturday morning.

In addition to the thousands of students playing the game, there are college tournaments going on, blokes giving lessons to a lot of kids, middle-aged couples having their once-a-week frolic in the sun (counting every game won like a miser's hoard), and aging physicians and real estate salesmen huffing and puffing from baseline to net. It's easier to get a handball court at the Pomona YMCA than to find an empty tennis court in Claremont on a sunny Saturday morning.

I was amused, or as amused as anyone can be who is overdrawn at the bank because of his federal income tax, to note that the National Endowment for the Humanities is spending $2,500 for a study of why people are rude on tennis courts. How about a study of people who are rude who can't even GET on a tennis court? Sitting on the embankment beyond the chain link fence, jeering about one player's serve, chortling over another's lousy volley. Never mind the people who are rude on a tennis court, how about a federal grant to study the abrasiveness of people waiting for you to finish your set?

Granted that $2,500 is a mere drop in our multibillion dollar budget, still Congress ought to keep its nose out of our personal tennis vendettas ans spend the money (OUR money) on a bomb or two, or a houseboat on the Potomac. Why are people rude to each other on the tennis court? It doesn't need a federal grant to learn that they are rude because the other couple is beating them. Has the Senator ever double faulted on set point?

The federal funds (lovely phrase) were given to Arlington County, Va., which wanted to determine why some players hog the courts and why others become frustrated when they have to wait. My regular quartet drives first to the Pomona College women's courts — all full and booked until noon. Over to the Pomona men's courts, tournament with Redlands. Up to Claremont Men's College — full up. On to Scripps — full, and people waiting. The Mallow's Park court is occupied by two bearded young giants in bluejeans, lumbering about like grizzly bears. Two elderly couples are patting the ball back and forth at Memorial Park. On to the high school courts — tournament. Cahuilla Park courts full. I have used most of a tank of gas criss-crossing Claremont in search of an empty tennis court. By the time we finally stumble across one, somehow, somewhere, I am too exhausted to play my best game.

Arlington County is going to hire a professor of ethics, possibly one with a good first serve; a professor of philosophy, who will undoubtedly have a weak backhand, and a professor of sociology noted for his overhead smashes. They will survey some 300 tennis players on their attitudes toward local tennis regulations. Sure glad I put in a year of grueling 40-hour weeks last year so I could contribute my tithe to the feds to find out why Virginia tennis players get surly when they can't find an open court. That 300 tennis players is just about the number lined up ahead of me waiting for a court in Claremont.

The survey will not add a cubit to man's knowledge: "I get very impatient when I have to wait." "The babysitter can't be there all morning." "It's the only time of the week I get to play." "The Blakes always get there early and hog the court." "Etc."

Personally I think more good would be done with that $2,500 of OUR money by buying tennis balls and distributing them to hopeful players throughout the nation. They could spend their Saturday mornings hitting them against the garage door.

Dr. Lamb

What is hematocrit hemoglobin?

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you tell me anything about hematocrit hemoglobin? They didn't tell me much in the hospital and I would like to know more.

DEAR READER — Those are two different terms. The hematocrit is really an expression of what percentage of your blood is from blood cells and how much is fluid. The tube of blood is placed in a centrifuge and the cells are spun to the bottom of the tube. By measuring the column of blood cells and the total volume in the tube the per cent of cells can be stated.

If a person's hematocrit is 46 per cent that means 46 per cent of the volume of the blood is made up of blood cells. If a person loses blood as from a hemorrhage, the fluid will be replaced inside the blood vessels but the blood cells take longer to be manufactured. As a result the hematocrit will fall. A low hematocrit means a decreased amount of blood cells and you may see this in an anemia.

The hemoglobin refers to the amount of hemoglobin in your blood. Each red blood cell contains hemoglobin in order to transport oxygen and carbon dioxide. Hemoglobin is a complex protein containing iron. If you don't have enough iron in your system your hemoglobin will fall. So having enough red blood cells isn't enough. The cells must also contain adequate amounts of hemoglobin.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-3, Understanding the Anemias, so you can get a better idea about your blood, the measurements and general principles of anemia. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Just send our request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Our grandson just recovered from an illness called erysipelas. He lives in another state and his mother said he was quite ill and in the hospital. Also that a recurrence of the disease was common. He belongs to the swimming team in his high school. Did he get this disease from swimming? If not, what should he avoid so he will not get sick again?

DEAR READER — Erysipelas is not a very common disease. It is caused by streptococcal bacteria invading the skin. The same bacteria may be found in the mouth and throat area before the erysipelas occurs. The type of streptococcal infection is usually different from the type involved in "strep throat."

The streptococcal organisms invade a break in the skin. That is why it may follow an injury or has been known to follow surgery. The skin becomes red and swollen from the inflammation. The inflamed area is raised so that the edges of the area of involvement are raised and clearly separated from the uninvolved area of skin.

Because it is an infection the patient is commonly ill with a fever — which may be 104 to 105 degrees F. It is treated with antibiotics, commonly penicillin.

A person has to have both the streptococcal organisms on the skin and an injury to develop erysipelas. Unless your grandson injures himself during swimming it is not likely to be the reason for his illness. The lesions are usually on the face although they can occur any place on the body. The disease more commonly strikes young children or infants and middle-aged persons rather than high school age of your grandson.

What people say

"I find that people deal with me as if I don't have needs like theirs. As if I never get lonely or scared or confused . . . I find it's really hard not to live my life for what other people expect of me." —Actress Candice Bergen, in a recent interview.

"I can think of a lot of dinner parties where I wish I had brought a book . . . in my family, we were always encouraged to read as much as possible."

—Sen. Edward Kennedy, on Amy Carter's practice of bringing books to dinner parties.

Ball and chain, lord and master

Our Love and War man does not approve of the husband who refers to his wife as "the ball and chain." Nor does he endorse the wife who speaks of her husband as "my lord and master." Such little ironies are almost always delivered behind the back, virtually never face to face, tut tut. When matrimonial mates talk sarcastically about each other to third parties, he says, that's a positive sign there's a serious leak in their bucket.

Do you know what turned the candy bar industry into a giant? The Great Depression. Millions of people with almost no money then learned they could make a nickel piece of chocolate with peanuts served as a whole lunch.

It has been prescribed to some insominacs that they can bring on sleep by soaking their wrists in ice water just before bedtime.

ARTIFICIAL LEG

Q. "Does anybody know who wore the first artificial leg?"

A. The fellow's name remains a mystery, but he lived in Italy about 300 B.C. Sometime back that leg of wood and bronze was found attached to a skeleton, the earliest of its kind discovered.

Q. "Hereditary baldness in men almost invariably produces a sort of horseshoe effect. How does it show up in women?"

A. Either across the front of the head or at the tip of the crown.

Can you conjure up the picture of a termite five inches long and an inch and a half wide? Such a one was found in Africa. A queen, that termite. Her colony lived in a hill they'd built which was 30 feet high.

SHORT MEN

Still much discussed is that ancient claim that some short men fight so hard to overcome their lack of length that they wind up doing big things to make themselves famous. "Nonsense!" says a client, "other than Napoleon, name just one!" All right. Alexander the Great. And how about Caesar, Nelson, Mozart, Balzac, Michelangelo and Churchill, too. Footnote: A bartender of considerable experience, who never served any of the afore-mentioned, says it's almost invariably the short fellows who start the action in night fights.

Smallest of the blood vessels, the capillaries, each are only about a hundreth of an inch long. Yet if all of them in one fully grown human body were placed end to end, they'd go around the earth four times.

Jacoby's bridge

Odds favor low spade lead

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

♦ K Q 10
♣ K Q J 8 6 4 3

WEST
♠ K 10 3
♥ 10 8 6 2
♦ 9 6 4

EAST
♠ A 9
♥ 9 7 5 4 3
♦ 8 7 5 2
♣ A 10

SOUTH
♠ Q J 8 7 6 5 4
♥ A Q
♦ A J 3
♣ 5

North-South vulnerable

West	North	East	South
	1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	2 ♣	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — 2 ♥

South wins the heart lead in dummy, leads the deuce of trumps and covers East's nine with the jack.

West takes the trick with the king and leads a second heart. South wins and must decide whether to lead the queen or a low spade.

The queen will be the winning play if East was dealt 10-9 doubleton. The low spade will work if East had been dealt ace-nine or had falsecarded from 10-9-3.

Neither play will work against a 4-1 break or if East held ace-10-nine.

Now, let's look at restricted choice. With both ace and king, West might well have won with the ace so it is more likely that East does hold the ace. With both 10 and nine East might well have played the 10 so it is more likely that West will now hold the 10. Hence, restricted choice applies to both defenders. In addition, there is that possible false card so the odds are overwhelmingly in favor of leading the low spade.

Ask the Jacobys

A Nebraska reader asks what we bid as dealer with:

♠ x x ♥ A Q x x ♦ Q x x ♣ A Q x x.

We open one club. Will rebid one heart after a diamond response, raise one heart to two and bid one notrump if the response is one spade.

Booklet tells how to cope with Down Syndrome

A new booklet that explains Down Syndrome in terms understandable to everyone has been published as a joint venture between the Los Angeles County Chapter of the March of Dimes, Martin Luther King Jr. General Hospital in Los Angeles and the Charles R. Drew Postgraduate Medical School.

The booklet entitled, "My Child Has Down Syndrome," is directed to parents of children born with the condition and is available in Spanish as well as English.

Down Syndrome, once called mongolism, is a condition characterized by certain physical features and is one of the most common causes of mental retardation.

Although the underlying causes of the condition are unknown, an extra chromosome is always present in the afflicted child's genes.

Forty-six chromosomes — 23 pairs — comprise each cell in the average human. A baby receives 23 chromosomes each from the father and the mother.

A child with Down Syndrome has an extra chromosome in one of its pairs, making a total of 47 chromosones.

The booklet is the outgrowth of a one-year field project in which Anita Gallegos of the March of Dimes along with doctors, health educators and social workers from Martin Luther King Jr. General Hospital, made personal visits to the families of children born with Down Syndrome.

After the doctor had explained the child's condition to the family, the team asked the family what they would have wanted to know about their child earlier. They also asked what they would like other parents to know about Down Syndrome.

According to Dr. Stanley Handmaker, director of the Medical Genetics Division of the Department of Family Medicine at Martin Luther King Jr. General Hospital, the booklet provides information the doctor doesn't necessarily tell the parent of a child with Down Syndrome.

"It relates to feelings and attitudes of the family," he said, "and it provides hope and encouragement."

The booklet answers, straight-forwardly, the questions most commonly asked in the field study, such as: "What do we tell other people is wrong with our child?," "Is Down Syndrome hereditary?," "Was it my fault?" and "What can I do to help my child?"

Family attitudes toward the child with Down Syndrome plays an important part in the child's development, Dr. Handmaker said.

Often feelings of jealousy occur among other siblings because of the increased attention towards the child with the condition, but when the family understands the problem and the siblings realize they, too, are loved, there can be a healthy home life.

Rodney Johnson of Compton is a good example.

The alert and active 3-year-old is the youngest in a family of five children.

His mother, Mrs. Lessie Johnson, delivered him at Martin Luther King Jr. General Hospital and has utilized the hospital's counseling and pre-school programs.

Rodney's older brothers and sisters treat him "like any normal baby," Mrs. Johnson said.

Because of the happy home atmosphere and the stimulation he receives from his family, Rodney began walking at the age of 14 months, the minimum average age for a child with the condition to complete the accomplishment.

Single copies of "My Child Has Down Syndrome" are available to parents of children with the condition, without charge, by telephoning the Department of Family Medicine, Martin Luther King, Jr. General Hospital, at (213) 603-4968.

Copies are available to those in the medical profession or in large quantities, at a nominal charge, by telephoning the March of Dimes, at (213) 663-3985.

CONDITION EXPLAINED — Rodney Johnson, 3, a victim of Down Syndrome, plays happily under the supervision of Dr. Stanley Handmaker, director of Medical Genetics Division at Martin Luther King Jr. General Hospital, and his mother, Mrs. Lessie Johnson, who assisted in writing a new booklet for parents of Down Syndrome youngsters.

Another Red spy booked?

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West Germany, a "playground for spies," has produced another alleged Communist agent — this time the head of the national detectives federation.

Rolf Grunert, 51, chief inspector for the Hamburg police department whose federation also includes West German intelligence agents, is the latest in a series of prominent Germans involved in spy scandals.

Grunert's arrest last weekend attracted attention because of his position, but officials say nearly 1,000 other spies surface every year in West Germany. There was no estimate of how many others complete their assignments and are never caught.

"A large number give themselves away," said one official. "Maybe they fulfill two or three missions and their consciences get to them. These are rarely prosecuted."

Although the number of spies in West Germany may run into thousands, only 51 were arrested last year. Thirty-seven others left the country before they could be caught. Prosecutors are reluctant to bring charges against small-time spies without a lot of evidence. The West German government promises leniency to spies who turn themselves in.

The most prominent East German agent caught in recent years was Guenter Guillaume, a longtime aide to Chancellor Willy Brandt. Guillaume confessed in 1974 and was sent to prison. Brandt resigned.

Last year a former official of the public transportation union, Hans Faltermeir, was sentenced to two years in prison for spying. The German Trade Union Federation's chief legislative lobbyist, Walter Boehm, was arrested for spying two years ago but was acquitted.

Earlier this month, a secretary in Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's office was among four persons arrested for spying.

West Germany became a haven for spies after World War II, when the Soviet and NATO armies squared off across the Iron Curtain. The concentration of military forces and West Germany's advanced industry make it a prime intelligence target, and the flow of refugees from the East gives Soviet bloc spy services easy access to the country.

Officials say most of the spies work for East Germany, followed by the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia.

"They have a vast number of operations, obviously, in West Germany," one Western official said of the East German network. "First of all, there is a common language and culture" between East and West Germans.

"There was a large immigration after the war, and there are still enough people coming that MFRS (Ministry for State Security) can put someone among them," he said.

Thousands of West Germans also have friends and relatives in East Germany and may be influenced to do "small favors" for guarantees of their safety, he said.

The head of West Germany's internal security agency estimated last year that one out of every three diplomats assigned to

Long wait for plush LaGonda

NEW YORK (AP) — A retired Phoenix chemical engineer liked it and ordered one for his wife.

Two are reportedly on order for the shah of Iran.

But the garage of a Saudi Arabian oil potentate will be the best equipped, with no less than half-a-dozen.

All three buyers must be patient, however, because the $75,000 Lagondas they have ordered will not be available until Britain's Aston Martin plant begins delivery — late this year in the United Kingdom and a year later in the United States.

All the buyer can do for the moment is sign an order for a Lagonda and make an $10,000 down payment — as 108 have done to date.

But as a reward for patience, the new owner will eventually be able to slip into the sumptuous interior of the car's handcrafted aluminum body, sink into the luxurious leather upholstery and push the memory button to adjust the driver's seat to precise, preset specifications.

What looks like a wall-to-wall black plastic panel in place of the conventional dashboard will then light up like an oversized electronic calculator. It will display a welter of information in both digital and graphic form, revealing the performance of "the world's most luxurious car."

That last superlative was supplied by Peter Sprague, 38, cochairman of Aston Martin Lagonda Ltd., as he stopped briefly at his Sutton Square home here after displaying the only prototype of the Lagonda, valued at $400,000, at the recent Los Angeles Automobile Show.

The sleek four-door car cruises comfortably at 140 miles per hour if the driver finds himself on the Salt Flats or alone on a British superhighway.

The mass production plan for the Lagonda calls for four or five cars per week to roll out of the plant in Newport Pagnell, Buckinghamshire, assuring a buyer of that exclusive feeling. He'll seldom, if ever, see a car just like his own.

Along with 16 warning lights, the panel includes pushbuttons that instantly convert speed from miles to kilometers per hour and vice versa. There's an electronic display showing average speed and fuel consumption, combined with a current speed and instantaneous fuel consumption reading. There's also an elapsed time and distance read-out.

The car has pushbutton controls for engine instructions, including the setting of a prescribed speed to be maintained regardless of grade.

Electronics of the sort used in the Lagonda are made possible by the microprocessor, the so-called "computer on a chip." These minicomputers — the size of a thumbnail — made their first commerical appearances in video games, digital clocks and watches and some of the new small electronic calculators. They are also showing up in home appliances.

Detroit auto manufacturers say they expect to use microprocessors in their cars more and more in the future, but no American car today comes close to have the electronic gadgetry of the Lagonda.

Since only a prototype Lagonda exists, no mileage figures are available for the car. The manfacturers say it should get good mileage because of it aerodynamic design.

Sprague plans to drive the prototype to the Motor City later this year after an anticipated September debut at Manhattan's Wide World of Cars, which is to be the distributor here.

"It will be a lot of fun to see their reaction," he said of the Detroit auto makers. "It's the highest-performance, four-door car in the world. I predict that two-thirds of the electronics in the Lagonda will show up in Detroit cars in the 1980s.

"The kind of person who buys the Lagonda is the kind intrigued by new things and wants to be among the first to use them," he said, predicting that mass production eventually would lower the price, as it did with digital watches.

FBI sets rules for probing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI doesn't want its agents to be prudish on pornography investigations, and that's straight out of the bureau rulebook.

"The bureau must take a common sense view in these obscene matter cases, not a prudish one," says the four-volume manual of instructions for FBI agents.

The discussion of obscenity investigations is from the bureau's 970-page rulebook, a carefully protected secret until Justice Department and FBI officials concluded that the federal Freedom of Information Act required that much of it must be made public.

On pornography investigations, agents should stay away from "pin-up pictures, art poses, nudist photographs or magazines, parlor novelties or other exhibits obviously not obscene or which are of highly questionable obscenity," the manual continues. Instead, agents should concentrate on obvious hard-core pornographic material.

While FBI policy on pornography was explicit about what could be considered pornographic, other sections were not disclosed for fear public release would give away too many secrets to criminals.

The manual generally is broken down into sections dealing with each of the crimes the bureau is empowered to investigate, ranging from espionage to transporting defective refrigerators.

Each section begins with a statement of applicable federal laws and court decisions, then describes investigating procedures. Many of the "how to do it" instructions are censored from copies made public.

For example, the entire "how to" sections for organized crime and espionage investigations are deleted.

But the manual offers new insights about general bureau policies.

It repeatedly cautions agents to protect individual rights. In the manual's first line agents are told, "Fundamental to all investigations by the FBI is the need to protect the constitutional rights of any individual while still thoroughly and expeditiously discharging those responsibilities with which it is charged by statute and directives of the President and the attorney general."

The section on investigating threats to national security begins with this warning: "Under no circumstances is an investigation conducted of an individual on the basis that such individual supports unpopular causes or opposes government policies."

The section on investigating "black extremists, Klan and white hate extremists, and American Indian extremists" lists restrictions developed by the Justice Department a year ago to prevent harassing and disruptive tactics used by the bureau against those groups when J. Edgar Hoover was FBI director.

Many rules governing informers were deleted, but one notes that informers are not immune from prosecution if they violate the law.

The manual gives detailed instructions for investigating applicants for government jobs and candidates for presidential appointments. In most cases, agents must question the applicant's present and former neighbors but potential Cabinet nominees are not subjected to that scrutiny unless the evidence shows some strong reason for doing it.

Neighborhood checks on other "prominent persons" cannot be made without specific approval from headquarters.

Home fires

Residential fires accounted for more than 70 per cent of the 1.27 million building fires and 34 per cent of the $3.26 billion lost in building fires in 1974, reports the Insurance Information Institute.

In Montclair

Stater Bros. opens new market

With continued growth, Stater Bros. announces the opening of a new market in Montclair, located at 9575 Central Ave. This is the third store opened in 1977 and the 69th store of the Stater Bros. Market chain in Southern California.

Formal ribbon-cutting ceremonies were held with Montclair Chamber of Commerce, city and Stater Bros. officials in attendance.

Three days of grand opening festivities were held with savings in all departments on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Visitors to the new Stater Bros Market were greeted with refreshments, and children were given balloons.

The new market was designed to bring the public the finest in supermarket service at the lowest prices. More than 26,000 square feet of floor space feature the most advanced designs in merchandising equipment and fixtures. Easier selection of quality foods is assured with the most modern refrigeration equipment in the meat, dairy, delicatessen, and produce departments. Personalized customer meat service, as well as prepackaged meats, is offered in the meat department together with a value selection of USDA quality meats, plus specially selected Stater Bros. certified beef.

Complete shopping convenience is found in the many special non-food departments and the large health and beauty aids department.

Dave Schubert is manager of the new Stater Bros. market in Montclair.

Broadway has new manager in Montclair

Peg J Lilly has been named manager of the Broadway department store at the Montclair Plaza.

She will succeed Michael M. Palenchar Jr., who was named as senior personnel manager for Broadway.

During her 11 years with Broadway, the new Montclair store manager has been a buyer, divisional sales manager and store manager for the Broadway Wilshire.

Active in the Pasadena community, she is a member of the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce board of directors, American Red Cross, Planned Parenthood, Disabled American Veterans, Sugar Ray Robinson youth organization, Zonta, an international women's service organization, and Scripps Home, a non-profit organization for senior citizens.

She is a graduate of Texas Christian College and did advanced studies at Columbia University. She resides in San Fernando Valley.

In his new job, Palenchar will be responsible for the nearly 3,000 employes of Broadway's service building. This includes all buying, accounting and warehouse personnel.

During his five years with Broadway, he has held a number of positions in merchandising and operations. He received a degree from Cal State Los Angeles and his undergraduate degree at UCLA.

Palenchar and his wife, Pamela, reside in Hacienda Heights. They have one daughter.

Radical mastectomy no more beneficial than simple kind

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radical mastectomy for breast cancer does not offer any greater benefit to the patient than simple mastectomy, according to a major new study of surgery reported Monday.

"In the aggregate, radical mastectomy is no more effective than simple surgery in terms of survival experience, and the chances of local or distant recurrence," the report said.

"It does, however, cost more in dollars and hospital stay and does induce more morbidity, more mutilitation and more traumatic psychological adjustment as well as carrying a greater risk of surgical death."

The report on the "Costs, Risks and Benefits of Surgery" was put together by the office of health policy information of the Harvard School of Public Health. It was discussed at a news conference Monday.

The two-year study by 34 contributors from several universities addressed the question of how to get the most out of the limited resources that can be devoted to health care.

The section on the treatment of breast cancer considered several clinical trials in Denmark, England, Scotland and the United States.

"It has not been possible to discriminate any difference in life expectancy to those subjected to radical mastectomy compared to those subjected to simple mastectomy and radiation," said Dr. John D. Bunker of Stanford University, an author of the report.

Radical mastectomies, hysterectomies and tonsillectomies probably will be performed much less often as the evidence about their effectiveness becomes more widely known, said Dr. Howard H. Hiatt, dean of the Harvard School of Public Health.

In breast cancer, about 40 per cent of the women who have the disease die of it, the report said.

Radical mastectomy consists of surgical removal of the primary tumor, the breast, the axillary nodes under the arm and the pectoral muscle. In a simple mastectomy, only the breast is removed.

The study also found that for those women in whom the cancer has not spread to the nodes under the arm, simple removal of the tumor, plus radiation appears to be of equal benefit in terms of survival to radical mastectomy, but with a higher incidence of local recurrence.

Looking at the overall picture, Dr. Benjamin A. Barnes of the Harvard Medical School said much of the rising costs of medical care results from the use of advanced technology.

"And we just don't know how effective some of these procedures are," he said, referring to such techniques as computerized x-ray machines.

N. California lakes okay for holiday boaters

SACRAMENTO (AP) — There's still plenty of water in most drought-stricken Northern California lakes for the Memorial Day weekend boaters, although the shoreline view may not be as pretty as last year, resort owners and state officials say.

Last year, six major Northern California lakes or reservoirs had 75,000 surface acres. Now they have a total of 50,900.

"That's still plenty of water," said George Reiner of the state Drought Information Center.

"The basic statement for the whole state is reservoirs have gone down hill. Folsom is not as pretty as it would be if the grass was down to the edge," Reiner said.

"Shasta has five portable ramps in operation that have been moved down with the water. Shasta is not as pleasing as it'd be if full," Reiner said. "But that doesn't mean anything to a water skier. The people who rent houseboats are all in business."

Lake resorts took it on the chin last year as waters receded. They are worried that pictures of mud flats instead of brimfull lakes cause vacationers to look elsewhere.

At Lake Tahoe, marina operators are promoting the heaviest boating season in Tahoe history. The 192-square-mile lake has dropped only five feet in two years.

At Shasta Lake, there are 12,000 acres for boating, even though the water has dropped 168 feet below normal.

Recreational use of Shasta Lake dropped 76 per cent to 1.2 million persons in 1976 — a calamity for area businesses, says John Reginato of Shasta Cascade Wonderland Association in Redding.

The association represents a number of lakes in six northeastern counties equal to the size of New England.

Reginato said lake resort businesses learned an expensive lesson last year.

"The fortunate part, as a result of last year, we have been able to handle (the drought) this year. We've got boat ramps that we didn't have. We've got service facilities, the gas and oil and boat rentals, down on the water. We've changed methods of operation to provide services needed."

Five portable boat ramps around Shasta Lake should enable boaters to get on the lake without undue delay, he added.

"The only thing we're really missing up here is the esthetics," Reginato added.

"Once you're on the water, away from the marina, it's an entirely different perspective. There's a wide expanse of water," he said.

Folsom reservoir, down from 6,400 surface acres to 2,900, can handle 1,000 boats a day, a limit imposed by boat ramp access. Before the drought, it could accommodate 2,500 boats daily.

"We can have a near-normal recreation season, taking into account that we won't have as many boats on the lake," says Garth Tanner, manager of the Folsom Lake State Recreation Area.

The last paved ramp for launching boats on Lake Oroville was closed April 21 by the state Department of Parks and Recreation, but Reiner said most sizes of boats can be launched at Forman Creek. The concessionaire said a ramp will be in place at Bidwell Bar by Memorial Day weekend.

Oroville has dropped from 13,000 surface acres to 8,000.

Two lakes that have not been effected much this year are Clear Lake, still about 40,000 surface acres, and Berryessa, 15,300.

Friant is down from 3,800 acres to 2,200.

Reiner said Pardee Reservoir on the Mokelumne River is "100 per cent" recreation closed. Others have restricted services. He urged vacationers to phone in advance to check on conditions.

The state Drought Information Center has a toll free number, 800-952-5530.

More boat traffic has been observed on rivers in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta, which officials attribute to the lower levels of lakes.

Memorial Day weekend camping reservations already have filled up Millerton reservoir, Clear Lake and Silverwood Lake. Oroville and Folsom still had camping spots earlier this week. At Shasta and Trinity, it is first-come, first-serve, and the same rule applies to Whiskeytown, and San Luis, according to Reiner.

Some campers will observe water conservation efforts of park officials, such as water flow restricters and chemical toilets.

Most of the lakes are fishable, some even better than usual because of the drought.

In Southern California, Reiner said Pyramid, Castaic, Silverwood and Perris reservoirs all have recreation. The effect San Diego County's water needs will have on Perris has not been determined, he said.

"Silverwood will be in good shape all year round," he said, because of the state's contracts to continue pumping water to districts in the Antelope Valley.

Ironically, the Salton Sea in the Imperial Valley has been rising, Reiner said, because increased irrigation water from area farms seeps in. Some property owners are upset because they don't want their docks submerged, he added.

Three held in thefts of credit cards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three Alhambra men have been arrested in connection with a major credit card theft ring that has cost credit card companies up to $900,000.

Booked for investigation of mail theft Tuesday were Robert Wild Jr., 25; John Johns, 26, and Donald Sprinkel, 28.

Sheriff's deputies allege that Wild, a postal employe, sorted credit cards out of mail destined for the City of Industry so they could be sold illegally.

Nazi failure ends in jail

After the "Beer Hall Putsch" in 1923, during which the Nazis tried to take over the government of Germany, Hitler was convicted of treason and sentenced to five years in prison. Although his sentence was commuted to eight months, the Nazi Party was outlawed. The Crash of '29 brought him back to power.

MONTGOMERY WARD VISIT THE OPTICAL DEPARTMENT

There's more to soft contacts than meets the eye.

You can tell just by looking at a soft contact lens that it is designed to be comfortable on the delicate surface of the eye. It's flexible and soft, just as its name implies.

But the difference between regular contacts and soft contact lenses goes even deeper than that. Soft contacts actually absorb fluid to become even softer and more comfortable while you're wearing them.

Chances are the Optical Department at Wards can fit you with a pair of soft contacts. Wards has the latest in fitting equipment and contact lenses including bifocal contacts.

So, if you're thinking about contacts, think about the Optical Department at Montgomery Ward.

Local publication wins state award

The California Pioneer Teachers Quarterly Magazine has announced the newsletter of the Pomona Valley East Division of the California Retired Teachers Association has received a state award.

It was among top winners in Division A, from units with membership up to 400.

The east division newsletter is edited by Ferna Dail Doucette with Forrest E. Doucette as associated editor.

The East Valley newsletter was founded in 1965 when Karl W. Kaiser was president of the unit. In 1975, the Pomona Valley Retired Teachers Association divided into east and west. Mrs. Doucette continued as editor of the east division, which serves Claremont, Chino, Ontario, Montclair, Upland, Alta Loma and Cucamonga.

The purpose of the newsletter, she explained, is to bring the overgrowing membership into closer fellowship and understanding.

The award was announced at the state CRTA convention held in Sacramento recently. In the absence of Mrs. Doucette, who is traveling in Spain and England, Mr. Doucette accepted the award.

Others from east division who attended the convention were Gerald F. Litel, president-elect, Chino, and board members Paul Shaddle, Chino, and Ruth Crutchfield and Virginia Coffey, both of Upland.

D.B. homeowner group conducts survey on resort

The Diamond Bar Homeowners Association is conducting a community survey to get residents' opinions on a proposed 29-acre resort.

Warren Dolezal, a San Luis Obispo developer, proposes to develop at the Les Jones Stables an all-weather ski resort with synthetic plastic beads and Astro Turf taking the place of natural snow.

The resort would also include a water slide recreation area, an 118-unit hotel, four restaurants, a discotheque, small movie theater and parking facilities for about 1,100 vehicles.

The developer estimates it will take from three to five years to complete the project.

While the recreational area could provide a tax revenue for Diamond Bar should it incorporate, some residents have questioned the problems associated with congestion that such a development could create.

Copies of the survey are being distributed to Diamond Bar businesses. Residents are asked to fill out the questionnaires and return them to the Diamond Bar Homeowners Association, Inc. P.O. Box 4085, Diamond Bar, 91765.

Immunization clinic slated

A measles, diphtheria-tetnus, and Sabin polio clinic will be held Thursday between 1 and 4:30 p.m. at El Roble Intermediate School multipurpose room in Claremont.

The clinic is open to all Claremont residents between the ages of 1 and 18 years. Each child must be accompanied by an adult, and parent permission slips will be available.

The Claremont school district health services department will be assisted by community volunteer nurses. Recent rulings by the California Department of Health require proof of immunizations or students will not be allowed to attend school.

On campus

Trucks and automobiles were one of the main topics of business at CITRUS COLLEGE board of trustees meeting.

Glen Guldberg, Citrus College dean of vocational education, presented a 12-minute color slide show of the automotive, body and fender and truck and diesel technology departments at the college.

The slide show, prepared by Terry Smith, automotive technology instructor, and Thom Hill, associate theatre manager, is one used by the college to depict the full range of programs and facilities available at Citrus College in this field.

It is primarily shown to high school and junior high school audiences, but it is also available for local service clubs and other organizations.

Board members suggested the slide program be taken to Japan and Hawaii this summer, when the Citrus Singers tour those areas, to show the high quality of vocational education offered in this country.

The board approved Buena Vista Manor, Duarte, as an additional facility to be used by Citrus College vocational nursing students for clinical experiences in the LVN program.

With summer classes at CITRUS COLLEGE set to begin June 20, now is the time to make arrangements to register for both day and evening courses, according to Citrus College Registrar Melanie Dubuc.

Courses include a wide range of subjects, and all offer college credit. Subjects such as basic mountaineering and ecology (students must be in good physical condition, experimental ceramics, introduction to computers and programming, tennis, badminton, foreign languages and typing fundamentals are just a few of the hundreds to be offered in the first six-week summer session which runs from June 20 to July 29. A second, four-week summer session will run from Aug. 1-26.

To register for either day or evening classes, students should first complete an application for admission and obtain a registration appointment card from the college admissions office, located in the administration building. Admission office hours are: Monday-Thursday, 7:30 a.m.-9 p.m. and Friday, 7:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

Registration for summer classes will be held in the admissions office June 7, 8 and 9, from 1 to 8 p.m.

For a complete list of summer courses, or additional information, call (213) 335-0521 or 599-8339.

Mary Elizabeth Artry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Artry, Pomona has graduated from ORAL ROBERTS UNIVERSITY in Tulsa, Okla.

Miss Artry, a 1973 graduate of Pomona High School, received her bachelor of arts degree from ORU in sociology.

While at ORU, she was active as the Souls A'Fire Gospel Choir president, was a resident adviser, and served as an executive secretary for three years. She is listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Apartheid policies for the Republic of South Africa is the first topic in a series of seminars to be held at LA VERNE COLLEGE Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the college chapel.

Sponsored by the La Verne College Young Republican Club, Richard Davis of the press and information office for the government of South Africa and Cedrick Johnson, missionary to South Africa and professor at Fuller Theological Seminary are the speakers. A faculty panel headed by Andria Fletcher, professor of political science, will present questions to the speakers.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend this free event. For further information, persons may contact LVC at 593-3511, ext. 249.

Joe Hearn, of Glendora, a 1975 accounting graduate, will be installed as the first alumnus president of the Phi Kappa Phi academic honorary society at CAL POLY POMONA Saturday at Kellogg West at 6 p.m.

Robert C. Reif, of Diamond Bar, will be installed as vice president. Hearn and Reif were both undergraduate members of the chapter.

Paul F. Weisend, professor of management science and business law at Cal Poly, has served as president of the society since the university chapter was founded in 1974. To be eligible for election to Phi Kappa Phi, a student must achieve a grade point average of 3.6 or better during his junior and senior years in any academic subject area.

The installation officer will be Archie Solberg, executive director of national Phi Kappa Phi and professor emeritus of University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Paul R. McDonald Sr., an authority on government contracts, will speak to the 126 initiates. McDonald is president of the Procurement Association of Covina. He is also an author and lecturer.

Summer session registration at the CHAFFEY COLLEGE Children's Center for student-parents will be from June 6 to June 24.

The registration schedule for returning student-parents is:

-Full time — June 6-June 17, low-income families, and June 13-June 17, moderate-income families.

-Part time — June 13-June 17, low-income families, and June 15-June 17, moderate-income families.

The enrollment period for new students with children is:

-Full time — June 15-June 22, low-income families, and June 20-June 24, moderate-income families.

-Part time — June 20-June 24, low-income families, and June 22-June 24, moderate-income families.

To expedite the enrollment process, new students may pick up initial eligibility forms beginning June 1.

Information on registration procedures, income qualification and study requirements may be obtained by calling Patricia Mohr, Children's Center coordinator. The telephone number is 987-1737, ext. 411.

Community volunteers are needed next fall to conduct art enrichment tours of the CITRUS COLLEGE Art Gallery and to present art appreciation programs to school children.

The art docent program, now in its second year, will be renewed in September. It does not require art background.

Training will include a one-month program in September of four meetings and a continuing once-a-month session with instruction at local museums, including Citrus College Art Gallery. It will also have several lectures from professional artists, films, demonstrations and unique slide presentations.

Carolyn Ramos, art instructor at Citrus College, will supervise the docent program. She is a member of the Los Angeles County Museum of Art Docent Council and has also supervised and trained docents at Rio Honor Community College.

To volunteer or for more information, persons may call Citrus College 599-8339, office of community services.

Men no longer have to prove dependency for Social Security

A widower or a husband can get monthly benefits on his wife's Social Security record without providing dependence on her because of a recent decision by the United States Supreme Court.

Previously a man had to prove he was dependent on his wife to get benefits on her record if she retired, became disabled, or died after working long enough in jobs covered by Social Security. A woman did not have to prove she was dependent on her husband to get benefits on his records.

Starting with payments for March 1977, neither men or women have to prove dependency. Husbands and wives can get reduced Social Security payments starting at age 62 or full payments starting at 65.

Widowers and widows can get payments starting at 60 — or starting at 50 if they're disabled.

Men who believe they may be eligible under the court ruling can get information about applying for benefits by calling or writing any Social Security office, said Lorraine Brannen, district manager in Pomona.

"Social Security payments may be affected by earnings," Mrs. Brannen noted. "You can earn as much as $3,000 in 1977 and still get your full Social Security payment. But over $3,000, Social Security payments are reduced by $1 for each $2 earned.

"That means that if your full Social Security benefit is $225 a month, you can earn over $8,000 for the year before your Social Security payment would be reduced to zero," she said.

"But no matter how much you earn for the year, you can get your full Social Security payment for any month you neither earn over $250 nor do substantial work in your own business," she said.

A man already getting Social Security benefits may also be eligible for payments on his wife's record under the court ruling. "But he can only be paid an amount equal to the higher benefit — not both benefits," she said.

LOIS BOHNSAK

Award to 'special person'

Mrs. Lois Bohnsak of 2579 Chestnut St., Pomona, has been presented a "Very Special Person Award" by the Pomona PTA Council in honor of the California State PTA's 50th anniversary.

The award recognizes outstanding service to the PTA. Only one was presented by each PTA council in the state. This is the first year for this award.

Mrs. Bohnsak, long active in PTA in Pomona, served a year as president of the PTA unit at Simons Junior High School and two years as president of the PTA unit at Philadelphia Elementary School. She is the recipient of the Honorary Service Award presented in 1973.

For the past two years she has worked as a volunteer at the Pomona PTA Council's clothing closet serving as project chairman.

She has served as inspirational, youth group and budget and finance PTA chairman.

Mrs. Bohnsak served as a Brownie troop leader two years and worked a year in Girl Scouts. She was a Cub Scout den mother two years and a den leader coach for one year.

Mrs. Bohnsak has had 12 foster children in her home in the past 10 years. She also has four children of her own. Presently she has seven teen-agers and a 12-year-old living in her home.

Citrus College to break ground for new center

Informal groundbreaking ceremonies will be held at Citrus College Friday at 10 a.m. to mark the start of construction of the college's federally funded multi-purpose educational complex.

The $1.5 million two-story building, to house a child care and development center, college bank, and facilities for job placement, career guidance, cooperative education and learning assistance centers, is expected to be completed by the summer of 1978.

All construction funds come from a federal grant under the Local Public Work Employment Act of 1976, Title I. Exact amount of the grant is $1,547,264.

The groundbreaking ceremonies will take place on the complex site located between the art center and business building.

Participating in groundbreaking activities will be college officials and board of trustees members, Robert T. McLean, president, Richard H. Patterson, Edward C. Ortell, Glenn H. Bashore and Mrs. Margaret C. Gibbs. Student body president Tim Ayres and Citrus College Faculty Association President Tom Tefft will also take part.

Among those invited to attend are local federal and state legislators. Also invited are the mayors of the five cities included in Citrus College District: Jens Solem, Azusa, Joe Finkbiner, Glendora, Mrs. Bertye Smith, Claremont, Robert Bartlett, Monrovia, and Elwood Anderson, Duarte.

The structure will be of concrete block, matching the architectural style of the majority of buildings on campus. It will provide 30,550 square feet of assignable space. The two largest areas will be occupied by the child care center and learning assistance center. Included in the first-floor child care center will be a kitchen, outdoor play area and child care laboratories. The bank, to handle all college and student funds, will also be located on the first floor and have an "after-hours drop" for receipts.

Architect is Cashion-Horie, Inc., Pomona. First phase of construction, grading and foundation preparation, was completed April 22 by C & R Construction, Upland.

Dewitt Etheridge, La Habra Heights, was awarded the contract for the second phase of construction by Citrus College board of trustees on April 1. The firm's net low base bid was $1,411,075. The second phase of construction began early in May. Completion is expected by the summer of 1978, with full operation scheduled by fall, 1978.

Camp for kids with asthma

Free camperships for asthmatic children 6 through 14 years old are being offered by the Lung Association of Los Angeles County.

Camp dates for boys and girls 6 through 9 will begin July 8 at Sunair Camp for Asthmatic Children in Tujunga and end Sept. 2.

The children 10 through 14 years old are invited to attend the Joan Mier Camp at Malibu the week of Aug. 29 through Sept. 4.

Registered nurses are in attendance at all times and physicians specializing in pediatric allergy are on the grounds three times a week in the Sunair Camp and every day at Camp Joan Mier.

It is estimated that six million people suffer from asthma in this country, with more than two million of them children under the age of 16. In the Los Angeles area the estimate is that between 7 to 12 per cent of all children under 17 suffer from asthma.

Parents of an asthmatic child, or persons knowing of such a child needing specialized camping experience, may call Mrs. Rose Schlichter, at the association's central office, (213) 483-3220.

MRS. VESTA WHITE

Vesta White again to head family service

Mrs. Vesta White of La Verne was re-elected president of the Family Service of Pomona Valley at its annual meeting at the agency office, 2055 N. Garey Ave.

Other officers for the year are Hyman Brown, vice president; Mrs. Nancy Waldman, secretary; John Tessier, treasurer; and Dr. Rinard Hart, member-at-large.

Elected as new members of the board are John Avila, Mrs. Beth Hadady, Mrs. Jeanne Lauppe and Mrs. Jane McQuade.

A program by staff members followed the election.

Hampton Hawes succumbs at 49

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jazz pianist and composer Hampton Hawes has died of a hemorrhage. He was 49.

Hawes, regarded as one of Southern California's foremost jazz stylists, died Sunday night, officials at Wadsworth Veterans Administration Hospital said. He had been hospitalized May 16, officials said.

Pap smear clinics held

Pap smear clinics are held each month in the West End by the San Bernardino County Public Health Department.

The clinics are for women who do not want or do not need family planning services and who have not had a Pap smear for at least one year.

The service is free.

The clinics alternate between three West End offices in Cucamonga, Chino and Ontario. Appointments are required and may be made by calling 988-1332.

Chaffey Adult registration

Registrations are still being accepted for the Chaffey Adult School's summer classes.

Classes will begin on June 13 and are open to all adults regardless of educational background. There is no tuition charge, but students must pay for materials and supplies.

Classes are to be offered at 14 locations in the Chaffey Joint Union High School District. Further information is available by calling 983-2010. The adult school office is located at 211 W. Fifth St., Ontario.

Music tryouts slated

Foothill Productions, county-sponsored youth musical comedy group, will hold tryouts for "West Side Story" at the San Dimas Community Center at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

Additional tryouts will be held at that hour at the Ganesha Park Community Building, Pomona, next Wednesday and at Dailey Theater, La Verne College, on June 10.

The production is also sponsored by La Verne College and the parks and recreation departments of Pomona, La Verne and San Dimas. There are openings for singers, dancers, actors, musicians and technical staff members.

SAY 'CHEESE!' — Sissy Spacek, star of the movie, "3 Women," turns photographer to get a picture of her co-star, Shelley Duvall, in Cannes, France, Monday. The two actresses were at the French Riveria resort to attend the Cannes Film Festival.

Park plans summer hours

Magic Mountain, Valencia amusement park, will be open from 9 a.m. to midnight Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and will soon go on a summer schedule of expanded hours.

May 31 through June 2, the hours will be 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and June 3-5, hours are 9 a.m. to midnight.

June 6 through June 10, Magic Mountain will operate from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and beginning June 11, Magic Mountain will be open every day throughout the summer from 9 a.m. to midnight.

Highlighting the Memorial Day Weekend entertainment will be Gabriel Kaplan, television's "Mr. Kotter," featured in two performances nightly, at 8 and 10 in the Showcase Theater.

The park's one-price admission allows entry into all entertainment plus unlimited use of all of the more than 75 rides and attractions, including the new Spillikin Corners "crafts village" where master artisans share their special skills.

There is live rock music for dancing, the bright Magic Mountain Disco, an afternoon musical revue and more.

Roy set for TV tribute

Otis Roy, Pomona's "singing custodian," will appear on a program honoring country-western singer Jimmy Rogers on CBS/ TV, Channel 2, at noon Thursday.

Roy is a longtime fan of Rogers who died 44 years ago. The former school janitor will sing one of Rogers' songs, "Waitin' for a Train." Lee Dacus will back him on guitar.

Roy will also be featured on radio station K15 in Ontario in a tribute to Rogers that will start at 6 p.m. Thursday and continue through Friday. Mark Williams does the interview.

Director, producer to join

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Even though they are now on different continents, director Federico Fellini and producer Dino De Laurentiis will be rejoining for another film.

Now based in Beverly Hills, De Laurentiis announced he and Fellini will combine for a 1978 movie, the subject not revealed.

Victor Jory

Actor fit as a fiddle

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Victor Jory has been making movies for 45 years now — in his first, "Pride of the Legion," in 1932, he supported Rin-Tin-Tin — and he looks like he could go another 45 years.

Jory is one of the most remarkable men around, and maybe he's a walking advertisement for physical fitness. He'll be 75 in November and he's fit as a Stradivarius. There's not a grey hair in his head and he swears he doesn't use dye.

"I'm in great shape," Jory says. "I had four heart attacks 14 years ago and since then I've been on a strict diet.

"I do isometrics every morning, I walk three or four miles a day as fast as I can, and I play Zimm-Zamm every day. Zimm-Zamm is a kind of one-man tennis game.

"I've cut my weight from 196 to 160, and there never had been any fat on me. And I'm cutting down to five cigarettes a day."

Jory always was in good shape. As a young man, he boxed in carnival sideshows — for $5 a day — and he kept that up. He says he boxed two rounds a day every day until those heart attacks forced him to quit in 1961.

"I think," he says, "that every man past 60 should do two things for his physical well-being — one for the upper part of his body, one for the lower. Walking takes care of the lower part of my body, Zimm-Zamm takes care of the upper."

He says he walks, rather than jogs, because his doctor is against jogging. But when he walks, he walks all out.

He's still active professionally, too, although he is getting more selective these days.

"I don't know if it's a moral thing or not," he says. "But over the years — and I started acting when I was 16 — you develop certain standards.

"I don't want to be photographed with naked ladies, and I don't want to say certain words in films. In private conversation, I use four-letter words, but I don't want to use them in front of an audience."

Jory, who is a gourmet cook, is now compiling a cook book, based on some recipes he has accumulated and embellished over the years. He's also working on a second book, a report on the era of the old-time stock companies.

Two outlaws, Link (Bronson) and Gauche (Delon), rob a train carrying the Japanese Ambassador to the U.S. and make off with a bejeweled sword meant as a gift to the U.S. President. Double-crossed by Gauche and left for dead, Link is saved by Kurado, a Samuri acting as the Ambassador's bodyguard. Though they mix like oil and water, Link and the Japanese warrior go after the sword—one to save the honor of his country, the other to avenge his partner's treachery. When Link and Kurado finally catch up with Gauche, they put aside their differences to fight for survival against an attack by a Comanche raiding party.

Studio offers rates for seniors

The Universal Studios tour is offering substantial discounts to senior citizens over 55 and their families June 3-12.

Senior citizens will save over 30 per cent on regular ticket prices during this special period, and their families will receive a 20 per cent discount.

This special 10-day program is being offered by the Tour in cooperation with the Los Angeles City Recreation and Parks, Los Angeles County Parks and Recreation, Los Angeles County Senior Citizens Association and Allied Senior Citizens Clubs.

Tours run daily from 10 a.m. through 3:30 p.m. and include a behind-the-scenes guided tour of the world of motion pictures and television. Other highlights of the tour include a first-hand look at some of Hollywood's most amazing special effects, including "Jaws" and the new "Bionic Testing Center." After the guided portion of the tour, senior citizens and their families may walk around the Entertainment Center and see the many action-packed live shows.

Special advance ticket order forms may be obtained from Senior Citizen Clubs or by calling (213) 985-8687 Ext. 271, or tickets may be purchased at the ticket booths. Proof of age will be required.

JAZZY GROUP — The Nightblooming Jazzmen, Pomona-based musical group, will represent the Society for the Preservation of Dixieland Jazz at the fourth annual Dixieland Jubilee in Sacramento Friday through Monday. More than 50 bands are expected to take part.

Poly to offer two one-acters

Cal Poly will present two one-act plays in the Studio Theater at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and June 2-4. Admission is $2 general, $1.50 for students.

The plays are Peter Shaffer's "The Public Eye" and "Home Free" by Lanford Wilson.

In "The Public Eye" Shaffer creates an eccentric, outrageously dressed private detective who describes himself as "nondescripted" yet tells of pursuing a suspect by driving his car through the main door of Westminster Abbey, crashing into the baptismal font and ruining a royal christening.

The play confronts this character with a very correct middle-aged accountant who has hired him to spy on his young wife. The clash between the two violently contrasting personalities makes for great comedy, yet what evolves is a refreshed understanding of marriage.

"The Public Eye" opened in New York in October 1963. Howard Taubman of the New York Times, in his review said the play, "is a specimen of an art that has become so rare it ought to be kept under glass. It is high comedy that is not only comic but also gay, sophisticated and wise."

"The Public Eye" is directed by David Miller who directed Cal Poly's production of Eugene O'Neill's "Hughie" earlier this year. "Home Free" is directed by Nancy Oehlschlaeger who was assistant director for the spring production of Moliere's "School For Husbands."

The cast of "The Public Eye" includes Bill Cuddy, David Koch and Robin Clark. The brother and sister of "Home Free" are Terry Vreeland and Wendi Radford.

LVC to offer 'Opera'

La Verne College will present "The Threepenny Opera" in Dailey Theater at 8 p.m. Tuesday through Friday. Tickets are $2.50 general admission, $1.50 for students and senior citizens.

The Bertold Brecht-Kurt Weill musical will be presented in a cabaret setting. Seating is limited.

14-line poem

A sonnet is a 14-line poem with a rhyme scheme. It expresses individual emotion usually in praise of a mistress or lover.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHAT IS CHEWING GUM MADE OF?"

LAURA JANSON
MARINETTE, WI

A. CHEWING GUM IS MADE OF A GUM BASE, SUGAR, CORN SYRUP, AND FLAVORING. THE CHIEF GUM BASE IS CHICLE, THE RUBBER SAP OF A TROPICAL EVERGREEN TREE.

Most people chew gum for its pleasant taste.

Chewing gum is made of a gum base, sugar, corn syrup, and flavoring. The gum base is what keeps it chewy for hours.

The chief gum base is chicle. Chicle is the boiled-down sap of the sapodilla tree, which grows in the steamy, hot jungles of Central America and Mexico. Synthetic bases are also used.

At the chewing-gum factory, the chewy chicle is mixed in large kettles with the gum ingredients and flavored.

Spearmint and peppermint are the favorite gum flavors. But spices, such as cinnamon, and fruit flavors are popular, too.

Machines roll the flavored gum mixture into sheets the thickness of gum. Powdered sugar on both sides keeps the gum from sticking.

Still other machines cut the sheets into sticks for you to chew.

Bubble gum is made like all other chewing gum, but a little rubbery plastic is added so that it will stretch easily to blow bubbles.

Claremont Adult School schedules summer registration

Summer registration for Claremont Adult School will be held in room 106 at Claremont High School on June 13 and 14, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. Classes will begin the week of June 20 and end July 29.

The personalized high school diploma program will be continuing this summer. Students may call for counseling appointments.

Some new courses offered are preparation for childbirth (Lamaze), contemporary experience in ecology, dramatic arts/preparing the actor, multimedia first aid, airline ticketing, speech communication for business and personal use, quiltmaking, parent-ed — pre-school, oriental brush painting, photography, upholstery, cardiopulmonary resuscitation, microwave cooking, sewing, and many business courses will also be offered.

There is a $2 registration fee for many of the classes, and a lab fee is required for several.

For information regarding these classes or for a counseling appointment, persons may call Claremont Adult School at 624-6402.

Scholarship award applications accepted

The Pomona Association of Mexican-American Educators, (AMAE) is accepting scholarship award applications.

The association annually awards scholarships of $150 to Mexican-American students graduating from Pomona schools.

After applications are received, an oral interview will be held with the student.

Those interested may secure the appropriate forms from the guidance office, at each high school in the district.

For further information, persons may call Richard Benitez, at 623-5251 ext. 328.

Head start parents attend conference

Head Start parents from the Pomona Unified School District will attend a conference at the Edgewater Hyatt House in Long Beach June 7.

The annual event is sponsored by the Los Angeles County Schools Head Start agency. There will be a general session followed by a series of workshops on topics of concern to Head Start parents.

Parents attending will be members of the advisory board and representatives from each of the 10 classrooms determined by the teacher to have contributed the most to the program.

YMCA schedules swimming programs

Several swimming programs are scheduled to begin in coming weeks at the Pomona Valley YMCA.

On May 31, an advanced life saving class for persons 15½ and older will begin.

An adult swim class will begin June 6. It is open to persons 18 and older.

A "ladies only" swim class, for women 16 and older, will begin June 14.

For information about YMCA swim classes, persons may call 623-6433.

Honors for parents

North San Antonio Elementary School in Pomona will honor its parent volunteers at a program Thursday beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Pomona Supt. Charles Carpenter and North San Antonio Principal James Stewart will present the volunteer service awards. A dinner and fashion show will be included as part of the evening's program.

Tennessee Williams play at St. Lucy's

Drama students at St. Lucy's Priory High School, Glendora, will present "The Glass Menagerie" by Tennessee Williams May 26-27 at 8 p.m. as the senior project of Beth McNulty and Colleen Keegan.

The two students will be cast in lead roles. Kevin McDonald, a student at Cal Poly Pomona, is cast in the male lead. Brad Kahn, a student at the American Academy, is in the supporting cast.

Faculty adviser is Kim O'Rourke. The assistant director is Karen Patterson. Michele Girardot is writing music for the production.

Other backstage people are Jane Vinatieri, Johanna Wheeler, Jane Girvin, Beth Mordhorst, Jackie McTavish and Patti Manjarrez.

Kiwanis to hear plan of mountain land use

District Forest Ranger Steve Fitch will outline for members of the Claremont Kiwanis Club at noon Thursday at Griswold's the Forest Service's plan for better use of land above the 5,000-foot elevation.

Fitch, who supervises the Mt. Baldy area of about 200,000 acres between Monrovia and the San Bernardino County line, will use slides to illustrate the Forest Service's plan dealing with campgrounds, trails, facilities, and all aspects of the area above timberline.

Miss L.V. committee planning a reunion

The Miss La Verne Pageant Committee is seeking women who have served as Miss La Verne since the conception of the Pageant in the 1930s.

The pageant is one of the oldest city beauty pageants in the U.S. Officials plan to hold a reunion for the former queens and to honor them at its 1977 Pageant, entitled "Country Rainbows." This will be held July 2 at 7 p.m. Persons knowing how to contact those who have served as Miss La Verne are asked to notify the La Verne Chamber of Commerce, 2078 Bonita Ave., La Verne, or phone 593-5265.

Almanac

Today is Wednesday, May 25, the 145th day of 1977. There are 220 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1787, delegates to the Constitutional Convention met in Independence Hall to frame the U.S. Constitution.

On this date:

In 1803, poet and philosopher Ralph Waldo Emerson was born in Boston.

In 1836, Rep. John Quincy Adams opposed the annexation of Texas in a speech in the House, saying the move would trigger a war with Mexico.

In 1862, Confederate troops under Gen. Stonewall Jackson defeated a Union force in the Civil War Battle of Winchester, Va.

In 1944, in World War II, the Anzio beachhead in Italy was linked with the Allied front.

In 1961, President John Kennedy asked the nation to strive to send Americans to the moon within the next decade.

In 1970, the United States placed the first of its MIRV missiles in underground concrete slots at an Air Force base at Minot, N.D.

Ten years ago: The wives and children of American officials in Egypt and Israel were ordered by the State Department to leave because of the danger due to hostilities between the two countries.

Five years ago: President Richard Nixon and Soviet officials were conferring in Moscow on increasing trade between the United States and the Soviet Union.

One year ago: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, in Luxembourg, said there were indications that Cuban military forces were being withdrawn from Angola.

Today's birthdays: President Tito of Yugoslavia is 85 years old. Writer Herman Wouk is 62.

Thought for today: Goodness is the only investment that never fails — Henry David Thoreau, American writer, 1817-1862.

Musical at Vernon

A "musical masquerade" will be performed by students at Vernon Junior High School in Montclair tonight and Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the multipurpose room.

Jim Carter, the school's musical director, wrote the musical for the students.

Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children and may be purchased at the door.

Expo 81 plans for rapid transit ride on air of optimism

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Expo 81 officials are "real optimistic" over plans for a rapid transit system being built in connection with the world's fair in Ontario.

Fair promoters have become more positive about the mass transit system since Union Pacific Railroad recently agreed to grant the right-of-way for a proposed monorail.

The system would be constructed over rail lines between Los Angeles and Ontario Motor Speedway, proposed site of the fair.

"This is by no means a sure thing," said Jerry Clemans, executive assistant to Richard Pittenger, president of the Expo 81 Corp. "But a preliminary study by Genge Engineering of Los Angeles looks good. We're real optimistic."

Clemans noted there are "several major transportation systems" being considered by Expo officials.

A monorail system, if chosen, would involve overhead suspension of monorail-type cars traveling at speeds between 60 and 75 miles an hour, said Clemans.

The system is being studied by Expo officials and Union Pacific, he stated.

Clemans declined to reveal how a mass transit system might be financed. "This would be by private enterprise, so we may never reveal the finances."

He speculated that private or public revenue bonds might be issued to pay for the transit system. The system would be a separate entity from the fair, however, he noted.

It might later be turned over to City of Ontario to operate, Clemans added.

Officials say General Motors, Boeing and Japanese and German companies are interested in bidding on development of a rapid transit system. The German system would be similar to one used for the past 30 years in Mannheim, Germany, Clemans said.

Pittenger said recently that a Japanese firm was ready to sink money into a transit system.

Montclair P.D.

so be it. I don't know how to resolve the problems of public relations in this case.

"There are some people who think if they get a ticket, then everybody violating the law should get a ticket. But then everyone who speeds doesn't get caught," Smith added.

Other ordinances make it illegal to park a commercial vehicle weighing over 8,000 pounds empty on any residential street for more than two hours; to fire any type of weapon — gun, slingshot, bow and arrow, BB gun, air gun or any firearm discharging a projectile — on the streets; and for anyone under 18 to have in his possession any gun or knife over three inches in length.

Smith said another public safety law is the curfew law which makes it illegal for a juvenile to be on the streets between 10 p.m. and 5 a.m. without parents' permission. Although most know that the juvenile can be cited, Smith pointed out that the parent can be cited also because it is his responsibility to know where his child is.

"In summing up, by making the public aware of city ordinances the police department would hope — since most citizens want to comply with the law — there will be less violations. These tools are not a tool for a police officer to harass a citizen. They're for the welfare and safety of the general public," Smith said.

U.S. crime study offers surprise in criminal behavior

WASHINGTON (AP) — Criminal behavior is not a mental illness and cannot be reversed by giving people education, jobs or money, says a Freudian psychologist involved in an intensive federal study of crime.

Dr. Stanton E. Samenow has worked for the last seven years at a federally run Washington mental hospital, where he assisted the late Dr. Samuel Yochelson in an ambitious study of how criminals think and what makes them different.

Samenow told a news conference that the experience caused the psychologists to throw out orthodox beliefs that people committed crimes because they felt guilty and subconsciously needed to be punished.

Since the search for a cause didn't work, the psychologist said, he and Yochelson, who died last November, stopped asking why and began looking at how the criminals thought.

Samenow said he and Yochelson identified 53 separate thinking patterns that each of their 225 hardcore criminals, from white-collar crooks to grade school dropouts, had in common.

Those characteristics included anger, pride, sentimentality, lying, intolerance of fear and procrastination. While many people have some of these qualities, he said, criminals "have them all to an extreme.

"Lying is a way of life to make fools of other people," he said.

Yochelson said he found that his subjects, about half of whom had been admitted to St. Elizabeth's Hospital after being declared insane, weren't insane at all.

"They played the psychiatric game," Samenow said. "They simply tricked their psychiatrist by telling the doctor what they expected to hear: stories about parental rejection, socioeconomic deprivation, guilt feelings and all the catchwords psychiatrists, psychologists and social workers have been trained to expect.

"These men," he said, "rejected their parents, schools and society long before the institutions rejected them. They had made a series of choices early in life that had nothing to do with family, neighborhood, race or socioeconomic factors."

Samenow said he and Yochelson sought to change thinking patterns of the criminals that had developed over a lifetime, and in recent years experienced considerable success.

By intensive retraining of the criminal personality, and by refusing to be fooled by criminals, "change agents" — as Samenow called himself and Yochelson — are able to attain a measure of success.

In the last three years, he said, seven of the 24 hardcore criminals who went through the new treatment have become constructive, law-abiding citizens.

Russian tour howling success for U.S. rock group

MOSCOW (AP) — The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, the first American rock group to tour the Soviet Union, ended their visit with a concert that had a Moscow audience cheering, whistling and yelling for more.

"At the end we had them bouncing in their seats, which made us feel really good," pianist-guitarist Jackie Robinson Clark said after Monday's concert.

"We don't have anything like this here," a teen-aged girl said. "Ours are all about the spring or the snow, or they're patriotic songs."

The Dirt Band played a bright foot-stomping blend of country, blue grass and rock for 80,000 Soviets during a three-week tour under a U.S.-Soviet cultural program sponsored by the U.S. State Department.

Group members said audience reactions varied throughout the tour from Riga to Tbilisi to Yerevan to Leningrad.

In Riga, the audience sat respectfully throughout the concert. "I thought we had bombed," said Hanna. But at the end the auditorium exploded in 20 minutes of applause.

In Yerevan, 6,000 fans clapped and danced inside while 15,000 without tickets surged against the gates outside where a teargas grenade was thrown.

In Leningrad, police ringed the stage to keep away the fans. Bearded banjo player John McEuen said when people rose from their seats they were told to sit down.

In Moscow several young men and women ran on stage with flowers in the Russian tradition, embarrassing bandsmen with kisses.

Tickets sold for up to $8 — a day's pay for many Russians — and reportedly went for up to six times that amount on the black market.

Many Russians, who have plenty of rubles but little to spend them on, were glad to pay. A large share of seats went to families of officials and audiences were composed of many middle-aged people.

"I wish we'd had the opportunity to play to more young people," said lead guitarist Jeffrey Hanna. "I know there's a big rock 'n' roll audience out there."

"It was definitely worthwhile to come here and put a dent in the door for American music," McEuen said

It is a door that has been opening gradually since the 1960s when the first carefully controlled Soviet groups were allowed to perform.

"Our kids know all about American rock," one Soviet said. Many have learned about American rock from foreign broadcasts and there has long been a lively black market in rock records and tapes.

Approved rock music is now common at restaurants and dances; the media occasionally reports on Western rock and East European groups tour the Soviet Union.

A decade ago rock was denounced. The Communist party daily Pravda once described it as "a flood of cacophony, yells, giggles and God knows what (which) plays a major role in turning men into beasts."

11 arrested in mammoth pot seizure

KEY LARGO, Fla. (AP) — Sheriff's deputies Tuesday ended a search for smugglers in mosquito-infested coastal swamps after they arrested 11 men and confiscated an estimated 50 tons of marijuana during a 24-hour operation.

"I presume we found them all," said Monroe County Sheriff William Freeman. "The mosquitos are so bad in there anyone would have had to come out."

Freeman estimated that the haul weighed 50 tons, which would be the largest quantity of marijuana ever seized in south Florida. The marijuana's street value would be approximately $50 million, Freeman said.

Earlier, some officials said it was the largest haul ever confiscated in the country, but federal drug agents said that was untrue.

The 11 Miami-area men had fled into the swamp after an exchange of gunfire with Detective Sgt. Robert Brack, authorities said. Earlier reports said 13 were arrested and as many as 25 to 30 persons had fled into the swamps. But Freeman said only 11 men were being sought and that the two others apparently had been stopped for questioning.

'Just desserts' or just 'crumbs'

Marge's mushroom frittata featured in popular menu

Progress Bulletin
Food
Pomona, California ■ Wednesday, May 25, 1977

By Cecily Brownstone
AP Food Editor

Four years ago, Marge Mitchell, a home economist and vice president in a public relations agency, and Joan Sedgwick, a history professor, left their jobs in The Big Apple to open a restaurant, the Bakery Lane Soup Bowl, in Middlebury, Vt. Their customers clamored for Marge's recipes so the girls wrote a cookbook, published it themselves and mail-ordered it. Both restaurant and cookbook in an astoundingly short time were big hits.

Last year I wrote a piece about Marge and Joan and illustrated it with a photograph of them. Readers responded with warmth. They bought the cookbook, addressing their orders to "Marge and Joan, Middlebury, Vt." They came to the restaurant and, armed with a clip of my feature, were likely to say to Joan, "You're Joan. Where's Marge?" Joan was usually out front, Marge was usually in the kitchen.

For two neophytes in the restaurant and cookbook business their success was magnificent, but now the girls are moving on.

They sold the restaurant to a young new owner who is serving Marge's original dishes. They sold publishing rights to their "Bakery Lane Soup Bowl Cookbook" to Random House and now it's in book stores. The cover is different from the original cookbook but all the super recipes are there.

So what are Marge and Joan up to now?

When I phoned them before they left Middlebury they told me they'd bought a "recreational vehicle." It seems that's a motor home but not the huge kind you lodge in trailer parks. They're taking a six-month vacation to roam around the southern half of this country — south because Vermont's long cold winters were a bit much for Joan. She says, "After we get going, I'm going to ask the kids I meet, 'Do you like snow?' Somewhere one of them is going to say, 'What's snow?' Well, wherever that kid lives, that's where I'm going to stay."

The girls' motor home has a miniscule bathtub and a shower. It has a three-burner stove and an oven big enough for a chicken but not a turkey. A refrigerator - freezer. A double sink. It sleeps six — in a squeeze.

The girls need the room. For Victoria, scion of a German shepherd and a neighboring stray: "She's nasty but a wonderful protector." And three cats. One of them is "such a darling" that she's named after Tennyson's come-into-the-garden Maud. Then there's Siegel: "He has lots of chutzpah." And Harry: "She came from a litter that was supposed to include at least one male and didn't."

The motor home is named Ruth. Where Ruth goeth, there goeth Marge and Joan. Marge wants to catch, cook and eat fresh seafood on the Gulf coast. Joan wants to see her son and grandchildren in Knoxville, Tenn., and her stepson in Palacios, Tex.

After the vacation it's back to earning a living. Marge has another cookbook in mind. She may open a shop to supply restaurants with desserts called "Just Desserts." If it isn't as successful as their previous ventures, she'll just call it "Crumbs."

Joan is writing a book titled "Soup to Nuts or Nuts to Soup," telling what it's like to run a restaurant. I advised Joan to get Marge to contribute lots of new recipes.

Just try Marge's Mushroom Frittata — a version she developed especially for this column. The morning my recipe-tester made it, we tried some for lunch. Late that day I cut the rest in small squares, reheated it in my microwave oven and had a neighborhood tasting cum drinks. To say applause for it was enthusiastic, is a gross understatement.

MARGE'S MUSHROOM FRITTATA

- 1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
- 2/3 cup chopped onion
- 2/3 cup chopped green pepper
- 1 cup chopped unpared zucchini
- 1 teaspoon minced garlic
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 5 eggs
- 1/3 cup light cream
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 1½ cups soft bread cubes, lightly packed
- 8 ounces cream cheese, cut into ½ inch cubes
- 1 cup shredded cheddar cheese

Saute mushrooms, onion, green pepper, zucchini and garlic in oil until crisp-tender. Beat eggs with cream, salt and pepper; add mushroom mixture, bread cubes, cream cheese and cheddar cheese. Stir thoroughly but lightly, so cream cheese cubes are intact. Pour into well-greased 9-inch pie plate. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 45 minutes, or until set in center and browned. Cool 5 to 10 minutes, before cutting into wedges. Makes six main-dish servings.

Food Editor's Note: We bought ½ pound fresh mushrooms and sliced enough for the 1 cup called for; the rest we sauteed separately for a garnish. We knife-chopped the onion, green pepper and zucchini in ¼ to ½ inch pieces — C.B.

CARROT COOKIES

A specialty of California cookbook writer, Ruth Conrad Bateman.

- 1 cup unbleached flour, fork-stir to aerate before measuring
- ¼ teaspoon baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup granulated sugar
- ½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- 1 large egg
- ½ cup finely grated pared carrot, not packed down
- 1 cup quick-cooking oats
- ½ cup coconut
- ¾ cup chopped medium-fine walnuts

On wax paper thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder and baking soda. In a medium bowl cream the butter, sugars and vanilla; beat in egg until blended. Stir in the flour mixture, then the carrot, oats, coconut and walnuts. Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls, a few inches apart, on buttered cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until lightly browned — 12 to 15 minutes. Makes almost 4 dozen. Adapted from "The Zucchini and Carrot Cookbook" by Ruth Conrad Bateman, Ward Ritchie paperback.

PARMESAN ASPARAGUS

This makes a feast!

- 1 pound medium-thick asparagus
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 2 tablespoons water
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Break off tough whitish ends from asparagus. Soak in a sink generously filled with hot water for 5 minutes to relax the bracts so extraneous material will float out; soak in cold water for 10 minutes to refresh. Drain. With a sharp knife slice spears diagonally into very thin ovals up to buds; slice each bud in half lengthwise. Put the butter, water, salt and asparagus in an 8-inch skillet with a dome cover. Bring to simmering; cover tightly and simmer until as tender as you like — 3 to 5 minutes; watch so water evaporates but asparagus does not scorch. Off heat, sprinkle with the cheese or stir it in. Makes 2 large delicious servings.

HAWAIIAN CHICKEN

We've updated one of our most popular.

- 3½ pound roasting chicken, cut up
- ¼ cup flour
- ¼ teaspoon celery salt
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon garlic powder
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 can (20 oz.) chunk pineapple in heavy syrup, undrained
- 2 tablespoons Japanese soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon sugar

Coat the chicken with a mixture of the flour, celery salt, nutmeg and garlic powder. In a large skillet in the hot butter, lightly brown the chicken; remove the chicken. To the drippings in the skillet add the pineapple, soy sauce and sugar; stir over low heat to get up any browned particles; pour into an oblong glass 3-quart baking dish 13½ by 8¾ by 1¾ inches or similar utensil. Top with the chicken in a single layer. Bake uncovered in a preheated 350 degree oven, basting midway, until chicken is tender and brown — 1 hour. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

Mexican empanada dip mix of sweet and tart

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Have you used your chafing dish or fondue pot recently? As the summer season progresses you'll want to call on some party snack ideas that are different. Filling in during the refreshment hour or two are such tasties as a Mexican empanada dip and Armenian lamb balls. These are prepared in advance and kept warm in a chafing dish. Actually, both recipes make good appetizers or entree servings in addition to being snacks. Another approach to entertaining is a Polynesian fondue which combines the sweet and tart flavors of the special dip with ham chunks, pineapple, Mandarin orange sections and green pepper strips. You may use this mixture with other fruits that are in season such as apricots, peaches, strawberries and nectarines plus cooked chicken chunks or pork.

MEXICAN EMPANADA DIP

- 1 pound ground beef
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1 teaspoon chili powder
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1½ cups water
- 1 beef bouillon cube
- ½ cup catchup
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon dried leaf oregano
- ¼ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1 cup chopped ripe olives

In large skillet break up beef over medium heat. Add onion and chili powder. Cook until onion is tender, about 5 minutes. Sprinkle flour over meat and mix well. Stir in water. Add beef bouillon cube, catchup and remaining ingredients. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Turn into eathenware fondue pot. Place over canned heat and keep warm. Serve as a dip with corn chips. Makes 2 cups dip, 8 appetizer servings.

ARMENIAN LAMB BALLS

- 1 cup soft white bread crumbs
- ¼ cup water
- 1 egg
- 1 pound ground lamb
- ¼ cup finely chopped onion
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon allspice
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- ¼ cup finely chopped almonds
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine

In large bowl combine soft bread crumbs, water and egg. Let stand 5 minutes. Stir in lamb, onion, salt, thyme, cinnamon, allspice, pepper, lemon juice and almonds. Shape mixture into 1-inch balls. Melt butter in large skillet, add meatballs and brown on all sides. Set aside.

SAUCE

- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup chicken broth
- 1 cup plain yogurt
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice

Melt butter in medium saucepan, blend in flour and stir in chicken broth. Stir over medium heat until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Stir in remaining ingredients. Turn into chafing dish over canned heat, add lamb balls, heat and serve with wooden picks or cocktail forks. Makes 8 appetizer servings.

POLYNESIAN FONDUE

- ½ cup sugar
- ½ cup cornstarch
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 can (18 oz.) pineapple juice
- 2/3 cup orange marmalade
- 1/3 cup vinegar
- 1/3 cup lemon juice
- ¾ cup water
- ½ teaspoon grated onion
- Ham chunks
- Pineapple chunks
- Mandarin orange sections
- Green pepper strips

In fondue pot mix together sugar, cornstarch and salt. Stir in pineapple juice, orange marmalade, vinegar, lemon juice, water and onion. Place over low heat and stir constantly until sugar dissolves and mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Keep warm over canned heat and serve with ham, fruit and green pepper. Makes 6 servings.

Frittata recipe varied

There are many variations of the omelet, and one of the most spectacular is the Italian frittata. It differs from the French omelet in that it is cooked in a large skillet, usually on range top and then browned under the broiler. The result is a slightly puffed omelet, usually served cut in pie shaped wedges.

Just as there are many variations of the omelet, there are many variations of the frittata itself. Like other omelets, the frittata can be inspired by whatever vegetables and leftover meats, poultry or fish you have in your kitchen.

The one presented here is distinguished by the use of Sliced Smoked Salmon in combination with vegetables.

FRITTATA

- 2½ cups assorted vegetables
- 3 tablespoons cooking oil
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- ½ teaspoon each oregano, basil
- Salt, pepper to taste
- 1 package (3 ounce) sliced smoked salmon cut in 1 inch squares
- 8 eggs, beaten
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- Parmesan cheese (optional)

Vegetables may be your choice such as diced fresh tomatoes, sliced mushrooms, peas, zucchini or others. Saute the vegetables lightly in heated oil. Add garlic, seasonings, salmon and eggs. Melt butter in a heavy deep 10 inch skillet. When the foam subsides, pour in the vegetables, salmon and egg mixture and cook over moderate heat for 2 to 3 minutes, or until the eggs are firm but slightly moist on top. Slide the skillet under the broiler for 30 seconds to brown lightly. Slice the frittata into pie shaped wedges and serve at once. Optional: grated parmesan cheese to taste spread over top before broiling. Makes 8 servings.

President Carter vs. mushroom

Mushroom growers seek federal market relief

By Gaynor Maddox

American mushroom growers and canners are worried over the increasing Taiwan and Korean imports of mushrooms and have yelled "help" to the federal government.

A recent issue of "Mushroom News" carried a full-page portrait of President Carter on the cover and under was printed "Carter vs. Mushrooms." The President directed that warning be given to Taiwan and Korea to adhere to their voluntary agreements regarding marketing of mushrooms in the United States.

The trouble began soon after World War II when the United States sent money and know-how to Taiwan to teach the nations how to raise mushrooms as a money crop. They learned well. Now sales of Taiwan-canned mushrooms are threatening American products.

Last year we imported over 57-million pounds of Taiwanese and other oriental - grown mushrooms. At the same time our American sales amounted to 310-million pounds. Americans continue to eat more and more of these low-calorie taste-delights every year. Actually mushrooms, once only for parties, are now an every-day dish.

They are grown commercially all over the country. Windowless mushroom houses produce them right through the year. Most of them, however, come from Kennett Square near Philadelphia. But companies in almost every part of the country, such as California and Michigan, now grow them. In fact, most parts of the entire world cultivate them, including Western Europe, USSR, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Argentina.

Incidentally, long before Women's Lib became fighting words, in Kennett Square women were taboo around mushroom plants. The men thought their mere presence might endanger the crops. But that was as far back as 1930. Today, the number of women exceeds that of men in the industry. But the mushrooms taste the same, have very few calories, some protein and lots of vitamins.

More and more Americans enjoy mushrooms fresh. In fact, about 46 per cent of all mushrooms are sold fresh. Fresh mushrooms should be stored in the coldest part of the refrigerator to slow down their respiration. Storage temperature also affects moisture loss. The warmer the refrigerator, the more rapid the loss of mushroom moisture which causes greater shriveling, according to mushroom experts.

There are fashions in foods just as there are in clothes. This season in the East there has been a revival of the West Coast "Armenian Pack" which is raw spinach leaves, sliced raw mushrooms, crumbled bacon and a tart lemon French dressing.

When I was in college, my brilliant but moody roommate was discouraged with his work one day. I quickly prepared a dish of sliced fresh mushrooms, sauteed in sweet butter and then covered with warmed heavy cream and serve on hot buttered toast. His spirits revived, as well as his intellectual curiosity. In fact, later the late Garrett Mattingly was awarded a Pulitzer prize for his book on the history of the Renaissance.

Mushrooms can do great things for people.

Some causes listed

Price of fish puzzles many

By Gaynor Maddox

The astronomical price of fish is puzzling to many people. Others just groan and pay. But many just look.

One cause of the high price is the modern trawlers and freezer ships of the Soviet Union, also of the Japanese, the West Germans and the Scandinavians. Compared to our smaller fishing boats, they dominate the Georges Bank and other concentrations of valuable fish.

These foreign fishing vessels must bring in tons of fish for their mother countries, which are largely dependent on fish for most of their protein needs. So it's a dire must with them. With us it is not a must. This explains the millions of dollars spent by foreign countries on their advanced fishing equipment. It's fish or perish.

A man whose Greek father before him in Istanbul was in the fish selling business, and who himself is one of the most respected merchants of fine fish in the country, Edmund Lillys, comments on rising costs. "Fish, once considered a poor man's food, is now desired by both gourmets and nutritionists. It appeals because we now realize how valuable it is for the heart and general health. And to those who have learned to cherish excellence in what they eat. So the demand has increased greatly."

Lilly's elegant seafood restaurant, Gloucester House in New York, has the reputation of being one of the finest in the world.

"Now our government is beginning to protect our relatively small fishing industry. Farmers have always had government assistance. I speak of the new 200-mile limit, the distance from our shore beyond which no ship can come without special permission. So the 'take every fish you can find' foreign ships are threatened," Lillys explains.

"But, while we are deciding whether to punish the Soviets for intruding beyond the 200-mile limit, the individual American fishermen are up against vicious competition. In their small boats, they seek now only the most wanted fish, the most popular in the market. The old standbys, such as haddock, are not the expensive fish today. Swordfish, almost prohibitive in price and scarcity, bay scollops, lobster, pompano and many other seasonal fish, all are wanted by the present-day consumer who shows little interest in the plentiful cheaper type. So the price goes up and up.

"Packaging is another reason for higher fish prices. The packaging industry has grown enormously. Frozen fish is now wrapped in treated materials, brilliantly colored to attract attention. Prices go up. Is this necessary? I do not think it is," he claims.

Lillys does not forsee any reduction in the price of fish. It is now becoming a major food item.

Crawfish cooking olympics planned

Crayfish . . . crawfish . . . or fresh water lobster.

No matter by what name the small cousins of the Maine lobster are called, the challenge is to preserve and bring out their delicate flavor; a challenge which the nation's top chefs are now being invited to accept.

The event is The Second Annual Sunriver Crawfish Cooking Olympics on the banks of the Deschutes River at Sunriver Resort, near Bend, in Central Oregon, September 17-18, 1977.

Boasting that the most flavorful crawfish in the country are to be found in the rushing streams and rivers of Central Oregon and the Pacific Northwest, Sunriver is hosting an open competition for all professional chefs to pit their imaginative and creative culinary skills against each other in the preparation of crawfish dishes which may bring the rightful but long overdue fame and glory to the shy crustaceans hiding under rocks and vegetation in river bottoms.

Trophy awards will be presented to the winning chefs and their winning recipes will be compiled into a Sunriver booklet made available to visitors to this remarkable resort in Central Oregon.

Sunriver will host all participating chefs and their spouses for the Olympic Weekend, including both meals and accommodations. There will be an Awards Dinner on Saturday, September 17.

All entries for The Second Annual Sunriver Crawfish Cooking Olympics should be sent to "Crawfish Olympics," c/o Ann Wall, Sunriver Resort, Sunriver, Oregon, 97701, on or before September 10.

Information may be obtained by writing to the same address or telephoning (503) 593-1221.

Cranberry cartoon cookies, berry smiling sandwiches set

When is it time to cook up some fun? Birthdays of course, but rainy days and Sundays too are ripe times for joining with your kids in an enterprise somewhat more creative than being "glued" to the TV tube. Don't keep your children out of the kitchen, cooking is creative and rewarding, and there is much to learn.

Kids love the comics so why not use this favorite amusement as a special theme for a culinary endeavor. Here are some recipe treats made with colorful and flavorful cranberry sauces and drinks that kids really go for.

Bake up a dandy batch of "Cranberry Cartoon Cookies." Into the basic batter are mixed the good flavors of vanilla, cinnamon, ginger and honey. While the dough is chilled, and before cutting it into cookies and baking, trace on cardboard the outlines of cartoon character faces such as the gang from Peanuts, Mickey Mouse, Pluto and friends, or Annie Rooney, and such. After the tracings are cut, they can be used as a guide to carve out decorations from jellied cranberry sauce. Once the cookies cool, the jelly cartoon faces are placed on top. For the last touch use pink frosting in a pastry tube with writing tip to outline the faces and to spell the names too.

Easy to make "Berry Smiling Sandwiches" will add a spot of fun and good nourishment too. Healthy whole wheat bread is spread with a blend of cottage cheese, raisins and chopped peanuts, and then topped with slices of jellied cranberry sauce cut simply into smiling red faces.

To go along with the delightful array of cookies and sandwiches a scintillating sipper is certainly called for. "Cranapple Superfrost" is speedily made in a blender combining cranberry apple drink, pears, and vanilla ice cream. If your "cartoon party" is for a crowd, then an easy to serve punch will be welcome. "Foamy Grape-Berry Punch" is a yummy mix of grape cranberry drink, strawberry gelatin, strawberry ice cream and soda.

CRANBERRY CARTOON COOKIES

- 2/3 cup butter or margarine, softened
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon vanilla
- 4 teaspoons cinnamon
- 2 teaspoons ginger
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs
- 1 and 1/3 cups honey
- 5½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- 2 cans (1 pound each) jellied cranberry sauce
- Canned pink frosting

In a bowl, mix butter and sugar. Stir in vanilla, spices, salt, eggs and honey. Stir in flour and baking soda. Wrap then chill dough for 1 hour. Roll out half of dough to ¼ inch thickness and cut with a round cookie cutter or can into 4 inch rounds. Place on greased large cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) for 10 to 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool cookies on a rack. Repeat with remaining dough. Trace the outlines of favorite comic characters on 3 inch round pieces of cardboard. Cut out and use as a guide for cutting decorations for cookies. Cut cranberry sauce into ½ inch thick slices. With tip of knife trace around cardboard for desired shape. Place frosting into a pastry bag with a writing tip. Place cranberry cutouts on top of cookies and with frosting in bag print name of character underneath. Use frosting to outline face geatures and hair also.

BERRY SMILING SANDWICHES

- 6 slices whole wheat bread
- Butter or margarine, softened
- 1 package (8 ounces) cottage cheese
- 1/3 cup raisins
- 1/3 cup chopped peanuts
- 1 can (8 ounces) jellied cranberry sauce

Spread slices of bread with butter. In a bowl mix cottage cheese, raisins and peanuts. Spread mixture on bread slices. Cut cranberry sauce into 6 slices. With the tip of a knife cut round holes for eyes and a large smiling mouth. Place cranberry faces on top of cottage cheese spread bread slices. Serve at once.

CRANAPPLE SUPERFROST

- 3 cups cranberry apple drink, chilled
- 6 canned pear halves with juice
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream, slightly softened

Whirl cranberry apple drink and pears with their juice in a blender until smooth. Spoon some ice cream into each of 6 soda glasses. Fill each with cranberry mixture. Serve at once with straws.

FOAMY GRAPE BERRY PUNCH

- 8 cups (2 quarts) grape cranberry drink, chilled
- 1 package (3 ounces) strawberry gelatin
- 4 cups (1 quart) strawberry ice cream
- 4 cups (1 quart) club soda, chilled

Heat 1 cup of the grape cranberry drink to boiling and use to dissolve gelatin. Cool and then stir in remaining cranberry drink. Beat in ice cream until smooth. Pour mixture into a punch bowl and slowly stir in club soda. Serve at once in tall glasses. Suggested garnish: small whole fresh or frozen strawberries.

Asian beef with curried rice adapted to microwave oven

It's nice to know that festive, out of the ordinary beef dishes adapt as well to microwave cookery as does the more standard fare. Making waves at any party is this asian beef idea served with curried rice.

The cut of beef used is top round, thinly sliced. It's an especially good choice for microwave cookery because it's tender, lean and evenly textured. This dish features a tantalizing blend of ingredients, seasonings and flavors. There's curry, raisins, garlic, green pepper, thyme . . . even bananas and sesame seeds! And the entire cooking process takes only half an hour. With beef, rice, fruits and vegetables all in one dish, it's a complete and delicious meal in itself.

The secret to making this or any other recipe with various components is to do the cooking in sequence. The food consultants at the California Beef Council have worked out all their recipes for microwave cooking as efficiently as possible, minimizing steps and cooking containers.

Some general rules apply to cooking beef by microwave just as in conventional cooking. Food in shallow, wide containers cooks more quickly and evenly than in deep dishes. Large compact cuts of beef require more cooking time than smaller ones. However, roasts over three pounds will brown nicely in the microwave oven.

For small cuts, it is advisable to select recipes in which the beef is coated with a sauce or topping. For maximum tenderness, beef is best cooked just until barely done. Because food continues to cook somewhat after removal from the oven, take care to avoid overcooking the beef. Many consumers are finding that with practice and experimentation, many of their favorite beef recipes adapt to microwave cooking.

ASIAN BEEF WITH CURRIED RICE
(Microwave Method)

- ¾ cup rice
- 3 cups water
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- ½ cup raisins
- ¼ cup minced parsley
- 1 medium onion
- 1 clove garlic
- 1 small green pepper
- ½ teaspoon kitchen bouquet
- 1 pound beef top round, thinly sliced
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 2 beef bouillon cubes
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon thyme
- 2 green tipped bananas
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons sesame seeds

Combine rice with 2 cups water, 1 tablespoon butter and ½ teaspoon curry powder in 2-quart round ovenproof glass baking dish. Cover and cook in microwave oven with high power, stirring once, 20 minutes. Stir in raisins and parsley. Cover and set aside. Combine chopped onion, minced garlic and green pepper cut into ½ inch chunks with 1 cup water and kitchen bouquet in 2 quart rectangular ovenproof baking dish. Cover with brown paper. Cook 5 minutes in microwave oven with high power. Mix beef, remaining ½ teaspoon curry powder, flour, crumbled bouillon cubes, salt and thyme. Stir into vegetable mixture. Cook, uncovered, 3 minutes. Halve bananas lengthwise. Place remaining 1 tablespoon butter in pie plate. Place in microwave oven 45 seconds or until melted. Stir in lemon juice. Arrange bananas in single layer in lemon butter, turning to coat. Cook uncovered with high power 2 minutes. Top rice with beef and bananas. Sprinkle with sesame seeds. Makes 4 servings.

Beef roast

Cooking a tender beef roast is easy elegance for company meals. Whether serving 6 or more the procedure is the same. Simply place the roast on a rack in a shallow open pan in the oven. Roast at 325 degrees until beef reaches the desired degree of doneness. Compact boneless beef roasts — rolled sirloin, crossrib or rib eye — require slightly longer cooking time than a bone in cut such as a standing rib roast of the same weight.

Lock in fresh fruit flavor and color.

Whether you're freezing, canning or preparing a fresh fruit salad, A·C·M Ever-Fresh preserves and enhances that just-picked look and taste. And it's economical, too. One 4½-ounce bottle protects over 65 pounds of fruit. So look for A·C·M Ever-Fresh in the canning section of your market.

Introducing a deliciously easy barbecue sauce recipe.

Lea & Perrins Worcestershire Sauce and condensed tomato soup—what a flavorful couple! Put them together to create a delicious, tangy and easy-to-make barbecue sauce.

Barbecue

Mix 5 oz. Lea & Perrins Worcestershire Sauce and one 10½ oz. can of undiluted condensed tomato soup. For a lighter, sweeter sauce, use only 1/3 cup of Lea & Perrins plus 2 Tbsp. light brown sugar.
Smoky Barbecue Sauce: add 1 tsp. liquid or powdered smoke flavoring.
Garlic Barbecue Sauce: add 1 tsp. minced garlic.
Herbed Barbecue Sauce: add 3/4 tsp. each oregano and basil leaves, crushed.
Cover and refrigerate any leftover sauce.

It's easy to use, too. For hamburgers or steaks, brush each side twice during cooking. For chicken or spareribs, brush each side once during the last twenty minutes of cooking. Start mixing up your own delicious barbecue sauce today with a great-tasting couple—Lea & Perrins and condensed tomato soup.

With honey pour cream

Strawberry biscuit shortcakes fancy

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Strawberry biscuit shortcake is so good, strawberry fanciers may make a complete meal of it. This version includes added flavor with the use of orange peel and orange juice in the biscuit batter and a topping of a Honey Pour Cream, which is heavy cream sweetened with honey. This dessert is at its best when the biscuits are served warm and the strawberries are chilled.

STRAWBERRY BISCUIT SHORTCAKE

2 pints strawberries, sliced
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
Honey
1¾ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup solid vegetable shortening
½ cup plus 2 tablespoons milk
2 tablespoons orange juice
Butter or margarine, melted
Honey Pour Cream (recipe below)

Combine strawberries and one-half teaspoon grated orange peel. Sweeten to taste with honey (about one-fourth cup). Refrigerate 30 minutes. In large mixing bowl, combine remaining one-half teaspoon orange peel and dry ingredients. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or 2 knives until mixture is crumbly. Add milk and orange juice. Mix quickly with fork until mixture forms a soft dough. Turn onto lightly floured surface and knead 6 times. Roll or pat dough to one-half inch thickness and cut into 3 inch biscuits. Place on ungreased baking sheet and bake in 450 degree oven 12 to 15 minutes. Split hot biscuits. Brush inside with melted butter, then spoon on about 1 teaspoon honey per biscuit. Fill with sliced strawberries and replace biscuit tops. Spoon additional berries on top of shortcakes. Serve shortcakes warm with Honey Pour Cream. Makes 8 individual shortcakes. (Honey Pour Cream: Combine 1 cup heavy cream with 1 tablespoon honey.)

Pineapple relish

Saute canned Hawaiian pineapple chunks in butter with chopped green onion with a light touch of curry powder. Add chopped parsley and pimiento and some chutney. Serve as a relish for ham, fish or poultry.

'Easy potato' salad is popular during summer

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Convenience foods come in to their own during summer months, when few want to spend much time preparing long recipes. Examples are two potato salads which have as their base packaged Idaho hash browns and Idaho scalloped potatoes. These items save peeling time and cook quickly.

EASY POTATO SALAD

3 cups water
1 package (5.5 ounces) hash brown potatoes
½ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
1¼ teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon chopped chives
¼ teaspoon dried dill weed
1 cup chopped celery
1 medium tomato, peeled and chopped

Heat water to boil in large saucepan. Add hash brown potatoes, cover and cook 5 minutes, until tender but not soft. Immediately drain in strainer and then rinse under cold running water; drain well. In large bowl blend mayonnaise with vinegar, salt, chives and dill weed. Add drained potatoes and celery. Mix well. Cover and chill several hours. Just before serving stir in tomato. Turn into bowl lined with salad greens. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

PAYETTE VALLEY POTATO SALAD

1 package (5.5 ounces) scalloped potatoes
3 cups water
2 tablespoons salad oil
½ cup water
1 tablespoon cider vinegar
3 tablespoons milk
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 cup chopped celery

Remove sauce packet from scalloped potatoes. Heat water to boil in large saucepan, add potatoes, cover and cook 12 to 15 minutes, until tender but not soft. Immediately drain in strainer and rinse with cold running water. Turn into large bowl. Blend sauce mix with salad oil in saucepan. Stir in water and vinegar. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Remove from heat and stir in milk, then blend in mayonnaise. Add to potatoes in bowl, add celery and mix well. Cover and chill several hours. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Meat supply

There's good news for consumers at the meat counter. Throughout 1977, there will be plentiful supplies of meat at reasonable prices, predicts the National Live Stock and Meat Board. With an increase in pork production over the 1976 level and only a slight drop in beef production from the record 1976 level, meat prices will continue to be attractive.

The supply of red meat in 1977 is expected to average 191.6 pounds per person, down only about a half pound from the 1976 record per capita figure of 192 pounds. By species this is 123 pounds of beef, 63.5 pounds of pork, about 2 pounds of lamb and a little over 3 pounds of veal.

But with a new twist, no clay

'Clay-baked' chicken from New York Forum's heyday

By Cecily Brownstone
AP Food Editor

A dozen or so years ago when New York City's Forum Restaurant was in its heyday and the late Albert Stockli was its director-chef, chicken baked in clay was served — to acclaim. A special variety of moist modeling clay was used, but it wasn't always easy for home cooks to come by.

Then a Floridian who ran a cooking school suggested that a formula based on homemade play dough — a combination of flour, cornstarch, salt and water — might substitute for the clay. Would some innovative cook please work out explicit directions?

Modane Marchbanks, a friend of mine whom I've mentioned before as being adept at working out culinary problems, decided to play around with the play dough and some chickens in her kitchen. She came up with a great formula. When we tried her recipe in our own test kitchen we were delighted with the results.

The chicken came out of its hard-baked encasement, which we broke apart with a hammer, an appetizing golden color. The wings and drumsticks and the outer covering of the bird had a vigorous briny flavor, yet the underlayers of chicken meat were bland enough for those who wanted less tang.

Cooks who use food processors and microwave ovens and other timesaving, up-to-date kitchen appliances may ask whether taking the time to make homemade "clay" and then to encase a chicken in it for baking is worthwhile. Why revive ancient cooking method — one that researchers report goes back to Etruscan times — when so many people are interested in shortcut recipes? Our answer: we recommend the method to those men and women who get a bang out of using handicraft skills in the kitchen and who want to produce something interesting and deliciously different for family and friends to enjoy. Baking a chicken in homemade "clay" is fun!

"CLAY" BAKED CHICKEN

2½ cups flour
2 cups cornstarch
2 cups salt
1¾ to 2¼ cups water
1 whole 3 pound frying or roasting chicken
1 medium onion, peeled and halved
1 medium carrot, pared and halved
A few sprigs parsley
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon dried rosemary leaves

You may encase the chicken as follows several hours ahead of baking time and refrigerate uncovered.

In a large bowl stir together the flour, cornstarch and salt; gradually stir in enough of the water to have the mixture moist enough to hold together. Turn out on a floured pastry cloth and knead until smooth. With a floured, stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out to a little less than ½-inch thick — big enough to mold around the chicken.

Pat the chicken dry. Put the remaining ingredients in the body cavity. Tie the drumstick ends together. Place breast side up in the center of the "clay" and mold it around the chicken to encase the bird completely; with moistened fingers smooth any seams. Line the entire inside surface of a 13 by 9 by 2-inch baking pan with a sheet of heavy foil — in case of leakage. Place the chicken in the pan.

Bake in a preheated 475 degree oven until the covering ranges in spots from blackish brown to medium-brown in color — 1¼ hours. Let stand at room temperature for 10 minutes.

Show the encased baked bird to your family and guests; they'll probably get a bang, too, out of watching you take the next step. Cover the chicken with an old towel or clean cloth to keep the "clay" from spattering. With a hammer or heavy mallet or a heavy metal meat pounder, crack the covering over the top and sides. This takes quite a bit of cracking! Remove the towel and cracked pieces. Lift the chicken out of the bottom covering — it should come away easily — to a carving board or heated platter. Juices in the bottom section of the coering will be briny but we like them poured over the chicken.

Makes 4 generous servings.

From an 'eye-popping eating orgy'

Liver casserole maksalaatikko a traditional Finnish recipe

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

One of the joys of traveling in any country is tasting the native dishes.

For example, an overnight stay at a farmhouse near Heinavesi in Finland, in the lakes area north of Helsinki, proved to be an eye-popping eating orgy.

There are many farmhouses in Finland which now take in guests by the night or the week to fill out their family budget. "It is difficult," according to host farmer Kalevi Raisanen, "to survive on what we grow on the farms. We do not want to give up the land and we enjoy being hosts."

The Raisanen house is ideal for summer or winter guests since it once was an inn serving boat passengers who were docked on the lake nearby. Since it was still the time of the midnight sun in Finland, the Raisanens and their neighbors were having a summer get-together the night I stopped. This included such things as folk dancing and singing, log rolling and a lakeside fish stew party.

The fish, similar to smelt, were freshly caught from the lake and popped into a cauldron filled with lake water and proper seasonings. The resulting soup was served straight from the pot in bowls.

After the lakeside event, everyone — including the children — adjourned to the large recreation room in the farmhouse and danced such things as the Finnish tango, all in stockinged feet. This proved a good way to work off such specialties as several types of herring, pickled cucumber and cream salad, beet salad, carrot casserole and liver casserole, delicious homemade dark bread and fruits of the season such as blueberries, cloudberries and strawberries. This was an extensive meal, sort of the neighborhood pitch-in. Probably other farm lodgings would have fewer items on the menu for the $10 a day and $5 for half board (breakfast and dinner or breakfast and lunch). Breakfast, incidentally, was the typical cold cuts and cheese with butter and rolls, fruit and very strong coffee or tea.

Here are two traditional Karelian recipes which many Finns who live in the United States prepare.

LIVER CASSEROLE (MAKSALAATIKKO)

2 cups water
1 cup milk
1 cup pearl barley, or brown rice
1 large onion, chopped
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
¾ pound ground liver
¼ cup corn syrup
1 teaspoon coarse salt
½ teaspoon white pepper
1 teaspoon marjoram leaves, crushed
⅛ teaspoon ginger
1/3 cup seedless raisins
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon oil for the casserole

Mix water with milk and brong to boil. Then add barley or rice. Heat for 10 mintues and stir so the barley won't stick. Cover and simmer until all liquid is absorbed. Let cool.

Fry chopped onion in oil until light brown. Let stand a few minutes. Then, combine barley, onion, ground liver, syrup, salt, pepper and other ingredients in a bowl, along with the beaten egg. Mix well.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Meanwhile, oil a larger casserole. Pour the mixture into a dish and bake in oven for about an hour or till the tops turn brown. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CARROT CASSEROLE (PORKKANALAATIKKO)

1 cup water
2/3 cup pearl barley, or brown rice
1½ cups milk
4 to 6 sweet carrots, grated
1 teaspoon coarse salt
½ teaspoon raw sugar or honey
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 eggs, beaten
1 tablespoon flour
2 to 3 tablespoons bread crumbs

Bring water to boil then add barley or rice, cover pot partially and simmer until water is absorbed. Then add a cup of milk, simmer until absorbed. Make sure the barley or rice is done but not too soft. Cool. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Mix the carrots, honey, sugar, salt and nutmeg with the barley (or rice). Add the beaten eggs. Grease a one and one-half quart casserole dish with a tablespoon of the butter, then sprinkle the bottom with some of the bread crumbs. Pour mixture into the baking dish, sprinkle the top with balance of the bread crumbs and dot the top with the remaining butter. Bake from 30 to 40 minutes or until browned on top. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Add a flair to family fare

—Apples and onions sauteed together make a wonderful accompaniment for steak.

* * *

—Add 3 tablespoons poppyseed to 2 cups graham cracker crumbs for lemon pie.

* * *

—Place round slices of orange jello on top of peeled orange slices for a simple salad.

* * *

—Try adding 1 tablespoon flour to scrambled eggs.

* * *

—Three decker sandwich treat — well flavored scrambled eggs and sliced gherkins.

* * *

—Want a diet sandwich? Try sliced cold meat between thick cabbage leaves, instead of bread.

* * *

—Dust your oiled cake pans with cocoa when making chocolate cake. It gives a beautiful color and needs only a simple dessert whip topping.

—Sprinkle iced watermelon slices with chopped mint.

New Tender Chunk™ Ham. It does everything tuna does except swim.

What a great idea. Real honest-to-goodness ham you can flake with a fork just like tuna and use in sandwiches, salads, casseroles and hors d'oeuvres. Of course, any good lean ham costs more than tuna, but just to prove you'll like Tender Chunk Ham, we've thrown in this special offer. Look for Tender Chunk in your supermarket next to the tuna section.

Mustardy short ribs are good for patio 'retreats'

Every summer millions of Americans retreat to patios and parks to partake in the nationwide pursuit of cooking on the outdoor grill. This shift of dining site not only keeps kitchens cool but builds lazy appetites with the tempting aroma and taste of dinner cooked over the coals.

All outdoor chefs have familiar foods that remain tried and true favorites for delivering eating enjoyment. But real cookout enthusiasts know that there are more than the old standbys. It's smart to become acquainted with all selections available for a fine outdoor meal, whether cooking just for family or for friends and relatives too.

One grill possibility often overlooked is beef short ribs. Frequently served as hearty winter fare, these meaty ribs are great for the grill when first precooked on the range surface unit. Whether cut from the ends of the ribs in the ribse rib section or from the plate, all short ribs contain a a piece of the rib bone and alternating layers of lean and fat. This makes for good grilling and excellent eating.

While broiling the ribs over ash-covered coals, make this a dining adventure to be remembered by brushing them with an intriguing combination of honey, vinegar, onion and mustard. This sauce serves a twofold purpose since a portion of it is reserved to combine with sour cream and olives for a provocative accompaniment.

MUSTARDY SHORT RIBS

- 3 to 4 pounds beef short ribs
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ½ cup water
- 1/3 cup vinegar
- ¼ cup honey
- ¼ cup finely chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons dry mustard
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon tarragon leaves
- 2 tablespoons chopped green salad olives, if desired
- 2/3 cup dairy sour cream or half and half, if desired

Place short ribs in large fry pan or Dutch oven. Cover tightly and cook slowly 1 hour, turning occasionally. Pour off drippings. Season ribs with 2 teaspoons salt and the pepper; add water, cover and cook slowly for 1 hour or until tender. Combine vinegar, honey, onion, mustard, ½ teaspoon salt and tarragon leaves in small saucepan. Cook slowly 5 minutes, stirring to blend. If sour cream sauce is desired, reserve ¼ cup vinegar mixture. Place short ribs on grill top or on rack in broiler so surface of meat is 5 inches from heat. Cook at moderate temperature for 20 minutes or until browned, turning and brushing with glaze occasionally. For sauce, combine reserved vinegar mixture with olives and heat through. Gradually add to sour cream. Serve with the short ribs. 4 to 6 servings.

Even if short ribs are a family "standby," you may have overlooked them as grill fare. If so, try these mustardy ribs on the outdoor grill for a real summer treat. Butter potato slices to cook on the grill alongside the beef ribs. A hefty chef's salad of fresh vegetables with a favorite dressing and hot garlic bread rounds out the meal splendidly. Fresh strawberries cupped in cantaloupe wedges make a refreshing dessert.

Eating well for next to nothing: cooks must face soaring prices

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A pretty sure way to attract interest in a cookbook these days is to tell the reader how to eat cheaply. That's what Cecil Dyer has done in her new book titled "Eating Well for Next To Nothing."

The author starts off with some sound advice: to save money in the kitchen, you must revise your thinking from those bygone days of abundant food available at low cost and face up to today's soaring prices.

You can still hold down the cost, if you are careful. For one thing, always buy in season when picking fruit and vegetables, shunning such delicacies as tomatoes in January and avoiding the frozen food counter when shopping for greens.

As the author points out, there is always something fresh available at a reasonable price — like carrots in the fall and winter or string beans in spring.

Another valuable caution: don't go food shopping when you are ravenous or you might wind up buying a box of those out-of-season strawberries or that jar of fancy hors d'oeuvre.

Another worthy tip is to avoid throwing away anything edible. Leftovers fixed with a little imagination can often be turned into gourmet delights.

Some of the hints in this book would be of little use to anyone who works in an office all day. But they are helpful to the full-time housewife who has the space and enough energy.

For example, you are urged to do all your own pickling and preserving, and to set aside a couple of days a month to bake your own sweet rolls, coffee cakes and cookies, and store them in the deep freeze.

In the recipe section, the reader is advised to use less meat and more vegetables in stew and make up for lost protein by using plenty of homemade stock. And meat loaf is cheaper if you throw in more breadcrumbs and go light on the meat, making up for that deficiency by adding an extra egg to the mix.

Here's an intriguing recipe for roast beef hash made from leftover pot roast.

- 4 medium potatoes
- 1 cup leftover lean pot roast of beef, chopped fine
- 2 tablespoons vegetable shortening
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
- 1 tablespoon minced green onion tops
- 4 tablespoons sour cream

Preheat broiler, setting rack 6 inches from fire. Peel and shred potatoes, add to chopped beef and blend. Heat shortening in large skillet over medium heat using skillet with heat-proof handle if possible. Sprinkle potato mix evenly over bottom of skillet, but don't pack down. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cook without stirring til underside is lightly browned. Lift edge with spatula. Melt margarine and pour over surface. Place skillet in broiler and heat till surface is brown. Turn over onto warm plate. Mix worcestershire sauce with sour cream and spoon over surface. Sprinkle with minced onion. Serves 4. Good with reasonably-priced California red burgundy.

"Eating Well For Next To Nothing" is published by Mason-Charter.

Budget cuts

Budget beef cuts become tender in a minimum amount of time when cooked in a pressure cooker. Because air is removed from the pan, the steam can reach a temperature higher than boiling thus reducing cooking time. Bony cuts such as short ribs, soup bones, oxtails, shanks and plate ribs are flavorful economical cuts for pressure cooking.

Rich shortcake homemade treat

Homemade shortcake rich and flaky, spread with butter and honey-sweetened peach slices is truly a must during the summer season. Real shortcake is only a glorified biscuit that bakes in just about 15 minutes. It is at its best served warm. The biscuits rich flavor comes from the combination of dairy sour cream and honey.

Here are recipes for preparing the peaches and shortcakes. Wash six ripened peaches. Peel, cut in halves, remove pits. Slice peaches thinly into 2 to 4 tablespoons of mild-flavored honey. Blend lightly. Cover and refrigerate while preparing shortcake. The use of honey keeps peaches bright and flavorful for several hours.

RICH SHORTCAKE

- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 2 egg yolks, well beaten
- 2/3 cup dairy sour cream
- ¼ cup mild-flavored honey

In mixing bowl, sift together dry ingredients. Cut in butter until consistency of coarse meal. Mix well beaten egg yolks with dairy sour cream and honey. Blend lightly until soft dough is formed. Pat or roll out dough on lightly floured surface. To make individual shortcakes, use large biscuit cutter to cut out 12 rounds. Put 6 rounds on greased baking sheet. Spread lightly with butter. Place other half of dough on top. Heat oven to 425 degrees (hot). Bake 12 to 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Carefully split shortcakes in half. Spread with butter. Spoon honey-sweetened peaches between layers and on top. Makes 6 servings.

Most work only part-time

Many food service jobs now held by 'students'

By Gaynor Maddox

High school and college students now hold one out of every three food service jobs. Most work only part-time.

More than half of all food service employees are under 24 years old. You find them working in drive-ins, at quick food counters, in pizzarias and other quick-service places. Food service is enormous today. It is growing so rapidly that it naturally attracts students in need of extra cash.

What will the President's energy program do to food service?

"It may slow down those feeding spots along highways and it may slow down business at resorts far from the cities. But I don't think it will hurt the business generally," says Patrick L. O'Malley, enthusiastic president of the National Restaurant Association.

"Remember our business is growing by 11 per cent a year. More and more people are enjoying the habit of eating away from home — either at a quick spot or in a sitdown restaurant. I'd say that today one out of every three food dollars is spent for food away from home. By 1980, I predict confidently that $2 out of every $5 for food will be spent in various types of eating places. It is part of our new way of life."

The generally optimistic O'Malley is hostile to the President's desire to raise the minimum wage from $2.30 to $2.50 an hour and to Labor's insistance that it be raised to $2.85.

"I am violently against raising the minimum wage," says O'Malley. "It will wreak havoc with many owners. I see 700,000 jobs for young people eliminated by this proposition. And it isn't necessary. A boy or girl starts at $2.30 an hour. In a short time, provided he or she works hard and shows interest in the job, he or she will get raises. In fact, executive jobs in our industry are held by large numbers of former part-time high school and college workers who started at $2.30 an hour and were grateful for that."

O'Malley comments on the character of young workers, including students.

"Many of them are keen to get ahead, they give value for what they are paid. Unfortunately, others have a different attitude. But we do find that kids with some education are often more industrious. They know the value of an education and they know the value of a good job to help pay for it."

The industry obviously has a great need for better educated employes who might later return in administrative positions. O'Malley sums it up by saying:

"Each year, 250,000 new jobs are added to America's growing food service industry, from dishwashers to managers. Somewhere there is a place for the high school or college student who needs a job to help with his education.

Red hot Dodgers pick on lowly Astros

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — At home, under the lights, the Dodgers this year have won three times as many games as they have lost.

Against the Houston Astros, if past performances are any indication, the ratio should improve to 5-1 or 6-1.

Tuesday night's 4-2 victory over the Astros gave the Angelenos a 12-4 record at home this year with an 11-2 mark under the lights and an 11½-game lead over the idle Cincinnati Reds.

With Houston, a team that plays in the Astro-Dome which is part of the Astro-Domain, the record the last two years is now 16-3. Going back another year it is 23-5.

At any moment one suspects Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who has taken action before when he deemed it "in the best interests of baseball," will step forth on behalf of the poor Astros.

Kuhn, we suspect, may rule that henceforth Dodger wins over Houston will count as only half a loss for the Astros and half a win for the Angelenos.

They would be indicated in the standings by, what else, an "Astro-isk."

Houston may threaten, but you never get the feeling that the Dodgers are going to do anything but win.

Tuesday night the Dodgers got six strong innings from Rick Rhoden (7-1) and more sterling relief from Charlie Hough who registered his 12th save.

Dave Lopes was removed after three innings because of a bad cold. But his replacement, Teddy Martinez, socked a double and a single and scored what turned out to be the winning run on Ron Cey's fifth-inning double.

"Martinez has had seven hits in his last three games," manager Tommy Lasorda pointed out. "We drafted him because we knew we might deal some infielders. He played four winters for me at Licey and we were familiar with him."

Martinez, who now has seven hits in 16 at-bats (.438), was drafted out of the Cincinnati chain (Indianapolis) where he batted .255 last year while playing second, third, short and the outfield. He stole 25 bases.

"He can do a lot of things," Lasorda said. "And he's doing a great job for us. He knows his role (utility player) and he's happy. He was buried in the minors and we resurrected him."

Former Dodger catcher Joe Ferguson, who signed a five-year, million-dollar contract with the Astros Sunday, twice either picked up Dodger signs or guessed right and called for pitchouts which enabled him to throw out Lopes and Rick Monday on attempted steals.

"Fergie guessed with us twice," said Lasorda. "I was trying to think what he would be thinking we'd do and I tried to do it different. But he was with me all the way."

Third base coach Preston Gomez was at St. Louis where Ferguson was traded last year. Asked if he thought Fergie had picked off his signs, Gomez said no.

"Joe is a real smart catcher," said Gomez. "I watched him last year and he is always trying to stay three moves ahead of everybody."

Ferguson himself only smiled mysteriously and said, "It was luck . . . and a trade secret."

Gomez is not easy to steal signs from. He has a different set for every player. Most teams have one set for the whole team.

Catcher Johnny Oates thought he saw a sign that Gomez never gave.

With Steve Garvey on third and Rick Monday on second with one out in the fourth inning, Oates thought a squeeze play was on and bunted.

It surprised everybody including Gomez and Garvey who stood and watched as Oates beat it out for a hit which loaded the bases but didn't score anyone.

Rhoden ended the inning by hitting into a double play. Monday had beaten out a bunt and Dusty Baker had sacrificed.

"No, that was no squeeze," laughed Lasorda. "If I had ordered four bunts that inning, I'd have been arrested."

Monday had three hits including an RBI double and a single. Baker had an RBI single. Reggie Smith drove in a run with a sacrifice fly.

"Now if only you writers would get together and pay my fine (for being ejected Sunday)," grinned Lasorda. "Remember, you can give to one who has given a lot."

DODGER DATA — Pitching for the remaining two games with the Astros looks like this.

Doug Rau (5-0) faces Joaquin Andujar (3-3) tonight. Burt Hooton (4-1) takes on James Rodney Richard (3-4) Thursday night.

Cincinnati comes in for the weekend. Only general admission seats remain for Friday night. Plenty of reserved seats remain for afternoon games Saturday and Sunday (1 p.m. each day).

Tuesday night was the first time in nine games the Dodgers failed to hit a home run. They have 53 so far in 41 games. Last year number 53 came on July 15 in game number 87.

The most the Angelenos have ever hit since moving to Dodger Stadium was 140 in 1962. That year, number 53 came on June 10 in game number 61.

Cey now has 43 runs batted in. Smith has 31 and Garvey 29.

Tuesday night's attendance of 29,864 raised the season total to 578,680 for 16 games or an average of 36,168.

Swimmers get soccer aid

USC defends strange move

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Controversy has arisen over soccer scholarships granted by the University of Southern California to three high school swimming stars.

The school says all is legal and the three will actually play soccer although admittedly they were sought as swimmers by the school, winner of four national collegiate swim championships in as many years.

"It is true that USC has signed three very fine swimmers on soccer scholarships," said Athletic Director Richard Perry. "However, in our opinion, this has been done in complete compliance with the rules of the NCAA and Pacific-8 conference.

"Representatives of USC have been in constant contact with the NCAA office to assure that compliance. "The three swimmers involved will be active participants in our fall intercollegiate soccer program."

Soccer is relatively new at USC, while its swimming program is traditionally strong. The Trojans have won nine NCAA swimming titles including the last four.

There were reports that some of the conference swimming coaches were upset over the USC move.

Under NCAA rules, universities are limited to 80 scholarships in addition to those for football and basketball. But there are stipulations as to how many can be assigned each sport. Swimming is allowed 11, the same number permitted for soccer. A school is allowed by NCAA rules to have 19 swimmers for national competition.

Perry said the Trojans are merely trying to stay competitive in swimming with schools where tuition costs are not as high and therefore the outlay for scholarships is less.

"What has not been pointed out is that these 11 swimming scholarships are not body counts, as they are in football and basketball, but are based on equivalencies," the athletic director said.

"This suggests you could have as many as 22 swimmers, for example, each on half-scholarship, as long as the total dollar expenditure didn't exceed the equivalent cost of educating 11 people."

A half-scholarship at USC would leave a student-athlete with a large balance that he would have to pay, so the school argues that athlete might well decide to attend a school where the cost would be less.

"The particular problem for USC with this rule is that for six other universities in the Pac-8 — excluding Stanford — tuition for in-state residents ranges from a minimum of $564 a year to a maximum of $639 per year.

"USC's annual tuition is $3,944.

"So, for example, a half-scholarship at other universities ranges from $282 a year to $319.50. At USC it is $972."

Perry did not divulge how many swimming scholarships would be available for this fall, but it was believed to be only one or two.

Wiles Hallock, Pac-8 commissioner, said his office is investigating the matter and USC will not use that method of granting scholarships until a ruling is issued.

Perry refused to identify the trio but John Lindblom, a columnist for the San Jose Mercury-News, said one is Kirk McGowan of Cupertino, Calif.

Lindblom said McGowan's high school coach said the boy had never played organized soccer.

'Improper' Ryan sets A.L. mark

DETROIT (AP) — Nolan Ryan says he was pitching "improperly."

For his "deficient" efforts Tuesday night he:

—Won his 100th American League game.

—Set an AL record for most games striking out 10 or more batters.

—Pitched a three-hitter for his ninth complete game in 11 starts.

Ryan's performance outshone a brilliant effort by John Hiller and raised his season record to 7-4, helping the California Angels to a 2-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

It was the 10th triumph in 14 decisions for Ryan in his career against Detroit, including a nohitter. The Tigers have managed only 76 hits in 457 at-bats against him for a .166 average.

Despite Ryan's triumph, Detroit Manager Ralph Houk believes Hiller "outpitched him."

Hiller, the veteran reliever making only his second start of the season, gave up two runs in the second inning. He was brilliant thereafter, retiring 16 consecutive batters at one point.

He received a huge ovation when he walked off the field after finishing the ninth inning. Hiller doffed his cap to the Tiger Stadium crowd of 14,194.

Ryan got no such applause. The crowd seemed as dazed as the Detroit batters, especially in the ninth when Ryan finished with a flourish—striking out Milt May, Mickey Stanley and pinch hitter Ron LeFlore. Ryan also struck out the side in the first inning. After giving up a leadoff single to Phil Mankowski, he fanned Tito Fuentes, Rusty Staub and Steve Kemp.

He struck out Fuentes, Staub and Stanley twice each and got rookie Kemp on strikes three times. Ryan finished with 12 strikeouts, giving him 75 games of 10 or more strikeouts in the AL. He had shared the old mark of 74 with former Cleveland star Sam McDowell.

"No," Ryan said tersely, when asked if the record meant anything to him. "I didn't even know I was close to it until the ninth inning."

Including time he spent in the National League, Ryan has struck out 10 or more batters in 89 games. The major league record of 97 is held by Hall of Famer Sandy Koufax.

"I don't worry about the pitches as much as the delivery," said Ryan, who labored in the fourth inning due to wildness. "I threw 180 pitches because I was throwing improperly. By the fifth inning my bicep was aching. I corrected it later, but I don't know how. My complete rhythm and timing were off."

Singles by Joe Rudi, Bobby Bonds and Ron Jackson, plus Bobby Grich's sacrifice fly, gave the Angels their runs.

Singles by Jason Thompson and rookie Tim Corcoran, plus May's ground out, produced Detroit's run in the fourth. Walks to Stanley and Tom Veryzer loaded the bases, but Mankowski hit into a double play, ending the rally.

"We just didn't get that one hit when we needed it," Houk moaned.

VERSATILE BRONCO

David Nugent, a junior at Cal Poly, is competing in the decathlon, javelin and pole vault at the NCAA Division II track and field finals in Fargo, N.D.

Poly athletes versatile

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Three of the six Cal Poly athletes who are competing this week in the NCAA Division II track and field championships are CCAA champions in their respective events.

But the three are not only outstanding in a particular event — they are all extremely versatile performers as well.

In fact, one is the 1977 conference decathlon champion, another used to be a decathlete and the third plans to be a decathlete in the near future.

Junior David Nugent won the CCAA decathlon for the Broncos two weekends ago, Jeff Russell captured the javelin crown and Lonnie Carr led the conference's shot putters.

Also competing for the Broncos at the Division II nationals in Fargo, N.D., will be shot putter and discus thrower Marcus Gordien, sprinter Mike Frierson (who will run both the 100- and 200-meter dashes) and high jumper David Fitzgerald.

The busiest Bronco this week will be Nugent, who is entered not only in the 10-event decathlon, which ends today, but also the pole vault and javelin. Both those events have prelims Thursday and finals Saturday.

Nugent, who attended Norco High and Chaffey College before enrolling at Cal Poly, won the CCAA decathlon title with 6,867 points. It was his first competition in a full decathlon, and he wasn't too sure he enjoyed it.

"I didn't like it — I guess just because of my inexperience," said Nugent, a quiet 23-year-old. "I was expecting to make all the marks I had set as goals for myself and I wasn't doing it. Every time I didn't make the mark I wanted I got more discouraged."

He also has some goals for this week's competition, including a score of over 7,000. "I hope to do better in every event than I did at the CCAA finals," Nugent said. "I think that experience will help."

Nugent's best event is the javelin, in which his best of 225-7 ranks him second nationally in Division II. But a leg injury problem that arose recently has made it hard for him to set his feet for that demanding event.

NOLAN RECORDS 100TH

Nolan Ryan in action Tuesday night as he records his 100th American League victory by defeating the Detroit Tigers, 3-2, for his seventh win of the season.

Tigers ready for Fydrich

DETROIT (AP) — Righthander Vern Ruhle has been placed on the Detroit Tigers' disabled list to make room for Mark "The Bird" Fydrich.

Fydrich, the 19-game winner of 1976 out since March 30 following knee surgery, was restored to the roster effective Tuesday.

Ruhle's listing as disabled was retroactive to May 20, the day after his two-inning stint in an exhibition game against Cincinnati.

Ruhle, 3-4 with a 6.59 earned run average, has a stiff knee.

Fydrich is scheduled to start here Friday night against Seattle.

Walther says no to father's plan

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Bill Puterbaugh is back in Sunday's Indianapolis 500-mile race after Salt Walther turned down a chance to drive the car his father purchased after Puterbaugh qualified it.

Walther was bumped from the field because his car was too slow and he was unable to qualify a backup auto.

"I had nothing to do with the whole thing," Walter said Tuesday night. "I appreciate the thoughtfulness of my father and brother to purchase the Elkins car for me, but I thought about it all night and if I took the ride away from Bill, I would lose respect for myself.

"I figured the only fair thing to do was to turn the car over to Bill and help him in any way I can to make our car successful in the 500."

Walther's father, George, and brother, Jeff, bought the Eagle Monday that Puterbaugh qualified Sunday in 28th place. They purchased it from Lee Elkins, ailing Kalamazoo, Mich., sportsman who said he no longer was physically capable of "running the team right."

George and Jeff Walther then announced Salt would replace Puterbaugh.

Puterbaugh, who had considered legal action before Salt stepped down, said, "It's my understanding that I'm going to start the race and finish the race in the car. I would accept the ride under no other circumstances."

Dick King, president of the U.S. Auto Club, which sanctions the 500-mile race, said he was pleased and relieved the situation had been resolved. And Chief Steward Tom Binford gave his immediate approval to Salt's decision.

Meanwhile, in Houston, Roger McCluskey, who qualified in ninth position for Sunday's race, predicted the USAC would take steps to prevent a driver from buying his way into the field in the future.

"I think you'll see steps will be taken to see that kind of thing doesn't happen again. If someone wants to buy a car, that's fine. But there ought to be some kind of stipulation that the driver who qualified the car gets to stay with it," said McCluskey.

"You'd have to be careful with any ruling, though. You wouldn't want to punish the car owner if, say, the driver got sick."

Chaffey fields winning team

The Chaffey College women's softball team recently finished Southern League action with a 12-4 record and a runnerup berth in that loop.

Roberta Nolan was tabbed as the Most Valuable Player in the team, while Debbie Jordan and Yvonne Sotomayor were the Most Improved Players. Terri Smith was chosen as the Most Inspirational.

The team was coached by Lois Elkington. Other team members were Janet Haderer, Terri Bailey, Jolene Baumann, Kathi Ziebarth, Jodi Brown, Sylvia Vasquez, Margaret Beam, Yolanda Flores, Joanne Guerrero and Linda Angulo.

Bowler perfect

Kay Landan of Pomona recently bowled a 300 game at Landmark Bowl.

She became only the second woman to bowl a perfect game in a Citrus Belt Association league game.

Scott sprints to top

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — Affable Steve Scott has sprinted from out of nowhere to become one of America's top middle-distance runners.

In the Olympic trials a year ago, he placed seventh at 1,500-meters and didn't make the team. Less than two weeks ago, he defeated world recordholder Filbert Bayi in their 1,500-meter matchup in Jamaica.

"I knew my time would come," said Scott, 21, a junior at the University of California at Irvine.

Scott, an Upland High product, seeks his third national title during the five-day National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) Division II track and field meet which ends here Saturday.

He places in jeopardy his 1,500-meter Division II record, set last season, of three minutes, 46.3 seconds.

Scott's 3:39.8 clocking against Bayi was his fastest ever. "It wasn't really a fast race," he says. "I feel I'm ready for a really fast 1,500. Really fast would be around 3:36."

Bayi's world mark is 3:32.2.

Scott, a shade over six feet tall and about 165 pounds, turned in the eighth fastest American mile at the Penn Relays this spring. His 3:55.1 time equates to a 3:37 at 1,500 meters, and is within 4.6 seconds of Jim Ryan's American and collegiate mark.

Four things happened to bring Scott into national prominence.

When the cross-country season ended, Scott continued to train and he was in superb shape when the indoor track season started last winter.

"Also I'm more mature," he says. "I'm getting stronger each year. And one of the big things was having one big race under my belt. My indoor mile on Jan. 16 in the Los Angeles Sports Arena was run in 3:59.7 — my first time under four minutes. That boosted me psychologically, and ever since I've been running easy and relaxed."

"After that, I knew my time would come."

Scott also credits UC Irvine Coach Len Miller for his rapid rise. Scott, who was a half-miler in high school, caught Miller's attention as a university freshman.

"Coach Miller did all the work. I own 100 per cent to him."

Scott has the distance runner's stamina, but also the sprinter's speed, covering 440 yards in about 49 seconds.

Running about 100 miles a week, plus sprints and hill work, Scott is cutting down his mileage, with a peak effort expected later this spring.

"The process takes four or five weeks," he says. "I started it a couple of weeks ago. I don't think I'll peak for the Division II meet, but should peak for the AAU June 9-11 at UCLA."

Bobby Moreau of LSU says it took him "17 years to learn to play quarterback and only five days to learn how to play linebacker."

"The pole vault is my favorite event," Nugent said. "If I can get up to 16 feet or 16-6 this summer (his best this year is 15 feet), I'll probably specialize in the pole vault next year and drop the decathlon."

Though he has been a versatile performer ever since high school, Nugent never particularly wanted to take up the decathlon. A major factor in his decision to try it was the world record performance of Bruce Jenner at the Montreal Olympics.

"After seeing that," said Nugent, "a lot of my friends said, 'You can do that.' So I tried it."

No doubt Jenner has inspired many a young decathlete with that performance, but he didn't exactly inspire Lonnie Carr — in fact, Jenner angered Carr.

"Jenner said after the Olympics that his score (8,618) would be the world record for a long time," said Carr. "That made me mad. I think I can beat him. My goal now is to compete in the decathlon in the 1980 Olympics."

Actually, Carr has two major goals — his other is to become a pro football player.

"I turned down a $20,500 offer from the British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League just recently," he said. "I want to play pro ball, but I'm not ready for it yet.

"I think I can compete in the 1980 Olympics and then play pro ball."

Carr earned 11 varsity letters in an illustrious four-sport career at Lynwood High (he was an All-CIF performer in football, track and swimming and all-league in basketball) before going to Missouri on a football scholarship. After a year, he returned to Southern California, married and enrolled at Chaffey. He now has a 14-month-old daughter and gives his wife the credit for his athletic career.

"When we married we agreed that she would work while I went to school and competed. She deserves a lot of credit."

Carr, a fine wide receiver for the Broncos in 1975 and 1976, weighs only 185 pounds — very little for a conference champion shot putter.

"Everybody I go against has at least 20 pounds on me," he said.

He came just two inches short this season of qualifying for the nationals in the long jump as well as the shot — a very unusual combination.

"I know I can score over 8,000 points in the decathlon," Carr said. "The only events I haven't done are the high hurdles and the pole vault."

Carr feels capable of winning the NCAA Division II shot put and breaking teammate Marcus Gordien's school record of 56-8½. Carr won the CCAA put at 56-1.

"Either one of us could go 58 or 59 feet if we have a good day," said the confident Carr. "It'd be great if Marcus and I can go 1-2." Gordien's mark ranks him second in the Division II shot put (he holds the same ranking with a 189-8 discus mark) and Carr ranks third.

Another ranked Bronco is Jeff Russell, whose 225-1 javelin throw ranks him third nationally to Nugent and leader Roger Kibbee of Cal State Northridge. Kibbee threw 237-9 early this season but has not come close to that mark again.

Russell is probably the favorite to win at Fargo. He has beaten Kibbee twice in head-to-head meetings, including the CCAA finals.

"I'd like to win the Division II meet and qualify for the Division I finals," said Russell. A throw of 240 feet or better at Fargo would enable him to advance to the NCAA Division I nationals next week in Champagne, Ill.

Russell, a Glendora High grad, spent two years at Citrus College, where he was an All-Mission Conference tight end. While at Citrus, he placed third in the state in the high jump and fifth in the javelin.

Stanford was interested in Russell as a decathlete, but he took a scholarship at Idaho State, where the coach wanted a javelin thrower. Russell placed fifth in the Big Sky Conference javelin at 228, but an arm injury he suffered would not heal in the cold Idaho weather so he transferred to Cal Poly and redshirted last year.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Draff Young, an assistant coach at Oral Roberts University for the past three years, will join Southern California's basketball staff, Trojans Coach Bob Boyd announced Tuesday.

Young 37, replaces Lynn Archibald, who resigned recently to become head coach at Idaho State.

A graduate of J.C. Smith College in North Carolina, Young toured for three years with the Harlem Magicians.

He later served as an assistant under Bob Cousy at Boston College, then stayed with Cousy to become his assistant in the National Basketball Association at Cincinnati and Kansas City-Omaha.

Mustangs net squad reaches CIF finals

By MARK GRIP
PB Correspondent

COVINA — Walnut High has downed Gladstone three times in the 1977 tennis season, and the third victory for the Mustang netters was a big one Tuesday. Walnut downed the Gladiators 17½-10½ in the CIF 2A semifinals at Gladstone.

The Mustangs put the match in their pockets midway into the contest and went on to post the easy win under gray skies at the Glads' courts.

There was little doubt that Walnut would win the match against its Hacienda League counterpart, but the Mustangs wanted to wrap it up before a possible rain shower.

Several light showers throughout the match forced the players to take short intermissions between sets.

Walnut started quickly and finally built up a 14½-4½ lead, giving the Mustangs over half of the possible 28 points and the match.

After that point, the Mustangs lost four straight points with nothing but pride at stake.

The biggest upset of the day came at that point with Walnut's number four singles player Andy Nettell defeating the Gladiators' number one singles player Mike Strack.

Nettell won three of his four sets on the day, highlighted by his win over Strack, the Hacienda League's individual champion.

The H.L.'s number two single player, Joe Mendoza of Walnut, won all four of his sets, 7-5, 6-4, 6-3 and 6-0.

The foe for the Mustangs in Friday's 2A finals will be number-two seeded La Habra, a winner over Santa Ynez on Tuesday.

Walnut will carry a 25-1 overall record into that match, to be played on a neutral court which will be decided today. The Mustangs were unbeaten at 14-0 in Hacienda action.

Gladstone was the H.L. runnerup squad with a 12-2 record, with both losses coming to the Mustang net machine. The Gladiators finish the year with a 19-4 overall slate.

Shrine Day set at Big A

ANAHEIM — Twenty minutes of pre-game pageantry will highlight the annual El Bekal Shrine Day at Anaheim Stadium on Saturday, June 25.

The Angels play the Texas Rangers at 1 p.m. following a procession of more than 20 colorful units including the Temple's famed Brass and Oriental Bands. Clowns, motorcycles, "tin lizzies" and more will join in the fun.

Tickets are on sale at the El Bekal Shrine Temple in Long Beach. For information, call (213) 432-3407.

CAC pool team wins invite

The Chaffey Aquatics Club recently hosted its first AAU meet at the Chaffey High pool. The Tigersharks posted impressive times, as 37 CAC swimmers placed in the top six of their respective events.

Shiela Bellomo was a winner in the 7-8 age group in the 50-yard freestyle, while Debra Mohnike was first in the 100 breakstroke in the 11-12 age group, as well as taking first in the 200 individual medley.

Karen Kostoff was a triple winner in the 13-14 age group, winning the 400 freestyle, 100 backstroke and 100 freestyle. Other winners in the 13-14 age group included David Neault, Mike Grabowski, Steve Rimmer and Scott Scholl.

Rod Carver was a dual winner in that division with firsts in the 100 fly and 100 breaststroke.

Coach John Ries will have his team in Palm Springs this weekend to compete in the Desert Invitational.

Sports briefs

DENVER (AP) — The mother of heavyweight boxer Ron Lyle died early today after the family car was broadsided by another vehicle as the Lyles returned from a religious meeting.

Nellie Lyle, 58, died of "multiple trauma," said a spokesperson for Denver General Hospital.

William Lyle, 63, the boxer's father, and three other passengers including Lyle's sister were reported shaken up by hospital officials.

Mrs. Lyle was driving the car when the accident occurred, police said.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego Padre left-hander Randy Jones won't be allowed to pitch for at least 10 days while he rests a tired left bicep muscle, the club doctor said Monday.

Team physician Dr. Paul Bauer said it could be six weeks before Jones will be allowed to throw more than 70 pitches in a game.

"He has been suffering from muscle fatigue," said Bauer. "I don't want him back into the rotation until he's strong enough to go at least five innings."

Jones, last year's Cy Young Award winner with a 22-14 record, had to undergo off-season arm surgery at the end of last season to repair nerve damage in his pitching arm.

LAS POSAS, Calif. (AP) — Thirteen golfers shot scores of 141 to 145 Monday to qualify for U.S. Open regional golf tournaments.

The 13 competed here in a field of 114. They advance to the regional play June 7 at Ventura.

They are:

Larry Centeno of Saticoy 71-70-141, Arne Dokka of Los Angeles 71-71-142, Victor Hayek of Los Angeles 71-71-142, Charles Green of Olivas Park 75-68-143, William LaFever of Los Angeles 71-72-143, Ron Commans (amateur) of Westlake 73-71-144, Brian Gaddy (amateur) of Pasadena 70-74-144, Brad Larsen (amateur) of Los Gatos 69-75-144, Corey Pavin (amateur) of Los Posas 73-71-144, Don Dubois (amateur) of Glendora 76-69-145, Mac Hunter of Los Angeles 77-68-145, Darryl McKitchens of Los Pasos 70-75-145.

ATHENS, Ga. — Top-seeded UCLA edged Texas 5-4 and joined Stanford, Southern Methodist and Trinity, Tex. in the semifinals of the NCAA tennis championships.

PARIS — Harold Solomon defeated Britain's John Feaver 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2 in a first-round match of the French Open Tennis Championships.

PARIS — Dr. Renee Richards withdrew from the French Open without explanation after undergoing a sex test.

Home runs 'scare' Gross

OAKLAND (AP) — Wayne Gross, the Oakland A's rookie third baseman, has been both surprised and scared by his newfound status as a home run hitter.

Both Gross and Manager Jack McKeon admit they expected the player who replaced All-Star Sal Bando at the hot corner to hit some home runs, but certainly not many during his rookie season.

"I expected him to give us some power, judging by his past performance," said McKeon. "I thought if he hit 12 or 15 home runs during his first year that would be a good rookie season."

Gross, who had hit 19 home runs during each of his past two minor league seasons, already has ripped 11 this year and is battling Chicago's Richie Zisk for the American League lead.

Until Zisk hit his 11th and 12th during the weekend, Gross, a 25-year-old from Cal Poly, briefly was alone atop the home run list.

"It's nice to have that distinction for awhile, but who knows how long it will last," the 6-foot-2, 205-pound rookie said before leaving with the A's for a nine-game road trip.

Although he built up a reputation as a hitter with moderate power during the past two years in the Southern and Pacific Coast leagues, Gross says he thinks of himself only as a contact hitter.

"I don't think I've ever hit a home run when I've tried to," he said. "Everytime I've caught myself doing that, I shake my head and go back to trying to hit line drives."

Because he refuses to consider himself a home run hitter, Gross said after crushing one deep over the right field fence last week against the New York Yankees that the blast "scared" him.

Gross and McKeon say the left-handed hitter's improved batting — which includes a .288 batting average, a .530 slugging percentage and 28 RBI through Monday — is due to a more patient attitude at the plate.

"He's a much more disciplined hitter than he used to be," said McKeon, drawing agreement from Gross, who says he is "seeing the ball better and not hitting bad pitches."

Gross, a football and baseball star at Cal Poly, was an outfielder-first baseman for his first three minor league seasons, shifting to third one day in an effort to get more playing time.

Although no Gold Glove — he's made 10 errors in 39 games — Gross is rapidly improving and spent a month playing winter ball in Puerto Rico on a team managed by McKeon so he could work on his fielding.

Southpaw Tom Zachary delivered the pitch that Babe Ruth hit for his 60th home run in 1927. Two years later, Zachary was pitching for the Yankees, Ruth's team, and had a 12-0 record.

Post 78 nips Upland

By JEFF WIENCEK
PB Correspondent

The sun went down and so did Upland Post 73 Tuesday evening, as Claremont Post 78 nipped Upland 5-4 in American Legion baseball action.

The contest was shortlived due to the lack of sunlight on the field at Pomona College. The contest was called after five and one-half innings.

Claremont managed to come up with two runs in the fourth inning in the game, and that proved to be the difference.

Upland was ahead 4-3 going into the bottom half of the fourth. But Jim Todd led off that stanza for the Cardinals with a single, and promptly stole second base.

Mark Layne followed with a single up the middle which scored Todd easily for second as the throw from the outfield skipped past Upland catcher John Kalbach.

Claremont came up with what turned out to be the winning run later in the inning when Dick Bell singled to drive in pitcher Derrick Ketcham from third base.

Upland started the game off impressively, on Randy Gordon's two-run homer.

Gordon drilled the shot to centerfield, and drove in Bobby Staido. Staido had reached base on a Claremont error.

Upland scored twice more in the game, once in the third inning and again in the fourth.

Bell led the Cardinals' attack with two hits and two runs batted in. Jim Tullis, Paul Sokolowski, Layne and Todd pounded out a hit apiece.

Claremont is now 3-3 in early season Legion play. Post 78 will try to improve its record tonight when it takes on Rowland Heights Legion at 7 p.m. at Claremont High.

Upland will try to get back on the winning track Thursday against La Verne Post 330, in a game set for 7:30 p.m. under the lights at La Verne College.

Del Mar slates 26 stakes races

DEL MAR — The outstanding Thoroughbreds in the West will be competing for a record $865,000 in 26 stakes events during Del Mar's 40th anniversary season which begins Wednesday, July 27, it has been announced by Donald B. Smith, President and General Manager of Del Mar Thoroughbred Club.

The popular seaside track, which opened July 3, 1937, underwent a major change in the off-season and the results of a $2.1 million program of expansion and improvements in the Grandstand will be unveiled on the first day of the 1977 meeting.

Highlighting the stakes schedule again will be renewals of the $75,000-added Del Mar Futurity and the $60,000-added Del Mar Debutante, companion classics for two-year-olds, and the invitational $100,000 Del Mar Handicap for older horses.

The Debutante, for fillies exclusively, will be presented Sunday, Sept. 4 for an estimated gross purse of $95,000, while the Futurity, which is open to all juveniles, will climax the 43-day season on closing day, Wednesday, Sept. 14, with a purse of approximately $115,000. Both races are carded at one mile on the main track.

Last summer, J.C. Pollard's Telferner earned $65,175 for her Debutante triumph, while Elmendorf's brilliant Visible captured the Futurity in sensational style to collect a winner's prize of $74,535.

The Del Mar Handicap, at the Crosby Course distance of 120 feet less than a mile and one-quarter, will feature a Labor Day holiday program on Monday, Sept. 5. Bradley and Whittingham's Riot in Paris was victorious in 1976, edging out Avatar.

Championship race of the season for three-year-olds is the Del Mar Derby, which has been boosted in value from $40,000 to $50,000 for its 23rd running Sunday, August 21. Title-deciding race of the meeting for sophomore fillies will be the $40,000-added Del Mar Oaks on Sunday, August 28.

Launching the Del Mar stakes slate on opening-day will be the $20,000-added Oceanside Stakes, a 7½-furlong test on turf conditioned for three-year-olds. In all, eleven stakes will be run over Del Mar's infield grass course.

Bench skips tests for Western trip

CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny Bench has decided to put off learning how serious his knee problems are until after the Cincinnati Reds finish an upcoming critical West Coast swing against San Francisco and Los Angeles.

"I didn't want to have this thing on my mind, thinking about what the tests showed," said Bench, who postponed a scheduled appointment Monday to have the left knee examined. "Plus, if there was a reaction, I may not be able to play or else be hampered.

"I didn't put it down, I just postponed it. This is a big trip for us. If we can win out there, I think we can get back in the hunt."

The Reds still are 11 games in back of the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West race.

They play the front-runners in a three-game series beginning Friday. They begin the West Coast series with two games against San Francisco starting today.

'Blazer play irks Ramsay

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It was not Jack Ramsay's favorite picture, certainly no "Gone With the Wind."

The coach of the Portland Trail Blazers had just gone over the game films of Sunday's 107-101 loss to Philadelphia in the opener of the National Basketball Association championship playoffs, and his review was something less than a rave.

"It's hard to win a game where you make 34 turnovers— our average is about 17," said Ramsay. "We gave them fast break opportunities. We didn't run our offense effectively. We didn't pass the ball crisply. We didn't come to meet the ball with authority. We didn't have steals from our guards in the backcourt."

On and on, Ramsay ticked off the things the Blazers did wrong before finally stumbling onto a silver lining, of sorts.

"The fact that we can play as ineffectively as we did and still be in the game at the end should show something," he suggested.

Indeed, the only Portland player who really played up to par in the opener of the best-of-seven series was Bill Walton, who had 28 points and 20 rebounds. Power forward Maurice Lucas fouled out and was never a dominating force; Bob Gross fouled out chasing after Julius Erving, and starting guards Lionel Hollins and Johnny Davis combined for just 13 points.

"Our game is not predicated on one man playing well," said Ramsay after running the Blazers through a practice session Tuesday. "All five have to play well."

Did he feel Portland had played at 90 per cent of its potential?

"Oh, no, by no means," he replied. "We played way below that. If we had played 90 per cent, we'd have won by 15."

Ramsay said if the Blazers are to even the series by winning Game Two Thursday night, they'll have to contain the Sixers' big guns—Julius Erving, Doug Collins and George McGinnis.

Barry to return

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Barry says he definitely will be back with the Golden State Warriors next season.

Barry, the Warriors' highscoring forward and team captain, had said last winter that he was 90 per cent certain the 1976-77 National Basketball Association season would be his last. Since then, however, he has changed his mind and decided not to retire just yet.

"I'm definitely going to play next year," the 33-year-old Barry said Tuesday. "I have another year to go on my contract with the Warriors, and I intend to play that year. What happens after that, we'll see."

Barry hopes to pursue a career is sportscasting after his playing days are over. He has done the sports segments on local news shows in New York and San Francisco, and has also done color commentary on CBS' telecasts of NBA games, including the current playoff finals between Philadelphia and Portland.

Barry was in New York to help promote the Dewar's Cup celebrity tennis tournament, featuring stars from other sports, to be held in Las Vegas next month.

Reds don't bother Garvey

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If Dodger firstbaseman Steve Garvey has his eyes lowered these days, it's not because he's sad but because he's no longer staring up at the scoreboard to see how the Reds are doing.

"We used to have to have to worry about being behind Cincinnati and trying to gain ground," said Los Angeles' perennial All-Star. "But with a big lead, we don't have to look up at the scoreboard every game to see how the Reds are doing."

The Dodgers, who finished a distant second to Cincinnati in the National League West the past two years, held an 11-game edge over the Reds going into Tuesday's game against Houston. Garvey said the substantial margin makes it easier for Los Angeles to abide by one of sports' time-tested maxims.

"We can play on a day-to-day basis," he commented, "not wonder if the Reds are winning or losing or how we're going to play against them in upcoming head-to-head series.

"We're able to play the season one game at a time for a change. All we're thinking about is building up our margin."

The 28-year-old Garvey, who has hit over .300 for the past four years and is just under that mark this season, said he's confident this is the Dodgers' year.

"We've got the people, and we've got everything going our way," he remarked.

Although not criticizing former Dodger manager Walter Alston, Garvey said new Manager Tom Lasorda has transformed the club this year.

"Physically, we're the same team as last year," he said. "But Tommy's approach to managing a club covers such a wide spectrum.

"He really works on an individual basis with players. He finds out the personality of each player and does what's needed to get the best out of him, whether it's yell at him, shame him, or build up his ego."

Garvey said Lasorda also keeps the team loose.

"The other night in Montreal," he said, grinning, "I looked down at the end of the dugout and there was Tommy with earphones on, listening to the Dodger broadcast.

Jackson feud 'resolved'

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees Manager Billy Martin said Tuesday night the latest Reggie Jackson feud had been "resolved," but he sounded a warning to pitcher Bill Lee of the Boston Red Sox.

Martin met with Jackson and the team's five-man coaching staff shortly before Tuesday night's game against the Red Sox. They discussed the slugging but slumping outfielder's remarks after a recent benching that "maybe the manager and the coaches don't think I can play," as well as Monday night's snub of teammates after hitting a game-tying home run.

"I asked him why he did what he did and he said there was no reason, it just happened," Martin said. "I'll accept that."

After the home run, Jackson trotted to the far end of the Yankees' dugout, instead of the end nearest home plate where about 10 players were waiting to shake his hand.

"I told him the coaches and I were pulling like hell for him and it's important that a team pull for each other. Personally, I think it's something deeper and I intend to talk to him alone. I think the guy wants to do well so bad that he gets down on himself."

But Martin was steaming over Lee's remarks following Monday night's game in which the Boston pitcher called Martin "a fascist" for his win-at-all-costs managing and referred to Yankee owner George Steinbrenner as a "convicted felon" for making illegal contributions to the re-election campaign of former President Richard Nixon.

"The next time he pitches against us I'm gonna be all over him, and I can jockey pretty good," Martin said.

"He pitches one good game and he goes crazy ... It's all right to be stupid, but don't announce it. A cheap shot is all it is. Ask anyone who's ever played for me and they'll tell you that I'm a player's manager.

"He's way off base. If he played for me I wouldn't handle him with a strong hand, I'd handle him with a straitjacket like the rest of the nuts."

Reds don't bother Garvey

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If Dodger firstbaseman Steve Garvey has his eyes lowered these days, it's not because he's sad but because he's no longer staring up at the scoreboard to see how the Reds are doing.

"We used to have to have to worry about being behind Cincinnati and trying to gain ground," said Los Angeles' perennial All-Star. "But with a big lead, we don't have to look up at the scoreboard every game to see how the Reds are doing."

The Dodgers, who finished a distant second to Cincinnati in the National League West the past two years, held an 11-game edge over the Reds going into Tuesday's game against Houston. Garvey said the substantial margin makes it easier for Los Angeles to abide by one of sports' time-tested maxims.

"We can play on a day-to-day basis," he commented, "not wonder if the Reds are winning or losing or how we're going to play against them in upcoming head-to-head series.

"We're able to play the season one game at a time for a change. All we're thinking about is building up our margin."

The 28-year-old Garvey, who has hit over .300 for the past four years and is just under that mark this season, said he's confident this is the Dodgers' year.

"We've got the people, and we've got everything going our way," he remarked.

Although not criticizing former Dodger manager Walter Alston, Garvey said new Manager Tom Lasorda has transformed the club this year.

"Physically, we're the same team as last year," he said. "But Tommy's approach to managing a club covers such a wide spectrum.

"He really works on an individual basis with players. He finds out the personality of each player and does what's needed to get the best out of him, whether it's yell at him, shame him, or build up his ego."

Garvey said Lasorda also keeps the team loose.

"The other night in Montreal," he said, grinning, "I looked down at the end of the dugout and there was Tommy with earphones on, listening to the Dodger broadcast.

Jackson feud 'resolved'

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees Manager Billy Martin said Tuesday night the latest Reggie Jackson feud had been "resolved," but he sounded a warning to pitcher Bill Lee of the Boston Red Sox.

Martin met with Jackson and the team's five-man coaching staff shortly before Tuesday night's game against the Red Sox. They discussed the slugging but slumping outfielder's remarks after a recent benching that "maybe the manager and the coaches don't think I can play," as well as Monday night's snub of teammates after hitting a game-tying home run.

"I asked him why he did what he did and he said there was no reason, it just happened," Martin said. "I'll accept that."

After the home run, Jackson trotted to the far end of the Yankees' dugout, instead of the end nearest home plate where about 10 players were waiting to shake his hand.

"I told him the coaches and I were pulling like hell for him and it's important that a team pull for each other. Personally, I think it's something deeper and I intend to talk to him alone. I think the guy wants to do well so bad that he gets down on himself."

But Martin was steaming over Lee's remarks following Monday night's game in which the Boston pitcher called Martin "a fascist" for his win-at-all-costs managing and referred to Yankee owner George Steinbrenner as a "convicted felon" for making illegal contributions to the re-election campaign of former President Richard Nixon.

"The next time he pitches against us I'm gonna be all over him, and I can jockey pretty good," Martin said.

"He pitches one good game and he goes crazy ... It's all right to be stupid, but don't announce it. A cheap shot is all it is. Ask anyone who's ever played for me and they'll tell you that I'm a player's manager.

"He's way off base. If he played for me I wouldn't handle him with a strong hand, I'd handle him with a straitjacket like the rest of the nuts."

Joyce Brothers

Marriage, divorce

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: Eight months ago my wife left me for a young woman. Even after the divorce I couldn't feel angry with her. I was more hurt and embarrassed that she should leave me for a woman. Now I find that I'm impotent and it panics me. I don't know if this would have happened had she gone off with another man. It's as though the shock has unbalanced my capability to have sex. — J.D.

DEAR J.D.: The first thing you have to learn is that you must relax. It's highly improbable that your wife's choice of companion had anything to do with your marital sexual performance. If her sexual compatability related solely to you, she would have selected another man rather than a woman.

However, the consequences of her act are possibly responsible for your present dilemma. It's important that you realize that most men suffer periods of impotency at some time in their lives. Recognizing that fact should help you cope with your anxiety. The longer you retain doubts, the more difficult will be the cure. In time, the doubt becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy.

Physiologically, we are all part male, part female. Men sometimes need to learn to be passive in their relationships with women. Let the woman take the aggressor role and don't feel you have to perform in any set way. Don't put yourself under any pressure to make love and undoubtedly this temporary block will resolve itself.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: For the past 15 years I've had a relationship with a married man who works in the same office. Though I have an adequate income, he has given me a monthly cash allowance. In effect, I suppose that makes me a "kept" woman. The probelm now is that he swears he wants to divorce his wife and is pressuring me to marry him. I don't want to. I am very comfortable with the present setup. — C.K.

DEAR C.K.: It's obvious you're very much the mistress of your own life, so there's really no reason you should go along with your lover's demands.

In this era of sexual liberation, it may surprise many persons to know there are still "kept" women. There are, but apparently the concept of the old sugar daddy and his young paramour has changed. More likely today the couple is of an approximate age, one or both married, and in many instances the woman in financially secure through her own employment.

Your case reflects the finding of Ohio sociologist Dr. John Cuber who found that where once a mistress might be pitied because her lover would not marry her, now it is the woman herself who often refuses to legalize the relationship when the opportunity presents itself.

Many women in such circumstances prefer freedom a voluntary affair affords them. Others may look back on an unhappy marriage or disastrous love affair and fear a possible recurrence of those experiences. Most often the woman is more interested in pursuing a business or professional career than coping with the demands of marriage.

There are many women faced with the same problem. The choice is yours.

Anniversary marks 50 years married

At an open house in the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil J. Hutcheson of Montclair observed their golden wedding anniversary.

Attending the event at the James Hutcheson home were 30 guests. The couple has two grandchildren.

The Hutchesons were married May 10, 1927, in St. Louis, Mo., and lived in Yucaipa before moving to this area four months ago.

Mr. Hutcheson is retired. He was employed at Norton Air Force Base, San Bernardino, as a machinist. Both are members of Dunlap Acres Community Church in Yucaipa.

Luncheon scheduled Friday

Past Presidents of Vicksburg Women's Relief Corps will meet for luncheon at 12:30 p.m., Friday, at Mission Family restaurant.

Memorial Day services will be discussed.

Dinner set tonight

Fair Valley Grange has scheduled a potluck supper at the Grange Hall, 11667 Monte Vista Ave., and a program at 7:30 p.m. at which several exchange students will speak.

The dinner and meeting are open to guests.

Represent chapter at meet

The Rick Las Cano Chapter, City of Hope, was recently represented by Alex and Monica Espinoza and Ernie and Esther Espinoza at the roll Call at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Beverly Hills.

The representatives presented a check for $1,000, bringing total donations from the chapter to over $5,000 in the four roll calls during the 18 months the chapter has been in existence.

Market activity

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks turned mixed late Wednesday morning when an early bargain-hunting rally lost its punch. Trading of New York Stock Exchange issues was moderate.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up more than two points at the outset, was off 1.78 point to 910.62 shortly before noon EDT. The blue-chip average had fallen 29.51 points the previous four sessions.

Breadth figures reflected considerable investor uncetainty. Of the 1,598 issues crossing the tape, 558 advanced, 527 declined and 513 remained unchanged.

Analysts said the early bargain hunting was normal in light of the market's slide the past four days. They noticed some buying late Tuesday. But investors lacked confidence in the near-term outlook for stocks.

The market was hindered by fears the prime lending rate banks charge would rise again this week. It rose a quarter point last week because the Federal Reserve Board has tightened credit.

In addition, investors were disturbed by the fact consumer prices have risen at a high rate the past four months. They were uncertain about what would happen in the Middle East now that the right-wing Likud bloc has won power in Israel.

Volume at the two-hour trading mark amounted to about 8,400,000 shares, down from the 9,990,000 traded during the same period Tuesday.

Gerber Products was ahead 1¾. A Michigan judge late Tuesday rejected Gerber's request for a petition to block Anderson Clayton's takeover bid. Anderson Clayton said it was proceeding with the offer. Anderson Clayton was ahead ⅛.

Masoneilan was off 1 on the American Stock Exchange. A judge late Tuesday rejected a stockholder's request to block Masoneilan's previously announced merger with Studebaker-Worthington. StudebakerWorthington was up ⅛ on the Big Board.

Sony Corp. was the most active issue, unchanged at 9 following a block trade of 100,000 shares at 9. Federal National Mortgage, trading exdividend, followed, unchanged at 15⅜ in trading that included a block of 108,800 shares at 15⅝. Xerox was third, unchanged at 45⅜.

Gearhart-Owen was off ½. The firm reported first-quarter earnings of 77 cents a share, compared with 50 cents a year ago. Wallace Business Forms, trading exdividend, was ahead ½ after reporting a thirdquarter net of 65 cents a share, versus 60 cents a year ago.

Prices were higher in active trading of American Stock Exchange issues. North American Royalties, which reported an oil find in Texas earlier this week, was ahead ½. The company expects its annual earnings of about $2 a share, up from $1.51 a year ago.

C. Brewer was ahead 2 after IU International said it was working on a plan to buy the 46 per cent of C. Brewer's stock it doesn't already own. IU International was off ⅛ on the NYSE.

Claremont group sees hard times

"The nation's economy will continue to strengthen through 1978, but after that watch for great difficulties." That is the forecast published this week by the Applied Financial Economics Center at Claremont Men's College.

James Meigs, director of the center, and associate director John Rutledge said there will be strong increases in production and employment, with substantial growth in corporate profits. However, they state that inflation will worsen and interest rates will rise as markets adjust to President Carter's monetary, fiscal, and regulatory policies. They warned their AFEC Associates to start planning now to meet the difficult times ahead.

Regarding the December-January flurry of economic illness and its unexpected recovery, the economists explained that when the winter weather and industrial energy cutbacks forced the industrial production index down at 9.5 per cent annual rate, Congress narrowly missed making a serious mistake by overstimulating the economy because members didn't settle their debates in time to take action.

Congress, which had been searching for more monetary fiscal stimulus remedies was, as the economists said, "like a team of medical specialists — embarrassed to learn that the patient had fully recovered while members were arguing whether the pink pills or the orange syrup would be the most appropriate treatment.

"Each," the economists added, "turned out to be the wrong medicine — the pink pills cure the gout, the orange syrup shrinks warts — our patient had three-day measles."

The economists reported that February figures showed a 12.5 per cent annual rate of increase in industrial production, more than making up for January's slide, and in March the industrial production index rose at an 18 per cent annual rate, the sharpest increase since mid-75 when the recovery began.

The "re-recovery" and the President's consequential "un-rebate" decision have put things in much better perspective, the economists said, and money growth can now be more predictable since the rebate financing problem was resolved.

As things look on the surface, the economy appears to be stabilizing, but the economists warn there are undercurrents of trouble stemming from the rise in inflation, which is "more dangerous than it appears on the surface."

"An inflation rate of 6 per cent per year or more," they said, "is bound to result in policies designed to curb it or to conceal it. How much trouble follows, and what kinds of trouble, will then depend on what medicine the authorities decide to apply."

They warned that direct wage-price controls would "bring shortages, mass confusion, and still higher inflation rates later on. A vigorous attempt to curb the inflation with a sharp cutback in money growth would mean temporarily higher interest rates and then a fall as the economy slides into recession."

News to use

WASHINGTON (AP) — The energy crunch is expected to increase the popularity of electric cars, and the government is concerned about the safety of the vehicles.

In accordance with legislation passed by Congress last year, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration is studying safety standards for electric and so-called hybrid vehicles. (Under the act, a "hybrid" vehicle is one powered by a combination of an electric motor and other power source.)

The agency is holding a hearing in Washington July 11 on such potential problems as shock hazards from batteries, either in normal use or during a collision, and the slower acceleration rate of the nonconventional vehicles.

The hearing will be held in room 2230, the Nassif Building, 400 Seventh St. SW, Washington, D.C. If you want to testify, write, by June 27, to Sam Daniel, Motor Vehicle Programs, NHTSA, Washington, D.C., 20590.

If you can't attend the hearing, but want to comment anyway, write by July 12. Address the letter to: Docket No. 77-04, Notice 1, Docket Section, National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, Room 5108, 400 Seventh St. SW, Washington, D.C., 20590.

on most of its routes effective June 1. It also is imposing a surcharge to help offset heavy costs brought on by the severe winter.

The average increase is 3 per cent. The surcharge will range from 25 cents to $1.

Among examples of the new fares, including the surcharges: Boston to Washington, $37.50, up from $35; Chicago to Los Angeles, $115, up from $110.

TAX BREAK FOR HANDICAPPED HELP — The Internal Revenue Service is considering allowing deductions for money spent to remove architectural barriers to the handicapped and elderly.

Included could be expenses for such things as providing ramps for wheelchairs, lowering telephones and altering restroom facilities.

A hearing on the proposal will be held at 10 a.m. EDT June 21 at the IRS Auditorium, Seventh Floor, 7400 Corridor, Internal Revenue Building, 1111 Consitution Ave. NW, Washington, D.C.

If you want to speak at the hearing you should submit an outline of your comments by June 13. If you can't make it, written comments are welcome. Write to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Attention: CC:LR:T, Washington, D.C., 20224.

MOVING CRACKDOWN — The Interstate Commerce Commission is cracking down on moving companies which use fraudulent practices.

ICC Chairman Dan O'Neal said many moving families lose more than $500 per trip because of "rip-off" practices aimed at making the customer pay for a heavier load than he actually shipped.

People with complaints about interstate movers can contact the commission, tollfree, by calling 800-424-9312. In Florida, call 800-432-4537.
